Maj. Barrett Silent After Wiretapping Testimony

Jury Calls McHale Again; Miami Blonde Heard; Shimon Visits Police Headquarters

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Major Robert J. Barrett, chief of Washington's Metropolitan Police, yesterday appeared before the Federal Grand Jury investigating wiretapping.

Chief Barrett was the first of six witnesses heard by the Grand Jury in Municipal Court. He spent an hour and a half in the jury room. He carried with him a manila envelope. He said he could not discuss the case.

He added that the Grand Jury told him not to tell reporters if the Police Department intended action concerning Police Lieut. Joseph Shimon, key figure in the wiretapping case.

Shimon, former investigator for United States Attorney George Morris Fay, was transferred to No. 14 Precinct after a Police Department report was prepared on the officer's alleged wire-tapping activies. He is now attached to No. 2 Precinct.

Chief Barrett has been called to take the report, now nearly a year old, to the Special Senate District Wiretapping Inquiry Committee at its first meeting set for 3 p. m. Wednesday.

In the early afternoon, after Barrett's morning session before the grand jury, Lieutenant Shimon was reported to have visited Police Headquarters. He entered the building through a side entrance. But a question about whether he turned up for a conference with Barrett brought a quick denial from the latter's office. An aide said the major had not conferred with Shimon. The purpose of Shimon's visit was not learned.

After Barrett, Detective John McHale was called in for his third appearance before the grand jury. McHale at one time was Lieutenant Shimon's chief assistant when Shimon was investigator for District Attorney Fay.

Another witness was an attractive blonde who said she is Mrs. Charlotte Spriggs of Miami Beach, Fla. She told reporters she had met Shimon in 1945, had not seen him since, and did not know anything about the wiretapping

Horse in Well A Nightmare To Bridal Pair

A contrary horse that weighed 1500 pounds ruined plans of newlywed Mr. and Mrs. Harold Robinson, jr., for a quiet wedding night and honeymoon weekend.

The happy couple, married here Saturday, left for the solitude of the bride's parents' farm in Brook, Va., near Fredericksburg.

Instead of solitude, they found a dead horse down the well and several hundred friends of the owner, a tenant on the farm, milling about trying to get the critter out. They milled all night.

The father of the bride, J. C. A. Cameron of 1815 Varnum st. nw., who thought his duties were over Saturday when he gave his daughter, June, away at the Takoma Baptist Church, drove down to the farm Sunday with Mrs. Cameron and helped to haul out the dead horse.

Senate Committee Approves Permissive Wage-Price Curbs

By The Associated Press

The Senate Banking Committee last night unanimously approved a home-front mobilization bill that would give President Truman virtually full discretion to invoke wage-price rationing controls.

Chairman Maybank (D., S. C.) said, however, that some of the 13 members reserved the right to oppose in the Senate provisions dealing with wage-price curbs and machinery to handle labor disputes.

Senator Capehart (R., Ind.) said he and Senators Bricker (R., Ohio) and Tobey (R., N. H.) chose such a right.

The bill, in addition to providing broad wage-price rationing powers, would authorize the more limited economic controls which Mr. Truman asked from Congress last month.

Those less sweeping curbs include authority to:

1. Allocate scarce industrial materials.

2. Assign priorities to put defense production work at the head of any factories' job sheet.

3. Let the Government take privately owned plants, if necessary.

4. Curb consumer credit and real estate construction credit.

5. Grant two billion dollars in Government loans and guarantees to spur defense production.

Police Charge He Fatally Shot Fellow VA Hospital Patient

Richmond, Va., Aug. 7 (AP).—A 29-year-old Army veteran, paralyzed from the waist down, today waived preliminary hearing on a charge that he murdered his legless buddy in their hospital ward here..

The defendant, Charles Edward Kennedy of Burgettstown, Pa., is charged with firing six shots from a .25-caliber automatic pistol into the body of Vance A. Clary, 28, of Randleman, N. C., during an altercation Saturday night in McGuire Veterans Administration Hospital.

Dr. L. H. Wright, manager of the hospital, said the shooting of Clary occurred about 10:45 p. m. (EST) Saturday. The slaying resulted from a quarrel between the men, both of whom had been drinking, he said.

Hospital authorities said that when six other paraplegics in the same ward saw a gun being drawn, they rolled themselves into a sun porch flanking the 15-patient room. No nurse was in the ward at the time.

A hospital authority said Kennedy told investigating officers the pistol was in the toe of his shoe. Authorities could not determine immediately where Kennedy got the pistol, but said it is strictly against Government regulations for patients to have firearms on hospital property.

Dr. Wright said Kennedy and Clary had returned to the hospital after being out on pass Saturday. He said their argument apparently grew out of an automobile accident involving Kennedy's car, specially equipped to be driven without the use of legs.

The injuries for which Kennedy and Clary were being treated at McGuire were not suffered in the armed forces.

Both men were given disciplinary discharges from the hospital this spring. They had returned for emergency treatment.

Kennedy, wearing a knitted, quarter-sleeve sports shirt and cotton trousers, was wheeled into the courtroom before United States Commissioner Melvin Fleg-enheimer. As Defense Attorney Frank A. S. Wright waived the hearing, Kennedy remained silent. The prematurely gray-haired defendant was taken by Federal ambulance to the Federal Reformatory Hospital at Petersburg, 25 miles away, in default of $10,000 bond.

Senators Ease Tax Bill for Institutions

Committee Exempts Some 'Sideline' Profits From House Program

The Senate Finance Committee yesterday voted to tax at regular rates most "sideline" business profits of educational, charitable and other now-exempt institutions, but modified House provisions to ease the impact in some cases.

The committee spent a full day reviewing loophole-plugging features of the House tax bill, without reaching the main corporation and individual emergency tax increases proposed by the President.

The Senate unit agreed that colleges and other tax-exempt institutions should be taxed on the profits they receive from an "unrelated" business activity.

But it exempted some sideline activities, such as research by an educational institution or hospital, even if done for a private party for pay.

Like the House, the Senate group specifically exempted churches from the "unrelated business" tax.

The Finance Committee also decided:

1. That no business should be exempt from tax merely because all of its profits are paid to a tax-exempt organization.

2. That "leasebacks" should be taxed. Under the leaseback practice, an exempt institution often buys a business with borrowed money and leases it back to the original owner, paying no tax on the rent it receives.

5 U. S. Warships Shell Rail Center In North Korea

Tokyo (Tuesday) Aug. 8 (AP).—Five American warships bombarded Tanchon, a rail center 125 miles north of the 38th Parallel, Monday night.

It was the northernmost bombardment of the war for United States warships.

The navy announcement said the assault lasted several hours and "created havoc in the railroad yards" of the East Coast city. Extensive fires were started.

British, Netherlands and South Korean ships hammered Inchon, the port of Seoul on the west coast.

'Malevolent Conspiracy'

Lane Bans Md. U. Campus As Communist Debate Site

Governor Lane of Maryland yesterday banned use of a University of Maryland auditorium for a debate on "Is Communism a Friend of America?"

Participants in the debate, scheduled for tonight, were to have been Philip Frankfeld, chairman of the Maryland-District of Columbia Communist Party, and Dr. Fred C. Schwarz, an Australian anti-Communist.

Referring to Frankfeld, Governor Lane said while Americans are fighting in Korea against communism, he would not permit representatives of "this malevolent conspiracy" the freedom of the university's campus.

He added that he did not advocate abridgement of freedom of speech, but he did not think Maryland or its agencies should provide the forum "for the exposition of the totalitarian doctrine of communism."

Schwarz, reached in Beach Haven, N. J., called Lane's action "very foolish," and declared the debate would have laid bare "the stupidity and weakness of the Communist program."

Frankfeld called debate "imperative" at a time when the world is faced with a crisis, and said "we will stagnate and decay without free discussion."

The Rev. Kenneth S. Woodring, pastor of the Non-Sectarian Tabernacle, Rogers Heights, Md., and acting chairman of the Council of Christian Churches of Washington, which is sponsoring the proposed debate, said he will get in touch with Governor Lane today and request that, if there can be no deabte, Schwarz be permitted to address the large group expected to be on hand.

At College Park, University President H. C. Byrd said he already had canceled use of the auditorium earlier in the day before he heard from Lane, after he read a Washington newspaper advertisement giving the subject of the debate.

Marine Corps Mobilizing All Reserves

80,000 Face Call, Most by Oct. 31; More Air Squadrons To Be Activated

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The Marine Corps yesterday announced mobilization of its 80,000 volunteer reservists, beginning with 50,000 to be called up between August 15 and October 31.

The announcement added that "more" organized reserve air units were "in process of being called." All Marine reserve ground units and several air squadrons were placed on active duty last month.

Volunteer reserves are those officers and men who served in the Marine Corps and were placed on reserve status but belong to no organized unit. A Marine Corps spokesman estimated there were more than 1000 volunteer reserves in the District area.

Addition of all volunteer reserves to personnel now on duty would swell the Marine Corps' ranks to more than 200,000, of whom more than 165,000 would be in ground units and 35,000 in air units. These would include 73,000 regulars, 50,000 in the organized reserve and 80,000 in the volunteer reserve.

The Coast Guard at the same time announced a drive to build up its newly reactivated reserve by enlisting former Coast Guardsmen and intensifying reserve training. Current enlistments will be for inactive duty with paid training authorized within the limits of available funds.

While these fresh moves to augment the Nation's combat forces were under way, President Truman stirred speculation by calling in all the chiefs of staff for a thorough briefing on the world situation. Ordinarily the President is briefed daily on Korea alone by Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Yesterday, however, General Bradley was accompanied to the White House by Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff; Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, Chief of Naval Operations; and Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Chief of Staff of the Air Force. They took a formidable stack of charts and maps and remained with Mr. Truman about 30 minutes.

Reporters were assured by Press Secretary Charles G. Ross that no extraordinary military developments were in the wind. It was, he said, "just a general survey," and added:

"It was more thorough than usual. On most mornings General Bradley comes in and talks only about Korea. Today was devoted to a general survey."

Nevertheless, the descent of all this brass on the White House led to speculation that attention was being focused on possible new targets of Red aggression. The opinion is known to be held in high

France Asks More British, U. S. Troops

Present Defense Held Inadequate; 5 Billion For Arms Pledged

Paris, Aug. 7 (AP).—France today asked that more American and British troops be sent to Europe and pledged to start a two-trillion franc ($5,710,000,000) three-year rearmament program with United States aid.

The huge three-year program would be in addition to the 1950 military budget of 420 billion francs ($1,200,000,000).

It includes the creation of 15 new French divisions, or about half the 30 western divisions that experts have estimated as the minimum necessary to meet any Communist aggression in Europe.

This would involve putting 250,000 more Frenchmen in uniform and bringing her armed forces to about 900,000 men.

In announcing the plan, France also asked for a unified command of all western armies in Europe, "central organs" to plan and direct political and economic policy, and centralized management of the financial resources devoted

Democrats Buy Building Here For National Headquarters

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

William M. Boyle, jr., chairman of the Democratic National Committee, announced yesterday that the committee has bought an eight-story building for a national headquarters. He gave the purchase price as $250,000.

The building is at 1733-35 De Sales st. nw., across from the north side of the Mayflower Hotel.

Henceforth, the Democrats plan to run presidential campaigns from Washington, instead of setting up a national headquarters in New York as in the past.

Chairman Boyle, in making the announcement in the White House lobby after a talk with President Truman, also predicted that the Democrats would pick up seats in both the Senate and House in the November election. He included Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio among Republicans who, he said would be beaten by Democrats.

Boyle's optimism was in contrast to the down-in-the-mouth attitude that has been noted lately among many Democrats in Congress. These Democrats have been fearful that the war news from Korea would hurt them at the polls unless the tide of battle should turn in the Americans' favor.

The Republicans, visibly more bullish than they were before the fighting started in Korea, have been raising their claims on the number of seats they hope to capture.

Boyle's visit to the White House yesterday was his first since he went to Georgetown University Hospital to be treated for a spastic colon.

"I reported to the President that I was back on duty and that the doctors have given me a clean bill of health," Boyle told reporters after he emerged from Mr. Truman's office.

He would not speculate on whether the Chief Executive would go on a barnstorming trip this fall. Before the outbreak in Korea, there was a widespread belief that Mr. Truman would make a whistle-stop tour, although no definite announcement of this was ever made.

"Everything has been laid aside because of the Korean war," Boyle said, "and we are more interested in seeing a continuance of successful leadership by the President than in anything else just now."

Boyle said he was confident that Senator Taft would be beaten for reelection in Ohio.

"Joe Ferguson will beat Taft hands down," he said, explaining that he based his statement on re-

GIs Crush Break-Through, But More Reds Cross Naktong

By Robert Bennyhoff

With the United States Twenty-fourth Infantry Division on the Western Korean Front, (Tuesday) Aug. 8 (U.P.).—The North Koreans threw at least another battalion of infantry into their Naktong River bridgehead last night and early today.

American staff officers said other small Red patrols crossed the river at will last night all along the 40-mile front to the north.

With at least two battalions already in the bridgehead, the new arrivals brought Communist strength on the east bank of the Naktong to three battalions—a regiment.

The strengthened Communist bridgehead is in a five-mile loop of the river some 30 miles south of Taegu and only 10 miles north of the area south of the river where American Marines and troops are counterattacking toward Chinju.

The Twenty-fourth Division, stretched out on a thin line along 40 miles of the river, braced for an expected Communist attempt to break out of the surrounded bridgehead and turn it into a major break-through of the southern Naktong River line.

American staff officers expect the isolated Red patrols slipping across the river to the north to regroup and attack from the rear during the next 24 hours, probably attempting to set up road blocks behind the Twenty-fourth's front lines.

Staff officers said the total of the various patrols may number well into the hundreds and perhaps reach 1000 men in addition to the regiment in the bridgehead.

The North Koreans, carrying light weapons and automatic rifles, could be seen wading across the Naktong into their bridgehead area when dawn broke after a moonless night.

American artillery and fighter planes opened up on them with shell blasts and strafing, but officers estimated they already had placed another battalion on the east bank.

Those Red troops already in the

Finn Ship Barred From Unloading In Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Aug. 7 (AP).—A Finnish freighter, searched by United States agents to guard against sabotage, today was ordered unexpectedly to unload its cargo at an anchorage 55 miles below Philadelphia.

The freighter Hamina was ordered unloaded off Bombay Hook Point, 30 miles down the Delaware from Wilmington, Del.

Port Collector Michael J. Bradley told newsmen he regarded the action as "advisable" but declined to disclose whether the search of the vessel turned up anything suspicious.

The vessel is operated by Finn Lines. It has been bringing wood pulp cargo to United States ports.

On 24-Hour Notice

Would Call U. N. Assembly In New Aggression, Lie Says

Lake Success, Aug. 7 (AP).—U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie today said the 59-nation General Assembly could be called into extraordinary session on 24 hours' notice in the event of any new aggression.

He said he would not hesitate to call such a meeting if he considered it necessary.

At the same time, it was disclosed the Dominican Republic has put the question of Franco Spain on the provisional agenda of the fifth regular session opening September 19. The Dominican Republic wants to remove the ban against sending ambassadors and chiefs of mission to Madrid. This ban was voted in December, 1946.

The Council will meet Tuesday at 2 p. m. to continue debate on whether to invite Communist North Korea to the council table for discussions on the Korean war. The majority of the Council is against such an invitation and Malik has made it clear he will veto an invitation to Ambassador John M. Chang, of the U. N.-sponsored South Korean Republic.

Some delegates have expressed fear that Malik came back to veto action in case of some new aggression by a Communist satellite. In that case, delegates say, it would be necessary to go to the General Assembly promptly for collective U. N. action.

Lie was asked if it still would be necessary to wait 14 days between the time of the call and a special session, as provided now in the Assembly rules.

"There is a possibility that the General Assembly can be called in 24 hours if necessary," Lie replied. "The General Assembly is master of its own rules. If I, as secretary general, felt it necessary, I would not hesitate to call them (the delegates). A simple majority would be sufficient to make it a legal assembly."

"I really think still that the Soviet Union wants peace," Lie said.

U. S. Drive Reinforced By Supplies, Tanks, Men

Army 35th Regiment Pushes on Highway; Amphibious Action Indicated in South

Tokyo, Tuesday, Aug. 8 (AP).—The first American offensive of the Korean war drove to within 10 miles of the Communists' southern anchor of Chinju today.

But the Reds hurled a new threat at the United Nations forces with a double-bitted attack at the northwest corner of the defense box.

The 35th Regiment of the Army's 25th Infantry Division made the deepest penetration in the southern drive on Chinju, 55 air miles west of the all-important beachhead supply funnel of Pusan. Field dispatches credited the doughboys with a gain of about 10 road miles in their push along the Chinju-Pusan highway on the northern flank of the offensive.

35th at Sagong

A spokesman at General MacArthur's headquarters placed the 35th at Sagong, 12 air miles east of Chinju, at noon Tuesday. But this was an hour later than the 10-mile distance reported by Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead with the advancing forces.

The spokesman warned against premature optimism but described the situation as better—"but not materially"—than yesterday when the offensive was launched at dawn. He said fighting today was heavier and progress slower.

The new threat to the shrunken U.N. defense perimeter developed in the northwest where the Reds threw perhaps some 15,000 men across the Naktong River line.

3 Regiments Attack

An Eighth Army communique Tuesday morning placed one attack—by three Red regiments—25 miles north of Waegan and described it as "the newest threat of United Natjons forces." Waegan is 12 air miles northwest of Taegu, communications hub near the front.

The other prong of the Red thrust from the northwest was only three miles north of Waegan. There the Reds had put one tank and two battalions across the river. Seven more tanks were on the west bank ready to cross, the communique said.

Associated Press Correspondent Leif Erickson at Eighth Army Headquarters said the Red crossings "may herald a strong thrust aimed directly at Taegu," 55 air miles northwest of Pusan. He said Allied fighters and bombers had been ordered to give priority to knocking out the two Red concen-

Owen Lattimore Urges U. N. Seat For Red China

Peterborough, N. H., Aug. 7 (AP). Owen Lattimore said tonight a Communist China delegation should be seated in the United Nations.

This should be the first step taken by the United States in making Asiatic countries "our willing associates," the Far Eastern affairs expert said.

Lattimore urged the United States follow the suggestion of Prime Minister Nehru of India that Communist China be admitted to the U. N. in an effort to bring about a peaceful solution of the Korean war.

He added, however, that we should follow Nehru's proposal "as a concession to our friend and not as appeasement for Soviet Russia."

He said it is imperative that "the spread of communism be checked in Asia" but added:

"We must remember we can't hold the line against communism without Asiatic allies."

Accused by Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) of being Russia's top agent in this country, Lattimore was cleared by the Democratic majority of a Senate subcommittee investigating the charges.

Appropriations Face Deeper Cuts in House

House leaders last night prepared to make a fight for "more flexible" nondefense cuts in the $34,237,000,000 appropriation bill passed last week by the Senate.

House Appropriations Chairman Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.) said he personally favors reducing nondefense spending below the Senate bill level by reaching some items the Senate failed to touch.

But he opposed the idea of a 10-percent horizontal slash in nonwar items embodied in the Senate's Bridges-Byrd amendment. He said the cut should be among agencies on the basis of their minimum needs, rather than applied across the board.

The first "single package" money bill in recent history will go to a House-Senate conference for final revision today or Wednesday. The House named its conferees yesterday and the Senate Appropriations Committee will meet this morning to discuss its own conference strategy.

Cannon predicted a rather quick agreement, possibly within the next week or two. He said his own conferees will go back to the House for instructions if necessary on some of the points in dispute.

The House economy bloc approved the so-called Taber-Thomas amendment, trimming most civilians agencies 600 million dollars below budget. The Senate cut all but a few exempt agencies 10 percent below the amount finally approved by Congress.

While not pressing for revival of the original Taber-Thomas amendment, House conferees are likely to use it as a bargaining weapon to redistribute the slash. Later the House committee, now reviewing all nondefense items, is expected to report an additional "rescission" bill.

Coast Guard Asks Ex-Reserves To Reenlist for Inactive Duty

Coast Guard headquarters asked former Coast Guardsmen and Coast Guard reservists, including Spars, to reenlist in a new Coast Guard Reserve yesterday.

While all such reenlistments will be for inactive duty at this time, organized units are to be formed later and training with pay will be authorized as finances permit, it was announced.

Duty will include a specified number of drills, with pay, and general assignments at sea and in port, aviation and port security.

Reenlistments will be in the rating held at the time of discharge or in a comparable rating. Applicants must be between 17 and 45, and must hold honorable discharges.

Demobilized In 1946

The former Coast Guard Reserve was demobilized June 30, 1946, but some officers remained on extended active duty. A roster of officers and enlisted reservists has been maintained.

Meanwhile, the Army-Air Force recruiters here had a busy day yesterday, examining 74 applicants and accepting 59 of them, the highest number who have qualified in one day since the Korean fighting began.

Of the 59 accepted, 21 were sworn into the Army and eight into the Air Force, with 30 others requiring further processing.

The Navy yesterday enlisted 10, tentatively accepted five others, of 19 who applied for the regular service.

Selective Service ordered 106 District men under draft boards 4 and 12 to pre-induction examinations. Of these, 98 arrived for the exams and draft officials are checking on the eight who failed to show up.

National Selective Service headquarters made available a chart on which employers may figure out how many of their staff are currently liable for military service, and how many might be liable under increased emergencies.

It shows the current draft as including men of 25 down through 19, and the probability that those of 26 through 35 would be next. Spaces are given under each group to set down the number of employes in the various occupation skills who might be called up.

Hoover Sounds Alert on Red Activity in U. S.

By the United Press

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover yesterday said that communism can be defeated in the United States "by an alert and aroused public opinion."

In a copyrighted interview in United States News and World Report the FBI chief said the press and radio are performing an invaluable service by informing the people of the true character of communism.

"I would never fear communism in America if all Communists were out in the open, peddling their wares in the market place of free speech and thought," Hoover said.

"But, they are not. We cannot meet them on an even basis. They are working behind the masquerade of hypocrisy. For this reason, America must be vigilant to recognize communism for what it actually is—a malicious evil which would destroy this Nation."

Hoover, who has told Congress there are at least 55,000 Communists in the United States, stressed that every one of them is a potential spy or saboteur.

Asked how the general public can help combat the Red menace, Hoover pointed out that Communists are hard to identify because they are trained in deceit. He gave this advice:

"Be alert to the dangers of communism. Report your information immediately and fully to the FBI. Avoid reporting malicious gossip or idle rumor. The FBI is interested in receiving facts. Don't attempt to make private investigations. Leave that to trained investigators. Don't circulate rumors about subversive activities to draw conclusions from information you furnish to the FBI."

Byrd Asks Truman To State If More Funds to Be Sought

Senator Byrd (D., Va.) urged President Truman yesterday to tell Congress whether he has in mind asking for more military funds.

Byrd said in a statement that, with $16,500,000,000 in recent requests, the President has asked Congress to provide $58,700,000,000 for Government operations this year.

"It is my understanding that considerably larger sums will be requested as the program gains momentum and that the plans for additional requests are already made," Byrd said.

"I call upon the President to tell the Congress and the people of these plans, which will require a staggering further increase in defense expenditures."

Adm. Cochrane Appointed to Dual Maritime Role

By The Associated Press

Vice Admiral Edward L. Cochrane, U. S. Navy, retired, yesterday was appointed as the first man to hold the new double job of chairman of the Federal Maritime Board and administrator of the Maritime Administration.

Admiral Cochrane is on leave as head of the Department of Naval Architecture and Marine Engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. During the war he was chief of the Navy's Bureau of Ships.

On July 28, President Truman nominated Cochrane as a member of the Federal Maritime Board. He was confirmed by the Senate August 1.

Yesterday he took the oath as a member at the same time the Commerce Department announced that President Truman has appointed Cochrane chairman. That automatically means that he is administrator of the Maritime Administration, in the Commerce Department.

Bank Embezzler Of $883,660 Out on Parole

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—Richard H. Crowe, bank official who embezzled almost a million dollars, smilingly returned on parole to his Staten Island home today after serving 13 months of a three-year prison term.

West Pointers Watch 'Battle' At Ft. Belvoir

Five hundred and fifty West Point cadets watched a full-scale mock attack by engineer-supported tanks and infantry on an "aggressor" force at Fort Belvoir, Va., yesterday.

The cadets landed at Quantico, Va., at 11 a. m. yesterday from a Navy transport ship and moved up to Belvoir for a three-day demonstration of how the Army Engineers operate.

It was the first leg of a three-week training trip which will wind up August 13 with a joint amphibious operation in conjunction with Naval Academy Midshipmen near Little Creek, Va.

Troops from the Third Armored Cavalry Regiment of Fort Meade, a tank platoon and five tanks, an engineer combat platoon, and an infantry platoon took part in yesterday's mock battle.

The assault force, 100 men strong, cleared mine fields in advance of the tank assault, knocked down tank barriers and finally stormed a pill box where the "aggressor" force was captured.

Object of the show: to demonstrate how engineers support an armored infantry attack.

Today the cadets will be split into three groups to watch separate demonstrations. One in Belvoir's Pontoon School area, will show bridges, prefabricated buildings, camoflauge techniques, and a portable sawmill.

The second will demonstrate heavy earth-moving, digging, and hauling equipment, and the third will display map reproduction, firefighting activities, and construction of oil pipe lines.

The demonstrations will run from 8 to 11 p. m. and from 12:45 to 3:30 p. m. The West Pointers will leave Wednesday noon for Fort Eustice, Va.

District Appeals Court's Decision On Segregation

Notice was filed yesterday that the District Government will appeal a recent decision of Judge Frank H. Myers of Municipal Court refusing to hear a charge that the Thompson Restaurant Corp. violated the District's 80-year-old anti-segregation law.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King filed the notice of appeal.

The case was brought by two Negroes and one white person as a test to determine whether Judge Myers was correct in ruling anti-segregation laws were "repealed by implication" in 1878.

D. C. Air Guard Off Saturday For Training

The D. C. Air National Guard will begin its annual 15 days of field training this Saturday in two separate locations.

The 121st White House Fighter Squadron, commanded by Lieut. Col. W. W. Millikan, will train at Andrews Air Force Base along with Detachment A of the 213th Air Service Group, the 121st Utility Flight and the 121st Weather Station.

The 113th Fighter Group will train at Byrd Field, Sandston, Va., along with the 213th Air Service Group Headquarters.

Col. Laidler B. Mackall, District Air Guard commander, will exercise operational control of four fighter squadrons from Byrd Field. They are the 121st, to be based at Andrews; the 148th of Delaware, to be based at New Castle Air Force Base south of Wilmington, and the 104th of Baltimore and the 149th of Richmond, both to be based at Byrd Field.

Nurse Loses $50 To Purse Snatcher

A nurse lost her pocketbook containing $50 to a purse snatcher early yesterday as she stood in front of Sibley Hospital, 1140 North Capitol st.

The victim, Miss Etta Thornton, 50, of 2013 New Hampshire ave. nw., said the pocketbook was snatched from her arm about 12:20 a. m. She described the thief as a Negro, about 20 years old, of slender build, wearing khaki shirt and maroon trousers.

Former D. C. Army Officer Wounded in Korean Action

Lieut. James Wilson, formerly of 300 Oklahoma ave. ne., has been wounded in the Korean fighting, the Defense Department announced yesterday in its latest casualty list.

Lieut. Wilson

A native of Corona, N. Y., Lieutenant Wilson is a veteran of three years in the Army at 23, and had been in the Far East since October, 1949.

His wife, the former Mary E. Jackson, once a General Accounting Office employe, is living in Gifu, Japan. They were married in Washington in September, 1949. He is a graduate of the Fort Belvoir Engineering School.

The Defense Department casualty list, No. 57, also included five wounded Virginia soldiers.

They are: Pfc. Walter C. Ayers, son of Walter Ayers, Arvonia; Pfc. Donald E. Blankenship, son of Frank M. Blankenship, Narrows; Capt. Clarence H. Ellis, jr., brother of Mrs. Francis A. Ellis, Roanoke; Pfc. James E. Pollard, son of Mrs. Pearl M. Pollard, Powhatan, and Sergt. John J. Wyatt, son of Mrs. Annie L. Wyatt, Richmond.

Ridgeville Man Wounded Near Taejon

Frederick, Md., August 7 (Spl.). Sergt. F/C Owen P. Moore, 36, this county's first casualty in the Korean war, was wounded in the chest and abdomen by machine-gun bullets on July 20, he has informed his wife, Mrs. Georgia M. Moore, of Ridgeville, in a letter from a hospital in Japan. Moore, a veteran of 14 years in the Army, was in action with the Twenty-fourth Division around Taejon, when wounded.

Moore informed his wife that he had up to that time seen but one other man from his entire battalion who had survived. "He told me our company commander and eight men were all that was left of an entire battery of 140 men. You can visualize the concentrated hell I've been through," he wrote.

House Votes to Repay Pan American Union

Korean Reds Hit By Record B-29 Runs

168 Killed

U.S. Korean Casualties Set at 2668

American casualties in Korea announced up to Sunday total 2668 killed, wounded and missing, the Defense Department reported yesterday.

Of the total, 2616 were suffered by Army troops, 50 by the Air Force and two by the Navy. Army forces in contact with the enemy have been many times those of the other services.

Figures were broken down in this manner:

Army—Killed, 153; wounded, 1590; missing, 873.

Navy—Killed, 1; wounded, 0; missing, 1.

Air Force—Killed, 14; wounded, 2; missing, 34.

An Army spokesman made it clear that these figures did not, and were not intended to, cover all casualties of the war. He pointed out that there was an appreciable time lag in reporting casualties because of unstable conditions in Korea. In addition, he added, figures were not made public until families had been notified.

"This," he explained, "is not because we are trying to hide anything but to do it in a dignified, considerate way to prevent lacerating the feelings of the people involved."

Compilation of casualties already made public came at yesterday's morning briefing session at the Pentagon when reporters called attention to a report by Columnist Drew Pearson that he had seen a "secret" list in the office of the Army Surgeon General's office. Pearson said the total to August 1 was 660 killed, 2975 wounded and 3000 "actually missing in action."

After pointing out that casualty figures were handled by the office of the adjutant general, the spokesman said Pearson's totals "do not agree with casualty lists I have seen."

Pearson Says Army Is Deceiving Nation

Columnist Drew Pearson last night issued this statement:

"The Army once again is practicing deception with that which is dearest to the Nation—losses at the battlefront.

"On August 2, Maj. Gen. G. E. Armstrong, Deputy Surgeon General of the Army, testified before the Senate Appropriations Committee in executive session. His testimony appeared on page 122 of the secret transcript.

"He was asked by a Senator: 'Let me ask you this, what are the casualties both in dead and wounded? Are they heavier than made public?'

"To this General Armstrong replied: 'For the record the casualties have been greater than they estimated three weeks ago . . .'

"General Armstrong then quoted the following figures: 661 dead; 2970 wounded; 3000 missing. These figures are practically those published by me today (Monday)—namely 660 dead, 2975 wounded and 3000 missing.

"Maj. Gen. Floyd Parks, the same spokesman who denied these figures earlier today (Monday), when reminded of General Armstrong's testimony, stated: 'We have many more casualties than the people we have notified.' He went on to explain that the Army has notified the next of kin of 2616 casualties. In other words, if you read the Army's denial carefully, the parents of 2616 casualties have been notified but a much larger number have not been notified.

"The Senate committee, however, was notified five days ago and these figures stand."

Tokyo (Tuesday), Aug. 8 (AP).—United States B-29s pounded military targets at the North Korean cities of Pyongyang and Wonsan Monday with more than 540 tons of bombs—the heaviest one-day bomb delivery of the Korean war.

A Far East Air Forces announcement said one mass flight dropped 460 tons on railroad yards at Pyongyang, North Korean captial, with "excellent results."

Pyongyang is the arsenal of the North Korean army and the main rail center for major through traffic to the fighting front.

Other B-29s dropped more than 80 tons of bombs on an oil refinery at Wonsan, east coast port. Wonsan's industry was hit heavily July 13 in the first mass attack by the Far East Bomber Command.

Some of the bombers in Monday's attacks were in the United States only six days ago.

All the B-29s returned to their base.

Air groups from the two 27,000-ton U. S. Essex-class carriers in Task Force 77 standing off the West Coast of Korea bombed scattered targets over southwestern Korea Sunday.

In the second consecutive day of sweeps over the area, the Naval attack bombers, Panther jet fighters and Corsair fighters damaged transformer stations, power stations, factories, bridges, trucks and tanks.

They also blasted the city of Chinju on the southern front and the rail yard and airfield at Taejon.

The carrier-based aircraft strafed Red troop concentrations all along the rim of the United Nations beachhead and machinegunned small boats at several points off the southern end of Korea.

'Meager' Opposition

The planes met "meager" antiaircraft from a revetment north of Taejon, a Navy announcement said, and "the emplacement was strafed."

Land-based planes of the Far East Air Force had a busy Sunday, too.

A summary said F-51 Mustangs destroyed eight and damaged four Russian-built combat planes on the ground at Pyongyang and destroyed another at Namchon, 47 miles southwest of the Communist North Korean capital.

Three other planes were strafed on the ground at Kimpo airfield 18 miles northwest of Seoul, and Red-overrun capital of South Korea.

The Mustangs also fired fuel storage facilities and damaged warehouses and rail lines at Pyongyang. Power stations and supply dumps elsewhere in North Korea were damaged.

Two Mustangs crashed behind North Korean lines, the Air Force statement said. Both were believed hit by ground fire.

Harriman Has Closeup Look At Korean War

Tokyo, Aug 7 (AP).—W. Averell Harriman, President Truman's special assistant on foreign affairs, took a close-up look at the fighting in Korea today and came away "extremely impressed" by the teamwork of the Allied defense forces.

The support that American and Australian fighter planes are giving United States and South Korean ground troops impressed him the most, Harriman said on his return to Tokyo after a flight to the front.

Harriman visited a forward battalion command post in Korea while it was laying down an intense barrage.

"Nobody shot at me," he reported.

He also talked with Syngman Rhee, President of the Republic of Korea; Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker, commander of the Eighth Army, and John J. Muccio, American Ambassador.

The morale of Government officials and officers in Korea was "very high," Harriman said. "They seem very cheerful."

Harriman arrived in Tokyo Sunday and conferred with General MacArthur. Details of their talks were not disclosed.

The presidential envoy was scheduled to leave Tokyo Tuesday but his destination was not announced.

Reports that he would visit Chiang Kai-shek on Formosa were discounted by official Nationalist quarters in Taipei. They said no invitation to visit Formosa had been extended to Harriman.

Filipino Unit Of 5000 Men Is Offered

Manila, Aug. 7 (AP).—The Philippines government today offered to send immediately to Korea a fully-trained, fully-equipped regiment of 5000 combat infantry.

This marked a sharp change in policy.

President Quirino announced the offer to General MacArthur shortly after the Philippines Congress had approved dispatching the troops at its own expense.

If additional troops are needed, Quirino said, the government will begin training volunteers. However, he said, outside money would be needed to support such a program.

Quirino said the 5000 troops could serve wherever they might be needed. That was in answer to a question on whether the troops might aid in the defense of Formosa.

Senate President Mariano Jesus Cuenco sponsored the resolution in the upper house.

"We are called to the side of the United States not only by the duty of gratitude but also because as a member of the United Nations we are obliged to make our contribution to the rescue of Korean sovereignty from Communist aggression," Cuenco said.

Taft Sees Threat Of World War III In All-Out Arming

McConnelsville, Ohio, Aug. 7 (AP).—U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), today said all-out rearming by the United States "will almost certainly lead to World War III."

"The real problem for us," said Taft in an address here, is 'are we to outfit the armed forces to handle the Korean war, or are we going to build up our military forces in anticipation of an all-out war with Russia in perhaps two years?'

World War III would cost $50 billion dollars a year, he said, but the Korea cost would be only $15 billion dollars.

"I am opposed to wage and price controls at present," he said. "I believe we can pay as we go if we control consumer credit and reduce domestic expenditures.

"On the other hand, if we are going to build up against an all-out war with Russia, we'll have to have all-out controls."

House Passes Bill To Admit Brides Of Servicemen

The House yesterday unanimously passed a bill that would permit United States servicemen who marry Korean brides to bring them to this country.

The measure, which goes back to the Senate for consideration of House amendments, would waive racial restritcions in the immigration laws for alien wives and children of servicemen and veterans.

Sponsors of the bill said it was not drafted with Korea in mind, but admitted it probably would apply to American servicemen fighting there.

The House Judiciary Committee had reported there are about 760 alien wives and children of United States servicemen ineligible for admission to this country under present law. Many are in Japan.

Budapest Radio Calls For Tito's Death

Belgrade, Aug. 7 (NYHT).—The Budapest radio today called for "death to the Fascist Marshal Tito!"

This was said in Gelgrade to be the most explicit exhortation for the murder of the Marshal to be beamed into Yugoslavia by the radio stations of the Cominform.

Part of a broadcast instructing Cominform sympathizers in this country to sabotage the wheat harvest, it was put out by the Hungarian radio in a nightly dictation-speed program.

Reds Shell British Ship Off Hongkong

Hongkong, Aug. 7 (U.P.)—A Chinese Communist shore battery today shelled and machinegunned the British freighter Hangsang, injuring two British officers.

The attack occurred as the ship was passing Lamma Island, 7 miles south of Hongkong and it came 24 hours after a Communist junk fired on the American freighter Steel Rover.

The battery scored two hits on the Hangsang, but the second shell did not explode. An interior cabin and a port of the vessel's bulkhead were destroyed. A dozen shells fell near the ship.

Chief Engineer A. Brown and Third Mate A. Nelson were burned on the face and legs when a 12-pound shell exploded.

The Hangsang, formerly called the Empire Malta, is a 3500-ton vessel bound from Borneo with a general cargo.

Before the Steel Rover was hit Sunday with small caliber shells, Communist vessels outside this British Crown colony had fired on three vesels in the past week.

Officials yesterday thought the shots were primarily a warning to keep foreign craft away from the islands at the mouth of the Pearl River, which the Chinese Communists recently occupied.

Reds Now Claim 336 U. S. POWs, Broadcast Reveals

The Communists have claimed over the Pyongyang radio that 336 American war prisoners are being held in North Korean camps, Government monitors revealed yesterday.

It was the first such figure given by the Reds since July 15, when they claimed to hold 114 United States war prisoners.

The total was given in a propaganda appeal by a man identified by the Communists as an American second lieutenant. His text said he spoke for "336 prisoners of war who are here now."

Officials who monitored the broadcast refused to reveal the alleged identity of the speaker in line with their policy of protecting his family from pain and embarrasment.

Army authorities have said some Americans have been tortured until they agreed to broadcast statements that, from their awkward construction, obviously were drafted by the Communists.

More Ground Forces Set For Britain

London, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—Britain will increase its ground forces immediately to back up the nation's new rearmament campaign, Defense Minister Emanuel Shinwell said today.

Shinwell said service pay will be raised to enable the country to build up "a sufficient body of trained men" in its regular forces.

His announcement underlined growing Western fears, strengthened by the Korean fighting, that even large bodies of trained infantrymen will be necessary to forestall Communist aggression.

Anthony Eden, deputy leader of the Conservative Party, which has been critical of the government's defense measures, gave the opposition's support to Shinwell's proposal.

In a speech at Warwick, Eden warned that manpower, not money, is needed to halt Communist aggression. He called on the Western nations to increase their ground and air forces to meet the "great" danger of war.

As if in reply to Eden, Shinwell said in a speech:

"I must make it clear that there is no use providing equipment unless at the same time we produce a sufficient body of trained men. That means increased pay and there can be no delay."

He said he doubts Russia wants to provoke a third world war, but warned that a succession of incidents like Korea could lead to "serious trouble."

Eden, referring to the government's plan to increase annual defense expenditures to $3,080,000,000 with the hope of United States dollar aid, said:

"We must remember, whatever our rearmament plans, money is no substitute for manpower. Here in Britain our most immediate task is to increase the strength of the army and air force."

Eden, who was Britain's wartime Foreign Minister, said the problems confronting the West "are as formidable as any we have faced in our history."

Officials Speed To Macassar Strife Scene

Jakarta, U. S. I., Aug. 7 (AP)—Top Dutch and Indonesian commanders hastened to strife-torn Macassar today in an effort to check bloody fighting that has broken out there between federal troops and Indonesian soldiers awaiting discharge from the Dutch army.

The Dutch military commander in Indonesia, Maj. Gen. Scheffelaar and the commander of federal forces fighting rebels in Amboina, Col. Kawilarang, flew to the troubled east Indonesian capital this morning to try to restore peace.

The cause of the outbreak was not announced, but Macassar was the scene last April of an abortive rebellion by Indonesians in the Dutch army.

Indonesian Defense Minister Sultan Hamengku Buwono conferred on the crisis with President Soekarno and Premier Mohamed Hatta.

The sultan told reporters later that the situation in Macassar is confused and that army communications with the southwestern Celebes port are still cut off. He said there had been some deaths, but that accurate figures were not available.

This latest outbreak came as federal authorities were striving to check spreading rebel operations in the Amboina area, east of the Celebes.

Reports of additional trouble came from south central Java, where Antara, the Indonesian news agency, said a band of at least 1000 Moslem extremists had clashed with federal troops near Sumolangu village on Friday.

Antara said 30 Moslems and two soldiers were killed.

Canadians to Recruit Brigade For Korea 'or Where Needed'

Ottawa, Aug. 7 (AP). — Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent tonight announced that Canada will recruit a special brigade of infantry and supporting arms for use in Korea or anywhere else it may be needed.

Recruiting will begin Wednesday. Authoritative sources said the brigade would number between 4000 and 5000 men and would take at least six months to train. Use of the brigade in Korea would be subject to the approval of Parliament.

In a broadcast to the Nation, St. Laurent said the brigade will be "available for service in Korea as part of the United Nations forces if it can be most effectively used in that way when it is ready for service."

"It will be specially trained and equipped to be available for use in carrying out Canada's obligations under the United Nations Charter or the North Atlantic Pact," he explained.

The Cabinet decided not to send Canada's existing first-line regular units out of the country, St. Laurent said, because such a step would "dangerously weaken our own immediate defenses."

The Prime Minister also announced that Parliament will be recalled as soon as his government has time to gather more information and to formulate specific plans in connection with the expansion of Canada's defense program.

It is felt Parliament will meet within six or seven weeks.

Spaak Again Heads European Assembly

Germans Alert

McCloy Sees Parallel to Korea Action

London, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—United States High Commissioner John J. McCloy warned of a "possible parallel" between Germany and Korea on his arrival here tonight from Frankfurt.

Asked about the German reaction to Communist aggression in Korea, he said the Germans were bearing up "pretty good."

"There is very little jittery thought, although the Germans naturally are concerned," McCloy said. "A possible parallel is not lost on them."

McCloy arrived unexpectedly in an Air Force Skymaster. He explained he came "to check up on one or two things" with American Ambassador Lewis Douglas. He said he would stop in Paris to confer with American Ambassador David Bruce before returning to Frankfurt.

McCloy did not elaborate on his reference to a "parallel" between Korea and Germany. But high Allied officials have warned that the existence of a police army in Communist-run East Germany may precipitate civil war in the country, which, like Korea, is split into two parts.

Cellophane Prices Up

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—Price increases of 4 cents a pound on cellophane, effective on orders for delivery after September 1, were announced today by the Sylvania Division, American Viscose Corp.

Strasbourg, Aug. 7 (NYHT).—Bitter minority opposition to the reelection of President Paul-Henri Spaak developed today as the European Consultative Assembly opened its second annual session.

The movement to unseat Spaak was organized by members of Catholic and other right-wing parties of a number of European countries. It was based on objections to his role in the recent crisis involving the return of Leopold III to the Belgian throne and the delegation of power to Crown Prince Baudouin. Members charged that Spaak had acted undemocratically and was not fit to preside over the European assembly.

The anti-Spaak move failed when it became impossible to find another suitable candidate. Spaak, an advocate of close European union, was reelected by a vote of 90-23. Last year he was unanimously elected as the assembly's first president.

Members of the pro-Leopold Social Christian (Catholic) Party have been angered by Spaak's successful opposition to Leopold. However, they did not speak against him, but arranged for Dutch right-wingers to carry the ball. After Spaak's nomination was announced, an adjournment was moved by Peter Adrian Kersten, a Dutch Catholic.

This was a signal for a number of speeches against Spaak, including one by Sean MacEntee of Ireland, who charged that in a "constitutional revolution" Spaak had overthrown democratic principles in his own country.

Winston Churchill, British Conservative leader; Hugh Dalton, British Laborite; Andre Philipe, French Socialist, and Van Der Goes van Makers, Dutch Socialist, spoke in support of Spaak's nomination.

Eighteen deputies from the German Federal Republic, three from the Saar territory and three from Iceland were welcomed to the European Assembly by Spaak after he had taken the chair.

Spaak said he not would return to Brussels for the ceremony on Thursday of investing the royal powers in Crown Prince Baudouin.

First Step in Leopold's Abdication Up Tuesday

Brussels, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—The Belgian Parliament will meet Tuesday to act on a bill authorizing King Leopold III to hand down his powers to his eldest son, 19-year-old Crown Prince Baudouin, in the first step toward his abdication.

Turk Seeks Pact Entry Of Greece, Turkey

Strasbourg, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—Turkish Foreign Minister Fuad Koprulu today called for the inclusion of Greece and Turkey in the Atlantic Pact to plug holes in Western defense plans and insure "total peace."

He said inclusion of the two nations is necessary to sew up "the vital eastern Mediterranean." Exclusion of the two countries nearest the strategic Dardanelles is "dangerous to the security of the West," he warned.

Officer Swims River to Save Six Soldiers

With Eighth Army in Korea, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—The swimming ability of Lieut. Norman Debard of Amarillo, Tex., was credited today with saving six American soldiers, three of them wounded.

During a recent battle in which a company of the Thirty-fifth Regiment of the Twenty-fifth Division withdrew across a river under fire, Debard saw six men on the wrong side.

Debard stripped, entered the swirling water and swam to within shouting distance of the men. He learned that three could not swim and three were wounded too badly to swim.

He waded with them as far as possible and then towed each one across the deep part to safety.

State Department Calls For Farben Case Claims

By the United Press

The State Department yesterday warned persons with claims against the I. G. Farben industrial empire to file their claims promptly with the I. G. Farben control office in Frankfurt, Germany.

The department said creditors in Germany have three months to file claims, those in other parts of Europe, four months, and outside Europe, six months.

Korean Haystack Sails 3000 Feet When Strafed

Tokyo, Aug. 7 (AP).—Australian Mustang pilots strafed a haystack in enemy territory over Korea today—and it blew 3000 feet in the air.

The Australians did not explain just why they took a pass at the disguised ammunition dump, but a summary released through General MacArthur's headquarters quoted an unidentified squadron leader as saying:

"As I pulled out, I saw flame, smoke and bits and pieces go mushrooming past my tail. The blast started some local fires and just about devastated that bit of territory."

House Unit Hears Collins on Tanks

House war investigators delving into the Army's tank program were given a "highly confidential and secret" report yesterday by Gen. J. Lawton Collins, army chief of staff.

He appeared before a House Armed Services subcommittee to explain why American tanks were so inferior at the beginning of the Korean war and what is being done about it.

Reporters were told afterward that most of Collins' testimony was highly secret. But one member said he was "impressed."

Another said he was "surprised that we have so few good tanks."

Chairman Philip J. Philbin (D., Mass.) said his group will soon take an on-the-spot look at tank-building activities, probably visiting Detroit and the Aberdeen, Md., proving ground. He said his subcommittee will keep continuous watch over tank development.

The Army is ready to start a big-scale program of building new light and medium tanks as soon as Congress grants President Truman's request for more than ten billion dollars in new military funds. One of them, the experimental T-51, is believed to be the best light tank in the world.

The United States never has gone in for big tanks because they are primarily an offensive weapon and United States strategy has been mapped in terms chiefly of defense. There also has been some feeling in high military circles that new defensive weapons would offset tank power.

Although 2.36-inch bazookas proved ineffective against Russian-built tanks on Korea at the beginning of the war, larger 3.5-inch bazookas began knocking out Communist tanks with regularity when they reached the front.

Military experts said yesterday they believe this country's new "shaped-charge" ammunition also will help end the superiority of Communist tanks. They referred particularly to the 90mm. shell of the Patton and Pershing tanks and the 105mm. howitzer shell. Both, they said, have the ability to penetrate armor of North Korean tanks and destroy them.

CLOSED HEARINGS—Gen. J. Lawton Collins, U. S. Army Chief of Staff (center), yesterday gave a confidential report to a House Armed Services subcommittee investigating why American tanks were inferior to the Reds' at the beginning of the war in Korea. Subcommittee Chairman Philbin (D., Mass.), on left, said the group will study tank-building activities at Aberdeen, Md., in an effort to find out what is being done to improve United States tanks. At right is Committee Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.)

Mostly 'Green'

Reds Recruit In S. Korea, POW Says

U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters in Korea, Aug. 7 (AP).—Lim Kwang Won, a war prisoner, today said the North Korean First Division went into action near Hamchang with 6000 green troops and 3000 veterans.

The 20-year-old said:

Most of the 6000 new soldiers were picked up in the Seoul area of the South Korean Republic. He was impressed into the Red army five days after the fall of Seoul, the captured capital.

The division's troops marched for 24 hours and then were ordered to attack. The first division suffered heavy casualties in early fighting.

The division had only three pieces of artillery and one jeep. It had one light machinegun to a squad.

Lim's platoon and squad leaders were killed Saturday in battle with South Korean forces. He and others in his outfit did not know how to fight. He hid until the Reds retreated and then surrendered.

Reds Reported Using Stalingrad Veterans

Vatican City, Apg. 7 (AP).—North Korean soldiers now engaging American forces include some who fought with the Russians at Stalingrad, says a letter received from Korea by the Vatican's Congregation of Propaganda Fide (Propagation of the Faith).

The letter to the congregation, which is in charge of missionary work, said preparations for the North Korean attack "were carefully made by the Russians, using soldiers of Korean origin who have been in Russian territory for decades. . . . Many of these were war-toughened at Stalingrad and in other World War battles."

Ethiopia Gives $100,000 For U. N. Korean Forces

Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—Emperor Haile Selassie donated 100,000 Ethiopian dollars today to the United Nations to buy medical supplies for anti-Communist forces in Korea. The Emperor also said he was examining ways and means of giving military assistance to the U. N. forces.

DSC Awarded to Three For Kum River Action

Tokyo (Tuesday) Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Two lieutenants and a sergeant of the Twenty-fourth Infantry Division have been awarded Distinguished Service Crosses for gallantry in action during the American retreat to the Kum River line July 8-10. It was announced today.

Those cited were Sergt. Russell P. Taylor of Cranston, R. I.; First Lieut. James C. Little, of Fayette, Ala., and Second Lieut. Warren G. Lewis of Cartersville, Ga.

U. S. Officer Saved Piggy-Back by Enemy

Tokyo (Tuesday), Aug 8 (U.P.).—Second Lieut. Donald P. Bazzurro, of Staten Island, N. Y., today said a North Korean soldier carried him to safety piggy-back when Bazzurro was shot down behind enemy lines.

Bazzurro, an artillery observer with the Twenty-fourth Division, is recovering in Tokyo General Hospital. He said he volunteered as our air observer and went aloft with First Lieut. William H. Dussell.

Bazzurro broke a leg when an enemy plane shot down their spotter plane behind the lines.

"I captured the Red soldier and he immediately 'volunteered' to carry me piggy-back to safety within our lines," Bazzurro said. "The enemy was taking shots at me so we ran for it. The exact spot where we were standing was hit and mud was thrown all over me."

He said it took the Red soldier eight hours to carry him to safety.

Plane Bomb Plotter's Wife Wins Divorce

Los Angeles, Aug. 7 (AP).—Mrs. Betty Grant, 29-year-old dressmaker, today won a divorce from the husband who was convicted of planting a bomb on the airliner on which she and their two children had booked passage. She charged cruelty.

John Henry Grant, 32-year-old aircraft engineer, was convicted Thursday of six counts of attempted murder. He faces a maximum term of 120 years. Sentencing is set for September 5.

The bomb, placed in Mrs. Grant's luggage, was discovered before the plane took off.

Dalton, GOP Candidate, Requests Navy Duty

Donald H. Dalton, 2310 Colston dr., Silver Spring, Md., candidate for Republican nomination for member of the House of Delegates from Montgomery County, announced yesterday that he has requested active service with the Navy.

A war-time lieutenant commander, he said he would continue his candidacy for the House of Delegates as an anti-organization Republican.

Misfortune Marks Start of U. S. Attack

By Peter Kalischer

With U. S. Forces in Southern Korea, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—The Fifth Regimental Combat Team got stalled for a time this morning, by a combination of bad luck, uncanny North Korean intelligence and heavy resistance, in its part of the American offensive.

The men of the Fifth, brought here from Hawaii and including many troops of Japanese ancentry, ran into trouble as soon as they took off at 6:30 a. m.

It was necessary to transfer a dominating 1400-foot hill on the right flank from elements of the Fifth to elements of the Marines. In the process of transfer, a group of North Koreans slipped in between the American units. The Americans were driven off the hill and the enemy got command of the main road from it.

U. S. Tanks Rip Our Wires

Then American tanks, lumbering along the road, ripped up almost all the communication wires to the rear.

[Homer Bigart of the New York Herald Tribune said the Fifth Regiment was having to fight with old, rebuilt equipment, and that three trucks that had been lying around in Hawaii since the last war broke down in trying to haul up mortars.—Editor's note.]

The troops of the Fifth Regiment rode almost all night to the front in a three-mile convoy. The trucks, with lights on, drove at 40-yard intervals. The lights were doused 10 miles from the front, but the Reds evidently knew the Americans were there.

First came the blaze of a star-shell or rocket, which lighted up the hills along the front. Within a few minutes came the whine of shells, reaching for the road and for American artillery emplacements.

From then on, all morning, high-velocity enemy guns continued to rake command posts and frontal positions.

"They knew just where we were, and they knew just when we moved in," Col. John Michaelis, Lancaster, Pa., observed. Michaelis, commander of the Twenty-seventh Infantry Regiment was here on a bushman's holiday to see the offensive start.

Third Oldest Regiment

We crouched behind a bluff and watched the shells explode, some of them 25 yards away, others on another command post half a mile away.

[Correspondent Bigart said there were casualties in both the Marine and Fifth Regiment posts. So accurate was the enemy artillery, he said, that a battery of American 155-mm. guns was bracketed closely and silenced during most of the morning.]

The motto of the Fifth Regiment is "I will try, Sir." It is the third oldest regiment in the Army, and the motto dates back to the Battle of Lundy's Lane in the War of 1812. Then the British were shelling American positions from a dominant hill, as the North Koreans were doing today.

"We will lose unless you take that hill," the commanding general told a colonel in the battle of Lundy's Lane.

"I will try, Sir," the colonel said. His men did, and the motto stuck.

The men of the Fifth are teamed on the "buddy" system—one American of European ancestry, one of Japanese ancestry.

Democrats Buy Building for HQ

The Washington Post

FOR $250,000—Purchase of the building at 1733-35 De Sales st. nw., for a new headquarters was announced yesterday by Democratic Chairman William M. Boyle, jr. (Story, Page 1.)

ports from Ohio. "Every day that goes by makes me more confident of this."

He predicted also that Alex Campbell, former Assistant Attorney General, would defeat Senator Homer Capehart, Indiana Republican.

"I expect the Democrats to pick up some House seats as well as additional Senate seats," he added, "but I haven't finished all the checks."

Chairman Boyle said that the new headquarters building on De Sales st, should be ready for occupancy early next year. He explained that it would serve not only as a year-round headquarters for the party, but would be the main headquarters for the presidential campaign in 1952 and for similar quadrennial battles thereafter.

The Democrats have had their national headquarters in New York in presidential years since 1912 at least.

New York is being given up as a national headquarters in presidential years, not only because of the new building but also because of Washington's rise as a metropolis and its growing importance as a news center.

Since 1932, when Franklin D. Roosevelt first ran for President, the national headquarters in New York has been in the Biltmore Hotel.

"We will continue to have a treasurer's office in the Biltmore," Boyle said, "but the main campaign will be run from Washington."

The Democratic National Committee now has rented space in the Ring Building, having moved there in 1947. Before that it had been in the Mayflower Hotel and the National Press Building.

The building just purchased on De Sales st. is of brick and stone construction and was erected in 1927. At committee headquarters, it was learned that the building was bought with borrowed money. It will be operated by a trust, directed by the committee. The loans will be retired with the money that the committee pays in rent in the years ahead.

Permissive Curbs Approved

eight hours on the emergency measure during the day.

Maybank said the committee wrote into the measure "hundreds of amendments," many of them technical and most of them of a minor nature, he added.

The job of putting those amendments into final shape and preparing a committee report on the measure probably will delay the opening of Senate debate on the bill until Thursday, Maybank said.

The earlier plan had been to bring the bill up on Wednesday.

The House, meanwhile, will make another effort today to agree on some sort of an economic controls bill, possibly one patterned principally after the Senate committee measure.

In voting to give Mr. Truman practically a free hand to impose over-all wage-price-rationing controls if and when he saw fit, the Senate committee appeared to have approved substantially the kind of bill Mr. Truman has said he would accept.

Under the measure the President could invoke general price control and rationing any time he decided such a step was warranted. He could invoke general wage control at the same time.

Only apparent restriction on full discretion for the President is a provision saying he would be compelled to put wage curbs into effect if price ceilings previously had been established "on materials, services, and property comprising a substantial part of all sales at retail and materially affecting the cost of living."

The bill also authorizes the President to try to work out voluntary agreements with respect to wages, prices and supplies before restorting to mandatory controls. There is nothing in the measure, however, that would require the voluntary steps to be taken before use of mandatory curbs.

The committee approved a provision that would keep the proposed new law in effect through June 30, 1952.

Purge Terror Again Lifts Head In Russia Over Word Battles

Moscow, Aug. 7 (AP).—There have been changes of leadership in the field of philology (study of words), Sergei Vavilov, president of the Academy of Sciences, announced today in an article in Pravda.

(A purge in this field has been expected ever since Prime Minister Stalin during May suddenly blasted the reigning language theory, that of the late philologist N. Y. Marr. Stalin indicated that some of Marr's precepts, which had reigned supreme in the USSR for a long time, were tantamount to sabotage.)

Vavilov's article in the Communist Party newspaper discussed the recent statements of Prime Minister Stalin on philology in which the Soviet leader emphasized the importance of free discussion in science. The article also touched on the field of atomic science, in which Vavilov said Soviet physicists have developed much that is entirely new.

With regard to philology, Vavilov said:

"The question of the state of affairs in the central organs of philology of the Academy of Sciences was discussed at a meeting of the Presidium of the Academy. Results of the discussion on phi lology clearly show methodological mistakes of many leading philologists that were connected with great organizational errors. There existed a leading group in the central scientific philological group that allowed no criticism of the so-called 'new teachings' of the late academician Marr."

Vavilov repeated Stalin's charge that persons who criticized Marr's teachings were removed and that others who went along with Marr's teaching were advanced not for professional but for factional reasons.

Court's Order Upheld, Waltham Plant to Reopen

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 7 (U.P.). An eleventh-hour legal development assured the Waltham Watch Co. today that it would be able to reopen its plant.

Judge Peter Woodbury of the United States Court of Appeals sustained a lower court order that would allow the reopening just as a company trustee said the watch concern was "at the zero hour."

The court order requires the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to turn over to Waltham trustees $500,000 cash collateral held on a four million dollar loan. The trustees will use the money to complete unfinished watches in time for Christmas trade, which the company said accounts for two-thirds of its sales.

Idaho Tops Fights In Primaries Today

By The Associated Press

A doubleheader senatorial primary in Idaho, involving the seats of Democrat Glen Taylor and Republican Henry Dworshak, is a feature political attraction today.

Arkansas Democrats hold a second primary in which Senator J. William Fulbright and six incumbent House members are unopposed. The voting also determines nominees for a few State offices not decided in the first primary July 25.

Nebraska selects nominees for Governor and four seats in the House, after a quiet campaign.

Taylor, a one-time tent-show performer serving his first term in the Senate, has declared himself back in the Democratic Party after an unsuccessful race for Vice President on the Progressive Party ticket in 1948.

Opposing him for the Democratic nomination for the six-year term are Representative Compton I. White and former Senator D. Worth Clark.

Three Republicans want a chance at Taylor's seat: Governor C. A. Robins, Representative Sanborn and State Senator Herman Welker.

Dworshak, a former Senator and House member, was appointed to his present Senate seat by Governor Robins upon the death of Democratic Senator Bert H. Miller. Former Representative Abe McGregor Goff and Fentress H. Kuhn, a Boise businessman, are his rivals for the Republican nomination for the remaining four years of Miller's elected term.

Five Democrats are contesting for the four-year seat: F. M. Bistline of Pocatello, former Democratic National Committeeman; Claude J. Burtenshaw, Ricks College professor; Edwin M. Holden, chief justice of the State Supreme Court; Robert L. Summerfield, Twin Falls businessman; and Mrs. La Vera Swope, Boise businesswoman.

Idaho also selects nominees today for the governorship and its two House seats.

End Gambling, Sheriffs Told

Tallahassee, Fla., Aug. 7 (AP).—Gov. Fuller Warren today clamped a 30-day deadline on Florida gambling.

In personally signed letters to the State's 67 sheriffs and 185 constables, the Governor gave them until September 6 to end gaming under a threat of summary suspension.

He told each officer if he found any gambling in his bailiwick after that date he would presume the officer guilty of neglect of duty and put him out of office without a hearing.

The move carried the most drastic threat of several Warren has made since the Kefauver Senate Crime Committee sat in sensational hearings last month at Miami. Both before and after the hearings Florida newspapers have kept up a drumfire of disclosures hardly less sensational.

The Governor already has suspended two sheriffs and two constables for failure to enforce the gambling laws. He exonerated two sheriffs and two constables after hearings.

Grow Reaches Moscow

Moscow, Aug. 7 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Robert W. Grow arrived today to take up his new duties as United States Military Attache to Russia. He came by train from Leningrad.

Four Missing Witnesses Here for Quiz

The Senate Crime Investigating Committee will resume public hearings on Florida gambling and its political ramifications with a session at the Senate Office Building at 10 a. m. Wednesday.

Four of the 10 missing witnesses at the recent Miami hearings of the committee are due to turn up this time.

One will be William H. Johnston, boss of Chicago's Sportsman's Park as well as four Florida dog tracks. The Senators want to ask him about the $154,000 contribution he is supposed to have made to the 1948 campaign of Florida's Gov. Fuller Warren. There is a Florida law forbidding any contributions from persons connected with dog tracks.

The other witnesses are all connected with the S and G syndicate, the Miami Beach bookmaking outfit that reported a 1948 gross income of more than $26,500,000. They are Ben Cohen, the syndicate's lawyer, and these members: Samuel Cohen, Jules Levitt, Leo Levitt, Harold Salvey and Edward Rosenhaum. Samuel Cohen, Jules Levitt and Salvey were missing in Miami. Cohen was in a hospital at the time and was excused.

Missing, however, will be Harry Russell, identified as the member of the Chicago Capone gang who muscled into the Florida syndicate last spring. Russell was reported by a Chicago attorney as having declared "Binaggio's case history"—the murder of Kansas City politician-gambler Charles Binaggio—was an example to him. In other words, he was afraid of being murdered if he talked to the Senators about how he got into S and G. Later, however, Russell sent Chairman Kefauver (D., Tenn.) a telegram saying he never authorized the attorney to say that. But he still won't come out of hiding to testify.

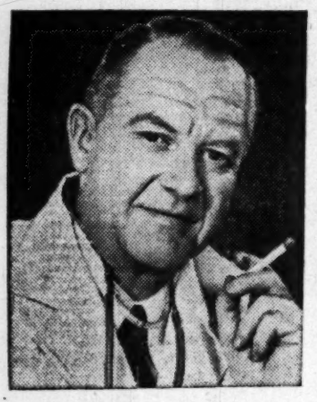
HOW MILD CAN A CIGARETTE BE?

As disclosed in a Nationwide Survey:

More Doctors Smoke Camels
THAN ANY OTHER CIGARETTE!



113,597 doctors in the 48 States polled by 3 leading independent research groups!

An actual fact, not a guess—a thorough national poll, not just a spot check! 113,597 doctors were asked, "What cigarette do you smoke, Doctor?" The brand named most—CAMEL!

Doctors in every branch of medicine—surgeons, throat specialists, physicians—were asked to name their favorite cigarette. The brand named most was CAMEL!

If you're already a Camel smoker, you can readily understand the doctors' preference for Camels. If you've never given Camels a real day-to-day tryout, make your own Camel 30-Day Mildness Test.

It's the sensible test! No short cuts. No tricks. You don't have to base your decision on a one-time, one-puff comparison. Not just a quick inhale or exhale. Instead, you smoke Camels regularly...for 30 days. You judge Camel's choice tobaccos on a steady, pack-after-pack basis. You use your own "T-Zone" as your proving ground. Compare Camels for mildness—for flavor. Then decide! When you make the Camel 30-Day Test, you'll know why...

MORE PEOPLE SMOKE CAMELS THAN ANY OTHER CIGARETTE!

LOVELY OPERA STAR, NADINE CONNER, best loved for her roles in "Rigoletto" and "Barber of Seville," made this statement about cigarettes: "When I smoke, I have to think of my voice. I made the Camel 30-Day Mildness Test. It proved Camels agree with my throat. They're mild and taste so good!"

Cross Section, U.S.A.

PILOT Mary Morrison says: "Camels passed my smoking test. They agree with my throat. And what flavor!"

COWBOY Eddy Akridge reports: "Camels' smooth-smoking mildness sure agrees with my throat. And for taste—it's Camels, too!"

DECORATOR Melanie Kahane states: "Yes, I made my own Camel 30-Day Mildness Test. It was fun! It's Camels for me!"

NEWSPAPERMAN W. Longgood remarks: "Camel flavor and mildness get my vote! It's Camels for me, for keeps!"

Cleveland Indians' Bob Lemon a Camel Fan!

"The 30-Day Test really opened my eyes," says Bob. "Camels have a mildness all their own and they're welcome to my throat!"

Noted Throat Specialists Report on 30-DAY TEST of Camel Smokers

Not One Single Case of Throat Irritation Due to Smoking CAMELS!

Yes, these were the findings of noted throat specialists after a total of 2,470 weekly examinations of the throats of hundreds of men and women who smoked Camels—and only Camels—for 30 consecutive days.

Make your own 30-Day Camel MILDNESS Test in your "T-Zone"

That's T for Throat, T for Taste. See how mild a cigarette can be!

Broken-Homes Cases

Further evidence of inadequacies in our judicial system in the handling of marital problems is to be found in Judge Kirkland's proposal for the creation of a family court. "As things now stand," he comments, "we in the District Court can do practically nothing to prevent a child from going astray. And the Juvenile Court can do nothing to prevent the broken home which so often results in the rejected, delinquent child." Judge Kirkland's plan is to set up a family court composed of two judges from the District Court and Judge Cockrill of the Juvenile Court. The judges would rotate so that they would hear different phases of family problems. Testimony could be taken by trial examiners or by the Domestic Relations Commissioner. Without attempting to examine the plan in detail, it obviously reflects a sincere and thoughtful approach to a difficult problem.

Chief Judge Laws' concern over somewhat the same problem led, some months ago, to his sponsorship of a marital affairs counsel system similar to that operating in Detroit. His complaint was that the courts find themselves in a position of impotence and futility in dealing with divorce cases. They must decide emotionally inflamed controversies without adequate facts to go upon. A marital relations counsel, he pointed out, could provide the judges with much of the background information they now lack. The District Bar Association turned thumbs down on the proposal, but in our opinion the problem behind it will continue to plague the courts and thousands of individuals whose lives are directly affected until something is done about it.

This is the type of problem for which there is no easy solution. No individual judge, lawyer or social worker is likely to come up with the full answer. But we have no doubt that a committee of judges and lawyers could vastly improve the present system. It seems to us precisely the type of dilemma that ought to be submitted to a body of experts. To be sure, the proposal for a marital affairs counsel was studied and approved by a committee of judges and a Bar Association committee, and this newspaper favored their recommendations. But it is possible that a study on a broader base would lead to recommendations that would command more widespread support. Improvement of the present method of dealing with cases involving broken homes and juvenile delinquency is more important than the adoption of any particular system.

Communist Churches

It is evident that the Communist rulers of Catholic countries in central and eastern Europe have been instructed by Moscow to resolve their bitter conflicts with the church according to a standard formula devised by the Kremlin. The formula is not a new one. It was worked out in the early years of the Bolshevik revolution when the Communist leaders were striving to break the power of the Orthodox Church. A segment of the Orthodox clergy was induced to renounce its allegiance to the Patriarch Tikhon and to form a schismatical body called the Living Church, to which the Communists for a time extended financial and other forms of encouragement. When the Orthodox resistance had been crushed, the Living Church, having served its purpose, was quietly liquidated.

In 1943, after two decades of continuous persecution and furtive existence, the Russian Orthodox Church was suddenly revived under atheist patronage and the patriarchate restored. This at the time was widely accepted as proof that the provisions of the new Soviet constitution concerning freedom of religion were being taken seriously by the Kremlin itself. But it gradually became clear that the whole purpose of the revival was propagandistic, designed partly for its effect upon Russian allies in the war against Hitler and partly to further the Kremlin's plans of postwar advances into Orthodox countries. Under the new patriarchate the Russian Orthodox Church has proved a docile instrument of the Kremlin.

In 1946 the formula was applied again to the Ruthenian Uniat Church of the Ukraine. The important leaders of that body, including the Metropolitan of Lwow and many of the lesser clergy, were thrown into concentration camps. At the same time a few obscure clerics were induced to convoke a synod at which the allegiance of the Ruthenian Church to the Holy See was declared dissolved and its submission to the Stalinist Patriarchate of Moscow proclaimed.

Now in Czechoslovakia the Communists have seized control of the Catholic theological schools. They have drastically revised the requirements for admission to these schools and have shortened the period required for ordination. All courses in these schools are to be taught hereafter according to Marxist - Leninist - Stalinist principles. Plainly the purpose is to recruit as quickly as possible a body of clergy that will be prepared to imitate the action of the Ukrainian synod and declare the Czechoslovakian Catholic Church wholly independent of the Vatican. Beyond much doubt the formula will be applied also in Hungary and Poland.

Molotov In Peking

The report that Molotov has arrived in Peking for a conference with Mao Tze-tung has set up a hubbub of speculation. So we might as well add to it. It is our assumption that in respect of Korea the Russians have misled the Chinese Communists. Presumably Moscow had forewarned the Chinese of what it would be pleased to call the North Korean move to throw out the American imperialists, and the assurance must have been added that this would in no way prejudice the Chinese Communist effort to invade Formosa. What, however, do the Chinese Communists find? Not only that the United States, contrary to Muscovite intelligence, has led the world in holding the "North Korean" blitz, but that as part of the American riposte President Truman has put the Seventh Fleet between Formosa and the Chinese mainland. This is a barrier hardly to the Communist taste. Clearly, the subject will be well to the fore in the talks in Peking, with Mao Tze-tung doing most of the questioning.

It is as much to the Russian interest to egg on the Chinese Communists in the capture of Formosa as to keep them out of Korea. Russian policy, as we said yesterday, is to make the Siberian maritime provinces, Korea and Manchuria, a single enclave tributary to Russia. The area is as nearly as any other area in the entire non-American world an Asiatic Ruhr. This is the reason that Molotov is likely to be firmly opposed to any proffer he may get from Mao to enter the Korean campaign. Molotov seems bound to divert the subject to the problem of Formosa. One can imagine Mao Tze-tung suggesting that what has happened in Korea has made his task far more difficult, if not insuperable. What is Molotov likely to answer? Surely that what he will call the defeats sustained by the Americans in Korea constitute the demonstration that America is no problem. Like Chiang Kai-shek, the Russians, their eyes on western Europe, want to precipitate a Chinese-American collision—to get the Communists to act as a Pied Piper in luring America into big-scale hostilities in China.

Whether Mao Tze-tung will fall into the trap—baited, as it may be, with promises of Russian aid by air and submarine—is unknown. Russia has hitherto been successful in taking the Chinese Communists for a ride. Perhaps the greatest aid that Chinese Communists gave to Moscow was when they kidnapped Chiang Kai-shek in 1936 and released him only on his pledge to fight the Japanese. This action relieved Russia from its own fear of a Russo-Japanese collision. The Chinese, in other words, did Russia's dirty work for it. It might be done again, but—again—it might not be. Mao may boggle over a dovetailing of his strategy to Russia's needs—much as Tito boggled when confronted by the same pressure after America had taken up the Muscovite challenge in Greece. Tito's major interest lay in absorbing Trieste, but Stalin still insisted that, in spite of the American intervention in Greece, he should tackle Salonika; and Tito balked. Much depends on what happens in Peking.

Defense By Committee

If the committee system of government does not work in domestic civil affairs, it certainly won't work in an international defense arrangement where clearcut decision and responsibility are imperative. Former Prime Minister Paul Henri Spaak of Belgium has recognized the inadequacy of the committee system in Western defense planning. Writing in the New York Herald Tribune, he assails the progress of combined defense under the Atlantic Pact as "ridiculously slow." He calls for unified direction—for "a first-class person of great experience, of great authority, and of great energy. Someone who would take in hand the military execution of the Atlantic Pact and who would be personally responsible."

Mr. Spaak's plea is a forthright statement of what many Atlantic Pact participants privately are beginning to recognize must be forthcoming. A stab was made toward more firmness and consistency of direction by the appointment of the permanent Council of Deputies, and the American deputy, Mr. Charles M. Spofford, seems to have made some progress in galvanizing his European colleagues into faster action during the meeting just concluded in London. The sticking point in unified direction has been the European feeling that the commander ought to be an American, presumably General Bradley. To the extent that this would be a shifting of responsibility to the United States, it would be unwholesome; besides General Bradley has other areas to worry about. But it is becoming apparent that the program will not get into high gear until there is a good deal more centralized direction than there is today—until there is power, within broad limits, to assign quotas and missions.

It requires no over-all commander, however, to call attention to the disparity in defense expenditures. Up till now the United States has lagged, devoting 5.9 percent of its national income to defense as opposed to 7.4 percent by Britain and 6.1 by the Netherlands. Since Korea the United States percentage has, of course, been greatly increased; Britain, too, plans to step up spending heavily, and Denmark, France and Canada have announced expansion plans. But there is a good deal of room for equalization of the proportionate burden. Mere amounts of money, to be sure, are no criterion; it is how the money is spent that counts. On this score the European nations could contribute enormously through munitions manufacture—by making more weapons not only for themselves, but also for their neighbors and for the United States.

Although total Western manpower equals that of Russia and her satellites in Europe, there is no hope that the West could match her except under similar regimentation. Hence, what the West is aiming at is enough force in being to avert disaster, a strong retaliatory force (strategic bombers with atom bombs) and then sufficient land, sea and air forces to hold the line during mobilization. It is clear that the only real superiority the West can hope to muster is in technology—in superior weapons and industrial potential. Some of these weapons are already in sight. But Russia's new boldness increases the urgency for advancing the readiness date on Western defense. The time has come to end the subcommittees, paper studies and quibbling over national pride—in short, to stop talking and start doing.

Medical Education

When the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee recently tabled a bill proposing Federal aid to medical, dental, nursing and public health schools, it was not aware that a desperate need for more graduates of such schools would very speedily develop. If the need was not sufficiently plain then, it certainly ought to be so now. The Army has issued a call to reserve officers in the Medical Corps to meet the critical need arising out of the Korean crisis. As mobilization progresses, greater numbers of medical men and nurses will be needed. The Nation has far too few of them even for normal peacetime conditions.

A program to aid the schools producing such personnel cannot, of course, cure the present scarcity. But it can lay the groundwork for correction of a situation which threatens the country's health even in normal times and seriously impairs security in times like the present. The shortage of doctors is acute. The shortage of dentists is scarcely less so. The shortage of trained nurses is very much worse. The problem arises not from any dearth of young men and women eager to enter these fields but from a dearth of institutions qualified to educate them for these professions.

The proposed legislation would help accredited medical, dental, nursing and public health schools to expand their facilities and increase their enrollment. It would make a Federal contribution up to $500 for each medical student currently enrolled—a fraction of the cost of his medical education—and up to $1000 for each new student added to a school's roster. The ceiling is set somewhat lower in the case of dental schools and nursing schools. In addition, the bill would provide up to five million dollars for construction aid to such institutions.

The measure was passed by the Senate but tabled until today by the House Interstate Commerce Committee. When it comes up, we hope it will receive a favorable report. No form of Federal aid can make a more direct and useful contribution to the country's health. No form of promoting the public welfare is more urgent.

Help In Korea

Although the response of other United Nations members to the U. N. call for tangible help in Korea has not been overwhelming, it is nonetheless significant. Prime Minister Menzies of Australia told the other day of plans for a "first-class combat group" in cooperation with New Zealand. Britain has promised troops along with Canada, Turkey and Thailand, and Bolivia has offered to furnish 30 officers. Volunteers, of course, have proffered their services in many other nations. This is in addition to the sea and air support now being given by Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, the Netherlands and France.

The limiting factor here is time—and the ability of the contributing nations to transport and equip their own forces. The most urgent need in Korea is trained manpower, as is demonstrated by the feverish manner in which troop units in this country are being stripped to supply reinforcements. Raw forces from other nations which had to be trained and outfitted probably could not be brought to bear in time.

This does not mean, however, that the offers should be sneezed at. The Anzacs, created an enviable reputation for toughness in World War I, and it undoubtedly is within the capability of Australia and New Zealand to dispatch some units quickly. It would be well worth the diversion of American shipping to take up Turkey's offer of 4500 men. The Turks know and hate Stalinist aggression from first-hand experience with it. They are a fine example—to us as well as the western Europeans—of a nation whose nerves have been strengthened rather than weakened by the war upon them which for five long years the Kremlin has unremittingly waged. Their offer is a demonstration of their fearlessness. Here they are, living next door to the bristling Cossack, yet willing, even delighted, to fight with us on the battlefields of Korea. A regiment or more of Turkish fighting men would prove a formidable weapon against the aggressors—and an inspiring one.

It is important not to forget, in the desire to enlist more help, that Korea is only one of many world tension spots and that the dispatch of troops to Korea at the expense, say, of western European defense would be foolhardy. Nevertheless, the principle of broad representation in the Korean fighting is important, psychologically as well as materially. The conviction must be brought home to the aggressors that this is a United Nations action in fact as well as in name. It is likewise essential that people all over the world be made to feel that they are participating in a world responsibility.

Land For Koreans

According to a recent report in your columns, the fundamental need and desire of the vast masses of Asia, is land. Give the peasant land and you give him freedom, the only freedom he really understands. The report further relates that MacArthur understood this need, gave the Japanese peasants land, thus making them "impervious to communism."

I should like to accept this report at face value. If it is true, it seems to me to suggest what our economic and propaganda answer to communism could be, to expose the Communist fraud. The Communists give with one hand and take away with the other. They give the peasants land and then impose collectives. They give the workers factories and then enslave them to the factories with quotas, restrictions against transfer, union officials imposed by the party machinery, and benefits attainable only by toeing the party line. They give the people "democracy" which turns out to be totalitarian dictatorship.

Are we prepared to seize the initiative in the Communist fraud? What are we offering the Korean grass roots? The thirty-eighth parallel? Fulfillment of treaty commitments? And if so do we seriously expect to meet with success in Korea, in all of Asia? As your reporter points out, it is within the American tradition, and apparently according to American precedent, to really offer the Koreans and the Asiatics what they really want, namely land. What is more, can we not show that when we give it, we don't take it away; we fight to protect what we have given? This, of course, means to follow a policy of expropriation in Asia, contrary to the interests of the landlord and capitalist cliques of Rhee and Chiang. It means that we give the peasants land first, and education in democracy second.

Are we prepared to follow such a policy, assuming that it is essential to win the Asiatic masses and make them "impervious to communism?" It means tipping the balance in favor of our own liberal, freedom-loving, and democratic tradition against our capitalistic and reactionary tradition. It means, perhaps, favoring the former tradition here at home as well as abroad lest we provide the Communists with the ammunition for labeling us as a fraud. We can't be perfect, but can we play it straight and square in terms of the needs and interests closest to the Koreans and Asiatics rather than in terms of our own dignity?. SIDNEY A. FINE.

Falls Church, Va.

U. N. Draft

It is evident that what we have in Korea is not really a United Nations army, but a United States Army. It is equally evident that we ought to make it a U. N. army. This could be accomplished by such steps as the following:

1. The setting up of a general staff responsible to the United Nations, organized by the United Nations, established by vote of the U. N. Assembly, etc.

2. A truly universal system of military conscription, with a U. N. draft board which registered and conscripted men from all the nations of the U. N.

Only if such steps are taken can we convince the world that this is really a U. N. action, not a U. S. action over which to conceal its nudity, a U. N. cloak has been hastily flung. Only in this way, also, can the burden of this war be shared fairly among the nations, so that Uncle Sam need not carry it all.

Alaska Forests

Of the numerous attempts to acquire large areas of our public domain in a roundabout manner, none exceeds the House-passed Lemke Bill, H. R. 4424. This bill would open up most of the Alaska national forests to homesteading by veterans in tracts up to 2560 acres each.

The Alaska national forests are located in rugged areas and are unsuitable for farming. They do contain a great wealth of timber, water-power, minerals and perhaps oil. Hunting fishing, trapping and recreational values contained in those areas are also becoming of increasing importance.

Those homesteads would be beyond the means of the veterans to hold and develop on a sustained basis. The veterans would be forced to relinquish their deeds to such homesteads in a like manner in which the timber barons of old acquired valuable timber rights for a mere pittance.

National security demands that the Alaska national forests be retained by our Government to supplement our dwindling forest resources. It is gratifying to note that the veterans themselves can see through this whole plot and the manner in which they would be tricked out of a part of their national heritage and birthright.

Reoccupying Korea

At this crisis in human affairs, the writer wishes to affirm belief in the following words: "Evil cannot be overcome by evil, but only by good."

Reflect on these words of Walter Lippmann's: "In order to reoccupy South Korea to the thirty-eighth parallel, we shall have to destroy by air bombardment all the principal cities and the main public utilities and industries of North and South Korea."

The most serious charge against the Communist Party is that it believes it can do evil and promote good. But are we not making the same mistake? Entirely aside from the ethical nature of our acts, which should be the first consideration, such a savage proceeding would make our professed Christianity a word of hatred and loathing in the minds of the Asiatic peoples.

Judgment Day

On the front page of your issue of August 3 are two feature articles, side by side. One is headed very matter-of-factly, "Gearing for the Hydrogen Bomb—DuPont Given Responsibility for Developing New A-Bomb Plants." Adjoining this is Paul Hume's article captioned, "Triumph at the Water Gate—16 Kettle Drums Help Roar Out Berlioz's Judgment Day Music."

Someone must have had a grim sense of humor to couple the two articles so neatly! Or was it a mere coincidence?

Again we are reminded of the very wise words of E. B. White to the effect that unless we get together as competent and adequate world citizens to resolve our world problems and act like intelligent adults, we shall "go the way of the dinosaur and the heath hen who didn't belong here—either."

Selling Our Way

Even if we go to war with Russia, we still will have to convert the Russians to the American viewpoint. We will still have to learn them, sell them the American way.

Why not do it now, in spite of the barrier of the Iron Curtain? The Iron Curtain is surely easier to overcome than Russian armed forces. Why do we not change minds directly, through propaganda, using our best American salesmanship?

Certainly we should arm to the teeth, and in double quick time. But we certainly ought to concentrate with equal effort in selling the American way, by voice, idea and deed—to Russia and the world.

Curing Aggression

I give my heartfelt amen to Marquis Child's column of August 3, favoring the establishment of permanent U. N. agencies to deal with such situations as that in Korea. However, I do not believe that U. N. observers and a U. N. police force are a sufficient answer. The real question always is: What situations cause these areas to be danger spots? And also, how can we deal with the problem before it becomes critical?

Well, how do we deal with it here? By peaceful means, through the force of public opinion and the regular arms of the Government, utilizing freedom of speech, press assembly and petition. Since improvement in any situation requires not only changes by those who injure but improvement in thought and action by the injured parties, we judge that a problem is not ripe for consideration and public action until the aggrieved can state their case.

For this reason it is essential that the United Nations Covenant on Human Rights include the right of petition both by individuals and groups, to a permanent international body, empowered with the duty to hear and report alleged violations of international agreements. Think of the salutary effect an international Drew Pearson could have in fearlessly putting the finger on sore spots so that they might be cured before the doctor had to kill the patient to eliminate the disease.

Midcentury Conference

A small bear loses his mother in a forest fire, is rescued and becomes famous. A small baby loses both parents, has his picture in the paper, and in a few days apparently is forgotten.

No, he is not forgotten; he is in a comfortable crib in his own cubicle, fed in the loving arms of a white uniformed nurse. All this is paid for by Protective Services of the Board of Public Welfare.

In the meantime, the Women's Bureau, is hunting for his mother, not to punish her, but to help her. Every baby needs a mother. A nurse can be devoted, but she is only a substitute. This search also costs money, tax money.

Private individuals wouldn't dislike the personal property tax if we knew that it was thoroughly and equitably collected and that every cent was spent by the District to take care of its children. Some need shelter, food and clothing, some medical and mental hygiene care, and others all of these. When the Community Chest fails in its goal the burden falls more heavily on the public agencies.

And this is the year of the White House Midcentury Conference on Children and Youth, and the District of Columbia has no money to take part. Must guns be our only incentive?

Military And Civil Policy

Teamwork Lacking

TWO RECENT episodes show that the diplomats and the military in our Government are still reluctant at times to play on the same team. This lack of team play was one of the reasons for the tragedy of Korea.

The first episode involves General MacArthur's visit to Chiang Kai-shek on the island of Formosa. According to a widely circulated rumor, State Department officials knew nothing of the visit until word of it came over the news tickers in the department in Washington.

That is not altogether accurate. Secretary of State Dean Acheson and one or two of his assistants knew that MacArthur or a military mission named by him would visit Chiang to appraise the situation on the island.

Efforts were made to persuade MacArthur to take a diplomatic officer with him so that the military and the political approach would be coordinated. MacArthur was not persuaded. He went off on his own and the State Department was left to discover as best it could what he had learned and what he said to Chiang.

The conference between the generalissimo and the general was bound to have world-wide repercussions and especially in Asia. It could be the preface to a commitment by the United States to fight against the millions of Red Chinese soldiers on the mainland of China. It came as the vital relationship between the United States and India's Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru had reached an uncertain stage.

IN WASHINGTON Acheson faced a press conference with little knowledge of what MacArthur's visit signified. All he could say in response to the inevitable questions was that the issue of sending arms to Chiang was being studied within the framework of President Truman's declared intention to try to prevent a Communist invasion of Formosa.

MacArthur has, of course, long been a law unto himself. While the second episode has less shattering implications, it is almost more revealing.

Lieut. Gen. James A. Van Fleet returned to New York from 2½ years as administrator of American military aid to Greece. Van Fleet by all reports has done a good job and he has received merited praise. But on arriving in New York he gave an interview in which he made certain extraordinary political statements. The New York Times quoted him as follows:

"As a matter of fact, civil liberties exist in too great a measure for the good of Greece. Although the Communist Party is outlawed, as it should be here, Communist collaborators, masquerading under different labels, are still in the government. The shooting phase is over, but the Communists will continue to bore from within."

This statement by a man in the uniform of the United States Army was, first of all, a direct attack on a friendly foreign government. It cut across the policy of the State Department in Greece and in particular it was a rebuke to the former American Ambassador to Greece, Henry F. Grady.

IN HIS service in Athens Grady's avowed aim was to encourage the development of a middle-ground government that would have real popular support, which was a lot more than could be said for the cynical rightists who had been holding power. The belief here is that he succeeded admirably and as a dubious reward he has been sent as Ambassador to Iran where it is hoped he will be able to reconcile warring factions and help in achieving a sound government.

When Grady learned of Van Fleet's statement, he sent some scorching cables from Tehran. He pointed out what he had reported before—that Van Fleet had stepped beyond his military authority to interfere politically in Greece.

Averell Harriman, now the President's reconciler and general coordinator of foreign and military policy, has gone to Tokyo to confer with General MacArthur. There are those in Government who take a philosophic view of all this. They say that America, in accepting its world responsibilities, will inevitably make mistakes and the failure at times to coordinate military and diplomatic moves is part of the learning process. They believe that Harriman in his new role will be able to put the military and diplomatic pieces together and bring back to the President the necessary appraisal for a coordinated policy.

But ordinary people, both at home and abroad, may not have the patience to wait out this process of education. It is hard to go to school when the schoolhouse is on fire.

Gen. Walker's Ability

In view of Mr. Drew Pearson's somewhat venomous remarks concerning the American high command in Korea, the public might like to have the reassurance concerning General Walker, contained in General Patton's last report upon him, made in 1945.

General Patton said: "He combines in the best possible proportions dash, audacity, meticulous planning and sound tactical sense. I rate him as No. 1 of the 61 general officers now under my command."

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Soviet Diplomatic Offensive

THE VERBATIM records of last week's meetings of the United Nations shows, I believe, that Mr. Malik is engaged in something more than propaganda — that is to say in something more than speech-making and name-calling. He is carrying out a diplomatic operation which shows much evidence of having been astutely calculated and carefully prepared.

Lippmann

The grand objective of the operation is to isolate the United States: to break up the alliances which we have formed and to alienate from us the masses of the people of Asia and of Europe. In all probability the central action will be Chinese, though feints and even diversionary movements elsewhere must be expected.

MR. MALIK is quite plainly enormously more interested in China than he is in Korea. But what is his interest in China? Is it to have Red China recognized and received into the society of nations? Not at all. Mr. Malik could easily achieve that if he wanted to. He has almost seemed to be trying not to achieve it. The third vote taken on Thursday dealt with the question of Chinese representation. It stood 5 to 5 with Egypt abstaining. In the roll call Britain and India, Norway and Yugoslavia voted with the Soviet Union. Voting with us were France, Cuba, Ecuador, and the Chinese government in Formosa. Mr. Malik has left the plum of Chinese representation on the tree to ripen some more, very well pleased no doubt to have China excluded for the time being by American and French votes. Not only did this disclose a crack in the United Nations front but it focused Chinese hostility on France, which is fighting in Indo-China, and on the United States, which is patrolling the Formosa Strait.

The central argument which Mr. Malik has used about Korea is, I believe, being developed for use against us later when the Formosan question comes to a head. I am not referring to the plain lie that John Foster Dulles told the South Koreans to attack the North Koreans. Mr. Malik shamelessly repeated that lie for the bamboozlement of the illiterate masses. But he had a much more formidable and sophisticated argument, which is addressed to the literate classes of Asia. It is that the war in Korea is a civil war, like the American civil war and like the Chinese civil war, and that to intervene in a civil war, as the British nearly did in support of the Confederate states, and as we have done in support of South Korea, is "aggression."

THE CLINCHER, it seems to me, for the view that Mr. Malik is mainly concerned not with Korea but with Formosa came when he said that "the fight between the Chiang Kai-shek group on the one hand and the Peoples Liberation Movement coming down from the north on the other hand, was not regarded as aggression, as a result of which foreign powers refrained from interfering into that internal conflict, into that civil war."

We had better be ready for the moves which can follow Mr. Malik's taking up this position: we must be ready to have him ask us under what authority we have now intervened in the Chinese civil war and who instructed the United Nations commander-in-chief to participate in that civil war.

WE ARE bound to ask ourselves why it is that as soon as the Russians returned to the diplomatic arena, we were thrown back on the defensive. Let us not delude ourselves that Mr. Malik has the initiative because he is telling big lies. He has the initiative in spite of the lies. He has it because we have been playing a lone hand in the Far East and, as a result, on the great political issues our best and our most important friends do not agree with us. They do not think we have been wise or far-seeing about China, they are frightened of what we have now done in Formosa, they do not know what we mean to do in Japan. Therefore, though in Korea we lead a majestic coalition of the whole non-Communist world, everywhere else in the Far East there are such deep doubts about our policies and our purposes that our whole position is vulnerable to the very astute diplomatic campaign which Mr. Malik has now opened up.

The President's hasty and unilateral action about Formosa has provided the Russian diplomacy with many profitable opportunities—at the least to subject the United Nations coalition to a very severe strain, at the worst to engage us deeply in an indecisive but very expensive Far Eastern war.

IT IS NOT possible for the Truman Administration to take the initiative in extricating itself from the vulnerable position it is in. This is an election year and, moreover, it is never easy to reverse a reversal. But our allies are not so entangled as we are, and they could, acting within the framework of the United Nations, raise a new standard of hope and of peace to which the peoples of the world could rally.

to defense. The French said they would outline more detailed proposals along these lines later.

The French program was communicated to the United States just a week after President Truman asked Congress for four billion dollars to help rearm the non-Communist world.

Under American pressure to increase their defense budgets in keeping with the accelerated 10-billion-dollar program of the United States, four Atlantic Pact partners now have announced plans for the expenditure of $14,782,225,000 in three years or sooner.

The pledges include:

Britain, $9,520,000,000 in three years.

France, $5,710,000,000 in three years.

Denmark, $57,100,000 in two years.

Depends on U. S. Aid

All the plans call for American aid in arms, raw materials and money. The four billion dollars asked by President Truman for such purposes is on top of $1,222,500,000 already authorized by Congress for this year. The President said $3,504,000,000 of the new amount would be for North Atlantic countries.

France did not say how much American help she expects to put the program into effect.

Herve Alphand, French delegate to the Atlantic Pact Council, declared France still was determined that Germany should not be rearmed to strengthen the West, nor the present ceiling on German steel production raised.

The French note made it clear that France does not regard a powerful United States Army on the other side of the Atlantic as sufficient protection.

Recalling the "unhappy memories" of 1940, when Nazi divisions ran over France in three weeks, the note said the large defense programs now being shaped would be "useless if there were not stationed on the continent of Europe sufficient land and aerial forces to assure the maintenance of peace."

"It is necessary," it added "that the United States and Great Britain, notably, should participate in the defense with a sufficient number of divisions stationed in continental Europe."

The United States now has one combat division in Germany, plus the constabulary, about equal to a combat division.

France now has five full-strength divisions of between 15,000 and 17,000 men, plus one mountain division and one airborne division, both understrength, on duty in France, Germany and Austria. Two of these divisions are armored. She has two infantry divisions in North Africa, scattered battalions and regiments elsewhere and an army of about 150,000 Frenchmen, Foreign Legionnaires and Viet Namese in Indo-China.

Her armed forces now consist of 476,000 in the army, 66,000 in the air force, 53,000 in the navy and about 60,000 in the gendarmerie—(state police)—a total of 659,000.

circles here that the Reds' Korean adventure may well be designed to force commitment of all possible United Nations strength in that area before a lightning assault is made elsewhere. Among the "elsewheres" under consideration are Formosa, Yugoslavia, Greece and Iran, all of which could be attacked by Communist neighbors without involving any elements of Soviet forces.

As far as Korea itself is concerned, a highly placed Army spokesman warned yesterday that the reported Army and Marine counterattack along the southern rim of the Pusan perimeter must not be regarded as an "all-out push." He pointed out that forces within the perimeter and their background of supplies require considerable buildup before a breakout can be attempted.

"However," he added, "it's a healthy sign that we're in there in force and are able to adjust the line by going forward instead of back."

When the time for breakout does arrive, he continued, bridges, culverts, railways and highways blasted by U. N. aircraft must be repaired as they are reached, requiring engineers and equipment.

On Even Terms With Them"

In reply to a suggestion that official "no Dunkerque" promises might have been taken to mean that no attempt would be made to evacuate U. S. forces in case the perimeter collapsed, he said such a notion was not correct. He explained:

"It means we are going to stay in there and hold that beachhead and break out of it when we have the men and materials to do it. It certainly does not mean we're going to lose men. We've got domination of the air and we dominate the sea and we're building up our strength so we are on even terms with them."

The spokesman told reporters he had seen a map which placed American units at Yongdok on the Korean east coast at the northeastern extremity of the perimeter. He pointed out that the northern section of the line was being held by South Koreans and added: "Let's give our ally credit; he's doing a good job."

Norway Plans Increase In Defense Funds

Oslo, Norway, Aug. 7 (AP). — A government proposal that Norway appropriate the equivalent of $35,125,000 more for defense purposes will be presented to King Haakon VII on August 25, Premier Einar Gehardsen has disclosed.

Gehardsen said the additional funds will be spent over the next 30 months.

The proposal follows a request by the United States that its North Atlantic Pact allies indicate what steps they can take to bolster Western defenses against Communist aggression.

Marines, Army Take Big Toll In Offensive Toward Chinju

trations.

While the 35th Infantry Division was pacing the southern offensive, the other units of the advance were slowed by heavy North Korean attacks. The First Marine Regiment and the Army's Fifth Regimental Combat Team apparently had not made much headway after shoving westward four miles Monday.

Whitehead said the 35th had covered about half the distance toward Chinju from it's shoving-off point, Chungam.

The spokesman at MacArthur's headquarters said the American attack toward he Reds' staging base apparenly had beaen by only a few hours a full-scale North Korean power-push toward Pusan.

On the South Korean front protecting the northern perimeter of the U. N. beachhead, the MacArthur summary reported the Sixth South Korean Division under heavy attack. It was driven back 1 to 2 miles "before the situation was stabilized." This action was not pinpointed.

In the southern offensive, the Americans were slugging it out with the North Koreans on the only three roads that lead to Chinju from the east. Chinju is the springboard from which the Reds mounted their drive toward Pusan, vital U. N. supply port 55 air miles to the east.

Gains of 4 miles were made by the Fifth Marine Regiment and the Army's Fifth Regimental Combat Team Monday, first day of the offensive. This was reported by AP Correspondent Tom Lambert, with the Fifth Marines, in a dispatch timed just before midnight. He said the gains were southwest and northwest of Chindong, 24 air miles southeast of Chinju.

There was no late word from Lambert on the progress of these two units of the Thirty-fifth Regiment of the Army's Twenty-fifth Division, the outfit in the three-pronged attack.

This was the deployment: The Marines were on the south, the Fifth Regimental Combat Team in the center, Thirty-fifth Regiment on the north.

The Communists threw a counterblow at the north flank—against the Thirty-fifth Infantry. Tuesday dispatches to Eight Army headquarters said this Red threat was "reduced" during the night.

Lambert's Monday night dispatch said the Marines and the Fifth Combat Team had pushed ahead through heavy Red artillery barrages and over almost impassable roads. The Thirty-fifth Regiment was moving along the main Pusan-Chinju highway.

With about 9000 men in action, this was the most ambitious American drive of the war. But Maj. Gen. William B. Kean, Twenty-fifth Division commander who is directing the assault, described it as "a limited objective attack."

It was "a slow difficult battle, which cost the Leathernecks their first casualties of the Korean war," Lambert wrote. The attack sent the Marines into infantry action for the first time.

Hits Red Attack Head-On

One company of the Fifth combat Team was cut off, Lambert reported. A battalion of Marines was ordered to their rescue and supplies were dropped from the air.

The offensive right at the start ran head-on into a Communist drive aimed eastward toward Pusan. Red artillery knocked out the lead tank of a column of 45-ton American General Pershing on a narrow road.

This bottled up the course of advance and the Americans went ahead without armor.

Lambert's Monday night report said "earlier difficulties were being smoothed out and the attack was proceeding in better fashion."

The offensive was given wallop-ing air support all day Monday.

Supporting the American ground forces on the southern front was the "big mission" of the day, United States Fifth Air Force headquarters said. Marine and Navy planes from carriers also concentrated in that area.

The Fifth reported 419 sorties flown Monday—366 of them combat missions with even B-26 light bombers taking part in low-level strafing attacks on the Reds in the south. Carrier-based planes flew 203 sorties.

Red Losses Heavy

Casualties inflicted upon stiffly resisting Communist troops were reported the greatest of the Korean war.

The North Koreans, with four divisions massed in the Chinju area, 55 air miles west of Pusan, were knocked off balance by the American offensive action as they were about to strike for the American base port.

Air Force and carrier-based Navy planes chewed into Red troop concentrations in heavy strikes when the offensive opened at first light on Monday.

Bitter fighting was in progress elsewhere on the 140-mile defense perimeter.

On the northeast rim, the Communist invaders engulfed for a time elements of the South Korean Capitol Division. The Republican troops were relieved late Monday by a counterattack.

Midway along the western front, where the winding Naktong River forms a natural barrier, the Communists built up pockets of troops on the east banks. They crossed the river by barge, rafts and even power boats, only to be quickly contained or wiped out by defending United States Twenty-fourth Division and South Korean units.

A few Red survivors remained of an original force of 800 that made the river crossing Saturday night and Sunday.

By day United States Fifth Air Force fighter-bombers hammered mercilessly at Red concentrations on the west bank of the Naktong, some 43 miles northwest of Pusan. By night the North Koreans had an opportunity to reinforce their bridgehead on the east bank at Pugong. This was 28 miles southwest of the hub communications center of Taegu, which is 55 miles northwest of Pusan.

There was no immedtate indication how long or far the American offensive thrust at the southern end of the line would continue.

(In Washington, a Defense Department spokesman cautioned: "We do not think the time has arrived yet for the United States and South Korean forces to roll the enemy back all along the line.")

A steady stream of American replacements was being sent to the southern and other fronts from Pusan to fill gaps in the ranks left by casualties.

(Confirmed American casualties thus far in the Korean war are 153 killed, 873 missing and 1590 wounded, the Army announced in Washington.)

North Korean dead and wounded have mounted rapidly in the past week since American defense lines were stabilized.

Intelligence officers at General MacArthur's headquarters estimated Red casualties at 37,500 more than one week ago. Battlefield reports during the last week indicated more than 250 additional casualties, making an estimated total of more than 40,000 since the Reds invaded the South June 25.

Eighth Army headquarters said the southern American offensive had inflicted "heavy" casualties on the Reds, who were geared for a massive drive on Masan.

General MacArthur omitted his war summary early Tuesday, saying the United States Eighth Army communique that announced the American push covered the situation to date.

The American attack shoved off from the vicinity of Chungam. 40 air miles west of Pusan, at 6:30 a. m. Monday (4:30 p. m. Sunday, EDT). The Reds had timed their thrust for approximately the same hours.

At least 7500 Reds, backed by an additional division (usually 10,000 men) bore the shock of the American advance.

Heavy Marine artillery fire and a sweep by Navy and Air Force planes prepared the way for the United States ground forces.

A column of 45-ton, Pershing tanks led the thrust, but Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead reported the column was stalled, at least for a time, by flanking fire. This bottleneck developed near Chindong, 30 miles due west of Pusan on the southern coast. There Red artillery opened fire on the lead tank while others piled up behind it until the way was cleared ahead.

The Fifth Infantry Regiment attacked northwest from Kogan on a road forking into the main Chinju highway at a junction near Pansong village.

On the right flank the Thirty-fifth Infantry Regiment of the Twenty-fifth Division pushed along the main Chinju-Masan highway from a point south of Chungam.

The Fifth Marine Regiment moved down a road toward Kosong, 21 miles southwest of Masan.

It was a wide flanking movement that could bring the Marines to Sachon, 8 miles south of the devastated town of Chinju, where the Communists massed for their drive on Pusan.

The terrain was suited to the North Koreans. From misty ridges overhanging the valley Reds poured a hail of fire on the advancing Americans.

Both the Marines and the Fifth Regimental Combat Team from Hawaii moved forward a full 4 miles from their jumpoff points.

There was no late reports available on progress of the third prong of the attack—the Thirty-fifth Regiment of the Twenty-fifth Division.

One battalion of the Fifth Regimental Combat Team got into trouble when it was cut off but supplies were dropped to it from the air. Elements of the Marine and Army force were sent to relieve the battalion.

Farther north, the rumble of American artillery pouring shells into Red positions across the Naktong could be heard Monday night in Taegu, 28 miles to the northeast.

Fifth Air Force fighter-bombers continued to smash at Red targets wherever they could be found along the front.

Harvard Students Scale Famed Peak; One May Lose Feet

Lima, Peru, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—Two Harvard students scaled four-mile high Mount Yerupaja, highest unclimbed peak in the Americas, last week, but the ordeal may cost one of them his feet.

Dave Harrah, 23, Seattle, was rushed to Lima today with frostbitten feet. With James Maxwell, 24, Braintree, Mass., Harrah reached the 21,769-foot summit, but they were caught at dusk without fire, food or sleeping bags bridgehead made an effort to break out early today but were thrown back.

Two members of the party—John Sack and W. V. Graham Matthews, walked ahead day and night for 25 miles arranging fresh mules for transportation at each village Harrah would pass.

The Communist troops opened the battle by charging down a small mountain, one of several they hold on the east side of the river; and they quickly overran an advanced American unit. They were racing toward the southeast but reinforcements moved into the American line and hurled back the attack.

Star shells were fired by American artillery all evening to light up the enemy lines in an attempt to stop the crossing of the river by infiltration groups.

The North Koreans are losing men heavily—400 in a single American counterattack Sunday—but they seem to be getting steadily stronger in their bulge position.

The enemy bulge is along a 5-mile pocket where the river bends westward, in the area of Sinam-ni, 30 miles south of Taegu. The North Koreans still hold three hills in the bulge, and they have little pockets north of it on the east side of the river. They put across about 800 men in their first crossing.

The editors may be criminal, but so are the readers and the reporters.

Publication is extremely difficult.

Despite increasing job shortages in the field of journalism, reporters quit the staff with alacrity, subscribers right behind them.

Circulation is strictly limited. Revenue from any source is nonexistent.

But "The Insider" is still quite a magazine.

It is published every two months by and for the inmates of the District of Columbia Jail.

Car Thief Is Editor

Editor-in-chief and No. 1 contributor is Jay Paul Shelton, convicted car thief. He wrote an editorial about prison red tape in the April-May issue, which closed with this bouquet for Assistant Superintendent Samuel A. Anderson:

"I don't want to appear to be a recruiting agent for the D. C. Jail, but to all my prison pals who may have problems, I strongly recommend that you choose as your next resting place a streamlined calaboose which uses the Sam A. Anderson system."

Shelton said he could not be accused of attempting to curry favor with jail authorities, because that was his swan song as editor. But he was back as editor-in-chief for the June-July issue.

"The Insider" sports editor is Si Havvermale, 48, who is serving a two to six year sentence for embezzlement. He writes a column, "Sports by Si," now devoted to the baseball doings of the jail teams.

Woman's Feature, Too

Betty Joe E., otherwise unidentified, writes a sprightly woman's feature entitled "Distaff Debs" for "The Insider," which includes a list of the female inmates for whom "coming-out" parties were given since the last issue.

Betty Joe also writes a feature consisting of the words the female inmates give to popular songs. She reports that to the tune of "I Can Dream, Can't I?" they sing:

"I can see that I could turn 93,
And still they won't set me free,
Can't I pretend that my worries will end?
I'll soon leave jail.
For I'm a down-hearted frail, who's got her time. No bail."

A convicted bigamist writes "Jail Jabber," a folksy column about jail personalities, including "They-Can't-Do-That" Setser, "Writ-Happy" Hurley, "Bet-a-Million" Bowser, "Don't-Bum-Rap-Me" Nettles and "Don't-Leave-Your-Car-Unlocked" Tague.

Cost of publication of "The Insider" is borne by the Inmate Welfare Fund.

"Outside circulation is restricted to penologists and fellow members of the penal press," the magazine masthead states.

Ex-GI, Father of 4, Works, Goes to School

Worcester, Mass. (U.P.).—Although he has a wife, four children and a full-time job in a factory, ex-GI Joseph T. Bouffard hopes to win his degree from Worcester Junior College in June.

Bouffard is completing a four-year night course in mechanical engineering in three years.

"I go to school three nights and I study four," Bouffard said. "I take my wife out on the eighth."

Finds Buns Taste Better If Baked

Flint, Mich. (U.P.).—Cliff Mitchell, his wife away on a trip, went to the store for groceries.

He picked out some buns, took them home and ate two. Then he took the others back and complained they were underdone.

"How long did you bake them?" the grocer asked.

"Not at all," the astonished Mitchell replied.

He hadn't realized that the buns were "in the raw" for home baking.

Wooden Matches Dispel Odors, Tests Establish

Chicago (U.P.).—Scientists at the Illinois Institute of Technology say they finally have been able to prove something that millions of housewives knew all along.

The flame from a common wood match will eliminate unpleasant household odors.

William L. Kubie, biochemist, said no machine ever has been invented to replace the human nose so he used a "jury" of eight men and two women as sniffers in his tests.

They proved without a doubt, Kubie said, that the burning chemicals in a match head can mask unpleasant smells ranging from "sickening sweet to downright awful."

Croc Needed Killing

New Delhi, India (U.P.).—When hunters ripped open a 16-foot crocodile they shot near the town of Meerut, they found a woman's set of metal bracelets and a child's shirt.

Bolling Class Busy Learning Korean Vowels

It is entirely different from Chinese, but sometimes Chinese characters are used . . .

Maybe that makes "Greek" to you, but it is Korean, and a little class at Bolling Air Force Base is meeting from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m. Mondays and Wednesdays to get the word from Sung Bum Lee, instructor and member of the Korean Purchasing Commission.

Lee, who arrived in the United States about three months ago and lives at 1910 Biltmore st. nw., is teaching the class conversational Korean. "You cannot expect perfect pronunciation, just as you cannot expect me to speak English perfectly, but if you can understand each other, that is enough."

All he hopes is that the students, half way through their eight-week course, won't be saying, "nahn chahl ma-ree-gess soom nee-w dah," which is phonetic for "I don't understand."

Korean, among other features, has 10 basic vowels "and others that are combinations which we regard as diphthongs," Lee said, "and some Korean vowel pronunciations do not exist in English."

As for consonants, there are 14 elementary ones, he said, and five variations.

The class' textbook is "Spoken Korean," prepared by the Linguistics Society of America and the Intensive Language Program, American Council of Learned Societies, and published for the Armed Forces several years ago. Phonograph records are used with the textbook and classroom instruction.

No Writing Involved

Boston (U.P.).—Charged with writing pool slips, Christos Kakridas was ordered freed when he proved to a municipal court judge he couldn't read or write.

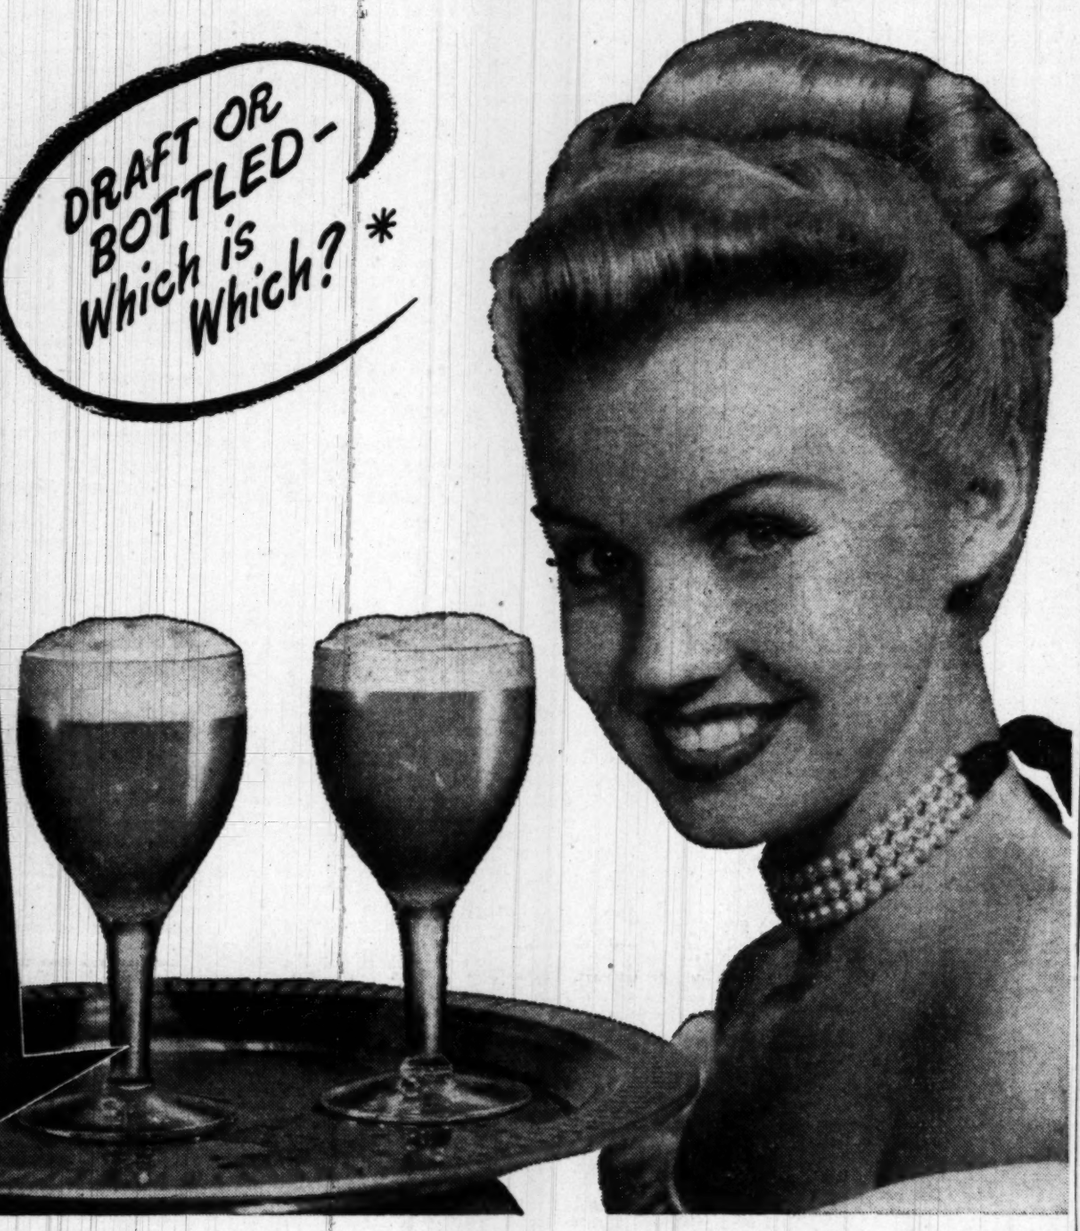
DRAFT BEER FLAVOR

in bottles and cans

DRAFT OR BOTTLED - Which is Which? *



OLD GEORGETOWN

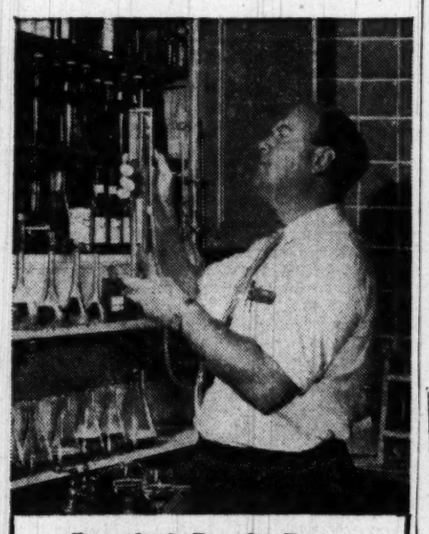
*IT'S ALL THE SAME - ON DRAFT - IN BOTTLES - IN CANS

Even the experts agree: Draft or bottled—it's the same extra-fine beer! Are you skeptical? Try the "Behind-the-Bar Test" yourself. It does two things for you. ONE—it proves that Old Georgetown has captured keg flavor in bottles and cans. TWO—it shows you how to enjoy premium quality beer without paying a premium price.

Now! Drink the beer that puts Keg Flavor "On Tap" at home

Once you compare the refreshing goodness of a glass of golden, foamy Old Georgetown with any other beer, bar none, you'll keep Old Georgetown always available for home enjoyment. Ask for it in your favorite package store today—and when you visit your favorite tavern enjoy Old Georgetown on draft too.

Try it today and you'll agree—no other beer tastes as good. Enjoy Old Georgetown Premium Quality Beer on draft or in bottles and cans . . . it's all the same extra-fine beer.



Bottled Draft Beer Flavor Discovered Here!

Draft Flavor Sealed In!

An exciting innovation in the art of brewing! Old Georgetown's draft beer flavor was created through constant laboratory testing right in our own brewery. The result is precision, split-second control that drops temperature 25 degrees in less than 2 minutes (impossible by any other known method), Pasteurization ceases that instant; "seals in" the true keg flavor of draft beer.

Bank Debits In District Rise Over '49

Debits in Washington banks in June totaled $925,305,000, an increase of 17.3 percent over the sixth month of 1949, according to a compilation by the American Banker.

Debits in the first half of 1950 aggregated $4,942,236,000, an increase of 11 percent over the 1949 total and of 14.4 percent over 1948.

Banks in the Fifth (Richmond) Federal Reserve District in June had debits amounting to $4,522,000,000, an increase of 11.7 percent over June last year. The grand total for the first half of 1950 was $25,039,000,000, a gain of 6.9 percent over last year and of 8.3 percent over 1948.

CHECK ACTIVITY: The rate of turnover in checking accounts in June and in the first two weeks of July, the latest period for which figures are obtainable, was at the highest point since 1941, according to the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond. At the present rate, the average checking account would be withdrawn and replenished 18.8 times in the course of a year, the bank noted. In the pre-Pearl Harbor months of 1941 the turnover was 20 times.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: J. S. Leach of Houston, vice president of the Texas Company, has been elected executive vice president, a newly created office. G. R. Bryant, general manager of the refining department, will succeed him as vice president . . . William J. McKee, formerly sales manager, central area, has been appointed general sales manager of the National Tube Co., a subsidiary of United States Steel. Louis W. Mason succeeds him in the central area . . . Dr. Douglas A. Spencer has been appointed a deputy managing director of Kodak Limited in London.

Baffling Sugar Ray Keeps 'Em Guessing

By Red Smith

NEW YORK, AUG. 7 (NYHT)—Sugar Ray Robinson, who well knows the value of a dollar because he has had to fight for every one he has, is going to fight for another one Wednesday night in the Jersey City ball park.

Red Smith

In his ten years of public life, there have been times when admiration for Robinson's professional skills exceeded affection for him as an individual. This is one occasion which reflects upon him nothing but the highest degree of credit.

The welterweight champion of the world has agreed to defend his title in a match of 15 rounds or less with Charley Fusari, for a purse of $1. Fifteen percent of the net gate and all but one dollar of Robinson's 30 percent cut will go to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund.

Robinson didn't have to do this. It could be pointed out that no other fighter of comparable stature has done such a thing, except there is no other fighter of comparable stature. Simply because he was asked to, Robinson is going to risk physical, financial and professional injury in a fine cause, without hope of personal reward.

If he should lose—and he could, for any welterweight could lose to the resolute Fusari—it could be said that nothing in his life as champion became him so well as his leaving.

THE POSSIBILITY of losing his championship is not the principal risk which Robinson is taking. By agreeing to reduce to the welterweight limit of 147 pounds, he has accepted a graver physical hazard.

For a long time now, Robinson has been a big boy mixing unsociably with middleweights. There are two reasons why he almost never fights as a welterweight except when the title is at stake. One is that there are few, if any, men his size fit to climb into a ring with him. The other is his fear that frequent efforts to make the weight limit would do permanent damage to his health.

When Robinson fights at 155 pounds, as he did against Robert Villemain in June, there is not a trace of fat visible upon that ballet dancer's body of his. He is 30 year old. Taking off eight pounds violently has to be an ordeal for him, and at his age it is going to be a more punishing ordeal every time he undergoes it.

There have been many times when he was reluctant to do it for money. Now he is doing it for nothing.

IT IS A TRIBUTE to Robinson's extraordinary ability that he will go into the fight favored by odds so great that they'll all but rule out the betting. Fusari would have substantial backing against any other welterweight alive. The blond milkman from Irvington, N. J., is a sound fighter with an exceptional physique. He is a young man of single purpose who sets an example of almost ascetic living for athletes. He makes such a fetish of physical condition that even between bouts, when he is not in active training, he doesn't indulge himself to the extent of a hot dog and bottle of pop at a ball game.

Barring the technicality that there is not a fighter in the world as good as Robinson at his best, Fusari has many factors in his favor. He can punch with speed and finality, as he demonstrated with his swift knockout of Vince Foster in Madison Square Garden. He can box ably, as he did when he stabbed and slapped and befuddled Rocky Graziano through nine of their ten rounds together. He can survive severe punishment.

He can also be knocked out.

Robinson is a remarkable and fascinating and often perplexing person. He has a reason for everything he says and does. Sometimes his reasons do not seem altogether admirable by other standards than his own. Sometimes they are obscure, as in the case of his accepting this bout. Maybe in this instance his reason is merely a desire to do a very decent thing.

Phillies Rout Cards, 9-0, Ken Johnson Has 2-Hitter

Philadelphia, Aug. 7 (AP).—Ken Johnson held his former teammates to a pair of singles tonight as the pace-setting Philadelphia Phillies rode roughshod over the St. Louis Cardinals, 9-0, before a crowd of 25,251.

Mike Goliat and Willie Jones fired the big guns in the Phillies' 11-hit attack off four Cardinal hurlers. Goliat, coming through with a triple, double and a single, drove in four runs. Jones sent his twenty-third home run of the season into the leftfield stands for two more.

Goliat accounted for three runs in the seventh when he tripled off the left field wall with the bases loaded off Ted Wilks.

Harry Brecheen, first of the four Redbird pitchers, was the loser as Johnson chalked up his fourth victory without a defeat.

Johnson, making his first start since July 4, walked six and fanned the same number.

Stan Musial got the only real St. Louis blow. It was a single to right in the first inning. The other was a slow roller down the third-base-line in the fourth by Catcher Del Rice.

Lightweight King Drops 2d Non-Title Bout In Row

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Unheralded Charlie Salas made a name for himelf and a mess of lightweight champion Ike Williams' reputation by winning a unanimous 10-round decision over the 135-pound king at Griffith Stadium last night.

Williams' title was not at stake. Ike weighed 139½, 7 pounds less than Salas.

For Williams, who has knocked out every lightweight that has challenged him, it was the second straight defeat by a welterweight. He was upset by Sugar Costner a month ago in Philadelphia.

Salas was a 7-to-1 underdog, with practically no takers, but the 21-year-old Arizonan, who has never been knocked out, waded in after Williams from the first bell and was still throwing punches at Ike at the end.

On The Washington Post's score card, the phenom from Phoenix won seven rounds, Williams two, and one was even.

While Ike, a power-puncher with either hand, wanted to slug it out with his lighter-hitting opponent, Salas was content to slam home frequent hooks or stiff jabs and then smother Ike in the clinches.

Kid Wins Exchanges

And a few times that Salas chose to punch it onut with his touted foe, it was Salas, not Williams, who got the better of the exchange.

The largest fight crowd of the season—5950, some 2000 more than saw Featherweight Champ Willie Pep fight in this same ring two weeks ago—watched the thriller, chipping in to a gross gate of $11,437 for the Promoter Florence Turner production.

Salas made it clear in the first round that he didn't come to Washington merely for the payday. He stung Ike with a hard left to the head, took a solid punch to the stomach and then charged right back with two more left hands to the head.

Salas was pretty much the perfect fighter against Williams. He smothered Ike in the clinches most of the time, warding off the damage Williams usually inflicts on his foes at close quarters.

Ike Bleeds

Salas drew blood from Ike in the sixth round with a straight left hand to the nose.

In the eighth, Salas, who by now began to appear tired, took a hard right to the side of the head from Ike and it appeared for a second Ike might land the crusher.

But Salas clinched and when Referee Eddie LaFond broke them it was Salas who was doing the punching, standing toe to toe with the champ, at the end.

Williams, knowing he had to knock out upstart Salas to save face, set out to do it in the 9th and almost achieved it. He caught Salas in a neutral corner and whammed a right cross to his head but Salas didn't retreat an inch. Instead, he buzzed Ike with four straight lefts to the face and head and drove him to the ropes at the bell.

Still trying for his kayo, Ike again caught Salas on the ropes near the end of the 10th round and banged away fiercely. Salas stopped this attack by whistling a perfect right to Ike's jaw. Williams stepped back, then missed a desperate, last shot uppercut just at the bell.

In the semi-windup, staged after the main event, Washington's Jimmy Cooper scored a second round technical knockout over Featherweight Art Llanos of Puerto Rico. Each weighed 124.

Ben Harrison, 200, Washington, opened the show with a four-round decision over Scotty Tyman, 186, Washington.

Yost Proving One of Best Leadoff Men

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Eddie Yost, Nats' third baseman and leadoff hitter, was born 50 years too late.

Under major league rules of 50 years ago when walks were counted the same as hits, he would be batting .427. Under present rules, Eddie's hitting a mere" .297.

Nevertheless, walks are still used as a yardstick in rating the performance of a leadoff man. His job is to get on base by hook or crook, by walk, hit, bunt or, if necessary, by stepping into the path of a fast ball, so that the sluggers can drive him home.

By that measurement, Eddie may be the best leadoff man in the business. In 97 games, he has drawn 86 walks and connected for 112 hits in 464 times at bat for a .427 percentage.

In fact, Eddie's drawing free passes at such a fast rate that he has a good chance to break the club's all-time record of 102 walks in one season, set by Buddy Myer in 1934.

Counting the six times, he's been hit by pitched balls, and the countless times he's reached base on errors and fielder's choices, it's safe to say he's been on once out of every two trips to the plate.

In his last 29 times up during the recent Western trip, Yost was on 21 times.

Perhaps that's why George Kell, who writes a newspaper column when he isn't batting .350 and playing third base for Detroit, said the other day, "the Tigers consider him the peskiest

Lame-Armed Furgol's 211 Sets Pace in Open

Chicago, Aug. 7 (AP).—Ed Furgol, lame-armed star from Royal Oak, Mich., playing with an $80 set of clubs he designed, moved into a two-stroke lead with 211 at the 54-hole mark of the $15,000 All-American golf tourney today.

Furgol's third round 69 over Tam O'Shanter's par 36-36—72 course, slicked up for par-wrecking after two dull days, left the half-way leader, Dave Douglas of Newark, Del., and Skip Alexander of Knoxville, Tenn., tied for second at 213.

Furgol's aggregate of 211, after opening rounds of 72—70, was five under par for the distance.

In third place with 214 was young Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex., who had a 70 today.

Furgol, making a bid for his first major triumph since he turned pro in 1944, is playing with a set of clubs which he designed for a national mail-order house. The sticks cost just about half the $150 price of the clubs usually swung by pros.

Brooklyn Aug. 7 (AP).—Ralph Branca, Brooklyn Dodger pitcher was rejected today by his draft board because of his "history" of asthma.

Shirley May Dives In For Channel Swim

Cap Griz Nez, France (Tuesday), Aug. 8 (AP).—Florence Chadwick of San Diego, Calif., and Shirley May France of Somerset, Mass., plunged into the cold, treacherous waters of the English Channel early today in attempts to swim the 20 miles to England.

The two American girls took off within 19 minutes of each other. Miss Chadwick entered the water at 2:37 a. m. (8:37 p. m., Monday, EST), and Shirley May swam off at 2:56 a. m.

Both were making their second attempt to conquer the bone-chilling waters and surging currents of the channel.

D. C. Printers Run Wild, 25-1

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 7.—The Washington, D. C. Union Printers, last year's champions, opened defense of their Union Printers International baseball title today by shellacking Indianapolis, 25-1.

Washington pitcher Willie Conrad allowed only three hits and struck out six. Al Buschling, Bill Valentine and Carl Hofberg led the printers with four hits each.

The tournament, a double elimination affair, will continue through Saturday when the finals will be played at Wrigley Field.

In other first round games St. Louis Printers defeated Detroit, 6-5; New York trimmed Cincinnati, 15-6; St. Paul walloped Pittsburgh, 21-6 and Chicago beat Boston, 10-5.

Dodgers Call Erskine

New York, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—Carl Erskine, the 23-year-old right-hander who pitched Montreal into the thick of the International League pennant race, was recalled today by the parent Brooklyn Dodgers. He had a 10-6 record with the Royals.

Colts Release Gambino But Terps Honor Him

ON THE SAME DAY that he drew his release from the Baltimore Colts last week, Halfback Lu Gambino's picture was hung in the University of Maryland's training room, an honor reserved only for Maryland's top-drawer athletes . . . When Joe Louis enters the ring against Ezzard Charles in September, it won't be the first time the two have fought. Louis thrashed the present NBA heavyweight champion in an exhibition in the Army several years ago . . . Matchmaker Gabe Menendez, of Turner's Arena, who believes in carrying the fight to the opposition, is opening a gymnasium on 9th street only a block away from Goldie Ahearn's Liberty Athletic Club gymnasium . . . Coach Bo Rowland, of George Washington, is all enthused about the approaching football season. "We'll have 36 boys out for practice, our biggest squad since I've been there," Rowland said. Even so, it's not even half the size of the squad Maryland will muster for practice . . .

EXPECTING TO LOSE more and more athletes to the armed services, the Southern Conference will be asked to permit freshmen to play on varsity teams, beginning next fall . . . The question will come up August 22 when Conference and athletic officials assemble at Chapel Hill, N. C., for a two-day golf meet and funfest as guests of the University of North Carolina . . . when Red Sox pitcher Ellis Kinder batted in six runs against the White Sox the other day, he tied a record for RBI's for pitchers in one game. Four other hurlers, including former Nats Pete Appleton and Wes Ferrell, also hammered in six tallies in one game . . . baseball isn't a young man's game everywhere. Out in Takoma, Wash., Indian Bob Johnson, 43, former Nats outfielder, has just become Takoma's leftfielder . . . Earl Roth, who averaged 40 yards punting for three varsity years at Maryland, has enrolled in the Marine Corps and will soon be a candidate for the Quantico team.

ALTHOUGH THEY'RE in fifth place, 18½ games out of the lead, the Nats are now thicker in the fight for the American League flight than at any time this season. Twenty-two of their next 28 games, mostly at Griffith Stadium, are against first division clubs whose pennant chances could be dealt a crippling blow by the Nats . . . years ago the District Boxing Commission installed red and green lights in ringside corners and flashed them at the end of each round to designate the winner of the round, green being the winner and red the loser. The experiment lasted only one fight, however, as the fighter who got the green light seven times, lost the bout on points . . Goose Goslin, who played for Clark Griffith most of his 18 years in baseball, sent Senator William Langer a stiff note of protest to Langer's charges that Griff was a "wartime profiteer."

Operation Haight Turns Out to Be Big Job

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

"WHERE CAN I locate Walter Haight?" asked the stranger of the housewife.

"Mister," she replied, "Just go from house to house, peek under the shades and when you see 15 people looking bored and one guy talking about his operation you'll have Haight."

HAIGHT

That's just one of the supposedly humorous concoctions pinned on me by friends since I was knifed—not in the back, where entry would be comparatively simple, but in the upholstered front.

It's no wonder that when put to sleep, I dreamed I was a beached whale surrounded by hundreds of busy Eskimos who hacked away at the blubber.

Some day John Gunther might get around to writing "Inside Haight" but in the interim, as No. 1 witness, I can report without exaggeration it was quite a turmoil.

It seems the little men with wire brushes, dwellers in my tummy for sometime, scratched a hole in the wall which I regarded as relatively unimportant until one of the diminutive bums yelled, "Everybody out!"

Well, there hasn't been a rush like it since a striptease artist asked if some gentleman in the audience would help her untie a knot.

Taking everything into consideration, it was a rather rough, unappreciative way for my stomach to treat me after all the kind and loving attention I've foisted upon it, plying it with nothing but the best in meat, foul and seafood, plus the ultimate in trimmings—and I've been strictly a 100 proof man all my adult life.

YEARS AGO my tummy was nothing more than a window sill. Under my affectionate guidance it became first a bay window, then a front porch and, before the darned thing began to act up, I had plans to make it a patio.

But it couldn't stand prosperity.

At any rate, it went beserk one night at Charles Town and I didn't have to be on the Mayo Clinic staff to know that what I had been hiding under the pressbox table at the track was about to assume No. 1 post position in an operating room, a fact confirmed by friend "Sleepy" Glenn, former West Virginia U. football star who now shines in medicine and surgery.

So Haight, who almost fainted when he had a tooth drawn and shivered through the removal of a mole, faced an emergency operation.

As I sat in the racing secretary's office waiting to be driven to Washington, I weighed all angles and the best I could give my chances of coming through was 5 to 1. In fact, I was scared so stiff that I kept moving to show I wasn't a corpse.

I WAS ROUSED from my morbid thoughts when a friend, unaware of my plight, stopped and whispered, "I've got a good thing in the first race. Can't miss, I tell you."

I shook my head and moaned, "Thanks, Buddy, but where I'm going I won't have any use for money."

At the moment earthly things meant nothing, but 24 hours later when I came to and found myself still in circulation one of my first thoughts was, "I wonder who won the first at Charles Town?"

During the little bit of restless, fitful sleep that came to me on my B.C. (before cutting) night, I dreamed Dr. Oliver Cox, sharpened a knife on a whetstone, gazed at me and asked, "I'm not Mohamet. Why did you bring this mountain to me?"

Instead of asking for surgery tools he yelled for climbing equipment and in due time Dr. Cox, Dr. Depue Duffey, two nurses and

Area Sailors Have Varied WeekendCard

By Happy Walker

AREA SAILING clans will just about have their pick of major regattas to chose from this weekend, what with the big Oxford Race week coming up. Added choice will be the Hampton Nationals at Urbanna, sure to draw on the Hampton fleet from the Potomac and Bay area.

Walker

Friday, the Tred Avon and Chesapeake Bay Yacht Clubs start off the race week with cruising, racing and delta classes. Stars and smaller classes will round out the race week on Saturday. Feature of the triple-header is the Gibson Island-Oxford race which also gets under way Friday.

GIBSON Island Yacht Squadron has issued invitations for the second annual invitation cruise. In order that racing and cruising yachts may participate without interfering with established regattas, the squadron will rendezvous at Oxford, Md., Sunday, August 13, at the conclusion of the Chesapeake and Tred Avon Yacht Club races.

Among the yachts that have accepted invitations are: E. A. Ratsey (Wogg Too), L. C. Strong (Pavana), Paul Patterson (Elda), O. H. Williamson (Falcon), J. M. Sherwood (Rubicon), D. H. McKnew (Slick Witch), W. L. Henderson (Kelpie), G. F. Stark (Banshee), F. H. Loweree (Interlude), C. L. Lea (Gremlin), and A. W. Herrington (Rualla.)

THE NOR'WESTER that disrupted the Capital Power Boat Association regatta on the upper Potomac Sunday afternoon played havoc with the shell crews off Old Dominion Boat Club down Alexandria way in the first of a series of interclub rowing regattas.

The second heat of the eight-oared shell race was called to prevent serious damage.

The Old Dominioners took top honors for the three-club meet, managing first place wins in the senior doubles, juniors fours, junior work boats and junior eight heats.

Next Sunday, the Richmond Club will play host to the sculling crews.

School Will Give Aid to More Players

Philadelphia, Aug. 7 (AP).—The University of Pennsylvania is going all out to produce a winning football team within the confines of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's sanity code.

"We are going to take full advantage of the code in an effort to bring top athletes to Pennsylvania," President Harold Stassen said today.

"Actually, the new policy has been in effect for some time," said the former Minnesota Governor at a luncheon.

"And, we should see the first affects of the policy this fall in the freshman football team," Stassen added. Turning to head football Coach George Munger, the university president asked:

"Wouldn't you say George that we have the best looking group of freshmen in recent years?"

"That is right," replied Munger.

Asked how the university intended to take fuller advantage of the code, Stassen replied:

"The code permits a school to furnish an athlete a job with pay equal to room and board. We intend to do more of that at Pennsylvania.

"We also can give added scholarships to athletes who rate in the upper quarter of their high school class scholastically. We hope to attract more athletes of that class."

Stassen said he sees no immediate decline in Penn football receipts but "if there is we are prepared to invest certain university funds in the future of Pennsylvania athletics so the new over-all policy will not fall down."

Operation Haight Turns Out Big Job

an orderly were roped together and, picks in hand, began the ascent of Mount Haight, Dr. Cox shouting a warning, "If we're not back by sundown, send out the Saint Bernard dogs."

They hadn't reached the summit when my snatchy slumber ended. A period of wakeful jitters set in as I lay there waiting for rigor mortis to set in.

If ever a guy was in need of some false courage it was me and I wondered why I didn't have the aforethought of bringing a half-pint along like the time I flew to the West Coast.

I PRESSED my call button and the nurse appeared. I suggested that one small shot would help me over the hump. She darted from the room, returned with the bottle as my eyes glowed—and gave me a darned alcohol bath!

Just what actually happened in the operating room I'll never know in dtail. The fellow giving me the anesthetic said to count 10 and, for the life of me I got to six and, in my utterly frightened state, couldn't remember what number came next.

Before I went out I did hear Dr. Cox say, "This will be the first time I ever cut a hole in the roof to work in the cellar."

However, I can't go for the rumor that spread around Sibley Hospital that, when they finished, there were two piles of fat and the orderly didn't know which one to wheel back to my room.

I want to thank friends for the flowers, fruit and get-well cards but I wish some of them would quit wisecracking; like the guy who phoned the married woman I live with and asked, 'How did Haight make out?"

When she replied, "He's doing nicely" the bum said, "Ain't that a shame. With all the yap, yap he's always had, we've got to listen to him tell about his operation."

Sometimes I wish they had cut my throat.

Golf 'Grads' Play Today

More than 100 boys and girls who took advantage of the public golf courses' free golf clinic at East Potomac and Anacostia golf courses are invited to be on hand today at 9:30 a. m. to show what they can do with the sticks.

The youngsters will compete in the course elimation rounds of the publinx city-wide tournament for junior golfers graduating from the clinic. Competition will be in three age groups: girls, 10-17; boys, 10-13; and boys, 14-17.

Prizes will be awarded to the winners of the city-wide meet. Juniors representing Fort Dupont public golf course have already qualified.

D. C. Police Win Anacostia Title

Paced by secondbaseman Ray Wrenn's three-run homer, the D. C. Police trounced NARTU, 10-2, yesterday to win the Anacostia No. 1 league baseball title.

Nat of them all. Everytime you look around, he's on base. He has a terrific eye, hits sharply and is hard to double up on infield grounders."

Lately, Yost has picked up an old trick of his manager, Bucky Harris. He's been taking a pitch on the arm or leg just to get on base. In 12 games in the West, he was nicked four times.

It's paying off in runs, too. He has scored 71 times and has 57 more games in which to reach the 100 mark.

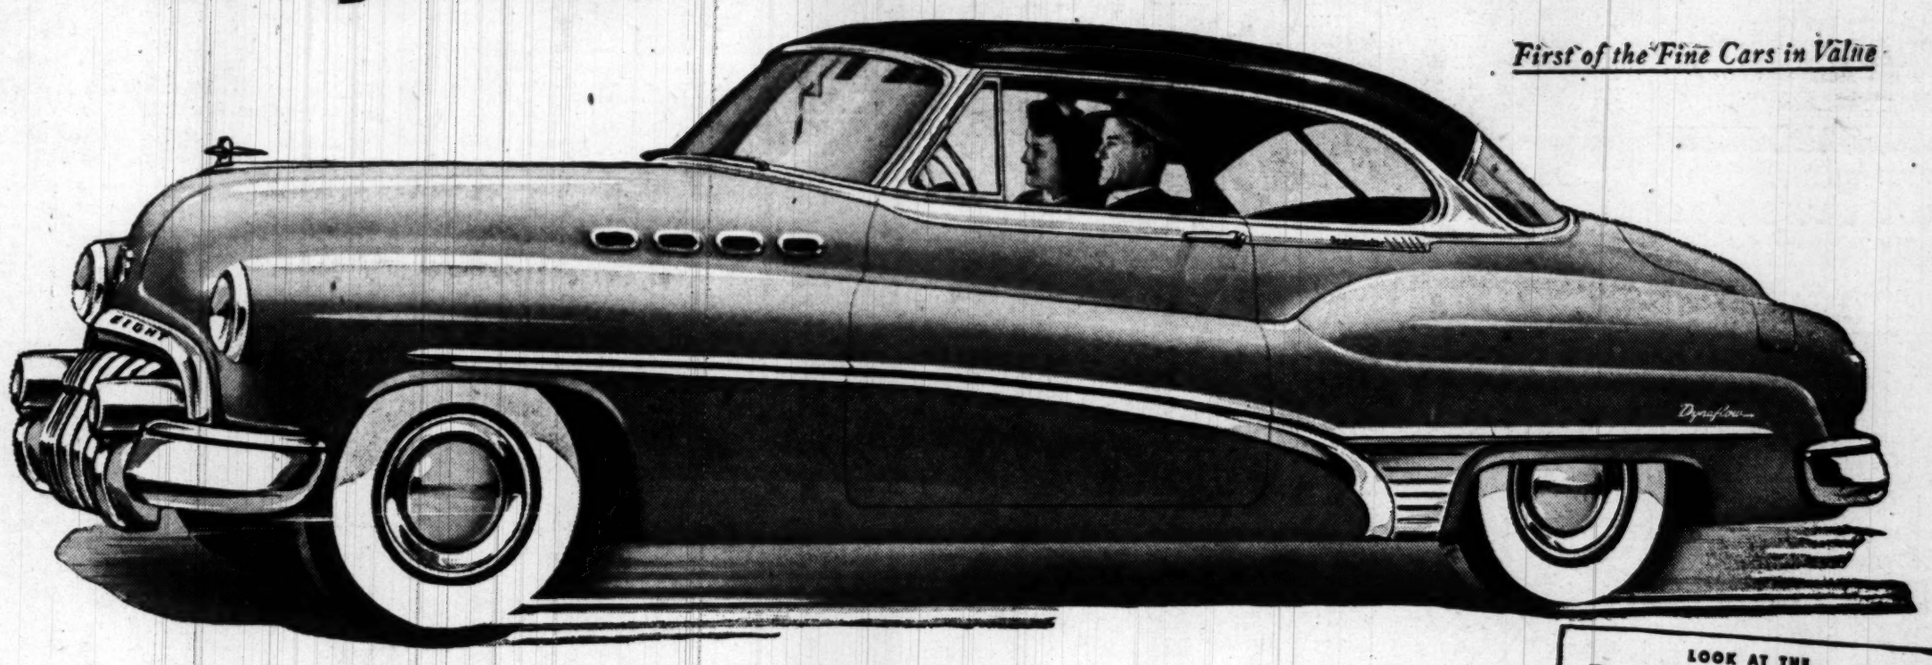
First of the Fine Cars in Value



You can see this man has made his mark in life, and while his heart's still young.

You can tell he likes action for his money—that he knows a fine car needn't be the most expensive to give the greatest value.

Yes, such are the things you know of any man, when you note that his car is a ROADMASTER.

Follow him on his spirited way as he pilots this lively motorcar through traffic. Even the lightweights are no match for this road-steady husky—not with the 152-horsepower straight-eight Fireball engine that purrs beneath its bonnet.

Maneuver beside him at the next stop light. Then just try to get away as smoothly, swiftly and silently as Dynaflow Drive gets his ROADMASTER going—and keeps it rolling without shifting, even automatically.

But don't waste time merely envying the man in this great car! Why not emulate him?

With all its outsize room, interior luxury and exterior grace—with all its front-rank prestige, rare performance and matchless ride—a ROADMASTER can be yours for less than some smaller cars cost.

In fact, even if you had a fortune to spend, you couldn't make a more fortunate buy in the fine-car field.

So we suggest you try a few minutes behind the wheel. We're confident they will convince you that ROADMASTER has everything you could ever ask for in any motorcar—although your Buick dealer asks a good bit less for ROADMASTER than you might pay for other top-line cars.

Veterans Direct Fire On 'Category' Rating For Civil Service Tests

The Hoover Commission plan to reform the Civil Service system ran into serious trouble yesterday.

Representatives of major organizations of veterans stoutly opposed a bill to carry out many of the Hoover plans at a hearing before a Senate Civil Service subcommittee.

They centered their fire on a provision to allow applicants for Civil Service tests to be rated by "categories" rather than by numerical ratings.

Speaking for the American Legion, Herbert J. Jacobi opposed the bill on the ground that it would result "in destruction of veterans' preference and encourage the return of the patronage and spoils system."

George L. McElroy of the Veterans of Foreign Wars urged that the Civil Service Commission be expanded to handle all tests instead of allowing the agencies to do some of their own recruiting and hiring. He didn't like the category rating idea and he said the Hoover plan would be more costly to operate.

Charles E. Foster of the Disabled American Veterans testified that present Civil Service and veterans' laws are working "admirably" and that it would be pointless to change them at this time.

Another opponent of the category plan was Luther C. Steward of the National Federation of Federal Employes, who testified:

"We view the proposal to permit certification of eligibles by categories as opening the door and practically inviting the use of these devices for making appointments based upon favoritism, political or otherwise, rather than upon demonstrated qualifications."

In pleading for the bill, the Administration's witnesses, Lawson A. Moyer of Civil Service and Joseph Winslow of the Budget Bureau, carefully explained that the bill didn't change veterans' rights and benefits. Moyer said the bill carried many provisions to prevent any return to the spoils system such as: prior approval by Civil Service of any and all agency employment plans, annual inspections by Civil Service, employe appeals to Civil Service.

Jacobi said Civil Service inspections were inadequate. He cited the case of Coast and Geodetic Survey, which resorted to some funny business to cheat sove veterans out of jobs—until Civil Service caught up with it.

Postmaster General Donaldson asked that his department be exempted from the bill. The House Civil Service Committee has approved a similar measure.

JOBS: The Army's Chemical Corps at Gravelly Point has openings for eight stenographers, Grades 3 and 4. Call Liberty 5-6700, Branch 56563 for details. . . . Civil Service requirements have been waived for 30 ECA employes here in Grade 12 and above who have served overseas for at least a year . . . Civil Service is accepting applications for these new examinations: engineer, $4600 to $5400; public health nurse, $3825; social worker and public welfare research analyst, $4600 to $7600 annually.

CAPITOL HILL: The Williams Subcommittee has completed its report on overstaffing charges in Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics . . . The Senate today hopes to take up: (1) the President's veto of the bill to give promotions to World War II veterans in the postal service, and (2) the bill to give heads of sensitive agencies the right to fire employes summarily on security grounds . . . Representative Herlong (D., Fla.) has put in a bill to protect the job rights of persons on Civil Service registers who are called into military service.

NOTES: At Federal Communications, an employe representative board has been set up on a permanent basis. Employe members are James B. Lowell, W. H. Hunter, J. D. Bond, Earl J. Lombard, L. E. DeLaFleur, Thomas L. Heron, Arthur A. Gladstone, Asher H. Ende, Anne B. Richmond and Andrew R. Johnson . . . At Interior, Lewis A. Sigler is the new associate general counsel of Indian Affairs. He was formerly with Agriculture. . . . Alastair MacBain, a well known writer, is the new information director of the Fish and Wildlife Service . . . Henry C. Iler has the support of the Federal Power Lodge for reelection as AFGE president

SHE BAKED A CAKE—Miss Suzanne Monnett, of Adelina, Md., displays chocolate cake she whipped up for the 4-H club exhibit

More than 1000 Maryland 4-H Club youngsters assembled at the University of Maryland yesterday to open the twenty-eighth annual 4-H Club Week.

The boys and girls, between the ages of 12 and 21, spent most of the day registering, getting settled in dormitory quarters and entering exhibits of handiwork for judging later in the week.

They did take time out, however, to inspect the university's new football stadium, to be dedicated this fall, and to audition for places in the Club Week Band.

Last night they were entertained with movies taken in Europe on a recent trip by Maryland 4-H boys who competed in a dairy cattle judging contest in England.

The affair will continue through Friday when new members of the All-Stars, honorary group, will be announced.

Friday will be set aside as visitors' day for friends and families of 4-H'ers.

District Making Evaluation Of Slum Clean-up Operations

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

The District government's experiment with the Baltimore Plan of slum cleanup is being evaluated this week to determine whether the first year of operation has shown results.

Two Health Department inspectors, armed with a list of the original defects listed in the initial survey of Square 150, are now checking the 120 homes to determine what improvements, if any, have been made and whether the owners plan any further work.

The homes in the area bounded by Florida ave., U, V and 17th sts. nw. are 40 percent owner-occupied and the remainder are rentals, Assistant Corporation Counsel Hubert Pair, a member of the Commissioners' Committee for Rehabilitation of Square 150, said.

Letters listing the shortcomings in each home have been sent to the residents as part of the program of getting them to clean up yards and repair buildings, Pair said. The present checkup may determine whether stronger measures than urging are necessary, it was indicated.

The first reports from the checkup indicate about 25 homes have made some improvements such as ripping out dilapidated backyard fences, sheds and abandoned outhouses.

The District agencies, working on the premise that the District government should set an example for the residents, already have planted trees in the area and the Sanitation Department has concentrated on removing refuse.

Meanwhile, the Highway Department is conducting surveys of the two alleys running between Seaton st. and U and Seaton and V sts. to determine whether repaving is necessary to remove rat nests in the broken pavements, Pair said.

The cleanup section was selected in July, 1949, by the commissioners as an area where "progressive blight" had set in, but the slum stage had not yet been reached.

The project is the District government's approach to the slum problem since its long-awaited Redevelopment Land Agency's projects have been blocked for several years by the decision of Congress not to appropriate funds for them.

Weather to Stay 'On the Beam'

The weather forecaster has nothing but good news for Washington and vicinity today.

It will be continued sunny yet cool and pleasant — pleasant — pleasant! The temperature should reach a high not above 84 degrees, he predicts.

Yesterday's high was 81 at 4:25 p. m. The low, and early risers remember a few shivers to prove it, was 61 at 6:45 a. m. No record low was set — the thermometer dropped to 60 on August 7 just two years ago and as low at 58 on August 7 of 1912—but definitely below normal, said the forecaster.

Morals Case Handwriting Probe Asked

Prosecutor Requests Defense Witnesses For R. S. Williams To Produce Samples

A District prosecutor requested handwriting from all defense witnesses—including a prominent clergyman—in a morals case yesterday to determine authorship of two mysterious letters.

The request was made angrily by Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King, during Municipal Court proceedings in the case of Robert Sneed Williams, jr., 45, who is awaiting sentence for exposing himself before two teen-age girls last April near American University.

After Williams' conviction, King received two unsigned letters from a person who admitted the offenses and said that Williams was innocent. King publicly promised the writer immunity, but there was no response.

Yesterday, during a hearing for a 30-day delay before a new-trial motion is heard, King announced that he would cooperate in every way in the case, that he needs handwriting samples and perhaps fingerprints of all defense witnesses.

He then mentioned by name Rev. Dr. A. Powell Davies, pastor of the All Souls (Unitarian) Church, where Williams is a trustee. During the trial, Dr. Davies was a character witness for Williams.

The defendant is now a lumber estimator. He is a former District school teacher and during the World War II was a Naval officer.

His attorney, Paul R. Connolly, opened the hearing yesterday by saying that a delay was needed to make a complete check of fingerprints on the two letters. Only one fingerprint so far has been identified. It was that of Joseph Lowther, an assistant corporation counsel, who read one of the letters, he said.

Four Sought In Gasoline Station Theft

Police broadcast a lookout for four men, one with a injured right foot, who robbed the Sunoco Gas Station, 17th st. and Benning rd. ne., yesterday of $346.15 in cash and a $119 check.

The proprietor, Walter C. Brooks, said the four drew up in a car about 4:30 p. m. Two got out of the car and talked to a station employe, then asked Brooks to change a dollar so they could buy cigarettes.

The third man, he reported, went into the station to the men's room, while the fourth, with a bandaged foot, remained in the car. When the third returned, he joined his two companions and drove away. When Brooks checked the open safe in the station a few minutes later, he found the money and check gone. He said the men were riding in a 1938 Plymouth sedan with Maryland license tags.

Two third floor apartments in the 5000 block of 1st st. nw., were entered by duplicate keys and burglarized while the occupants were out of town over the weekend, police reported.

From the apartment of William E. Siddell, a telephone company employe, of 5050 1st st., the thief took $10 in cash and jewelry valued at $200.

Two downtown offices also were entered sometime over the weekend, police reported. John W. Schuler, manager of the Monumental Life Insurance Co., 601 13th st. nw., reported the office was entered by jimmying the front door and forcing an inside door. A safe-type cabinet in the cashier's office was forced open and $153 in bills and change taken, he told police.

The Orthopedic Appliance and Limb Co., in the Washington Building, 15th st. and New York ave. nw., was entered, a desk ransacked and $67 in cash taken, police said.

Candidate Carr To Speak Wednesday

Thomas S. Carr, Annapolis radio station executive who is seeking the Sixth Maryland District seat in Congress as a Republican, will make his first campaign appearance Wednesday in Hyattsville.

Carr, seeking Lansdale G. Sasscer's post, will speak at the meeting of the Young Republican Club of Prince Georges County at 8:30 p. m. in the Oriole Room of the Madison Cafeteria, Baltimore ave. and Madison st.

Police Seeking Size 40 Shoplifter and Pajamas

Police yesterday sought a plump shoplifter who walked into Lerner's Dress Shop at 3110 14th st. nw., and took 8 pairs of women's pajamas, all size 40.

Murray Kahn, manager, told police the pajamas, valued at $36, were on sale and lying on a special counter.

Music 'Broker' Wins Appeal In Phone Suit

Court Gives Go-Ahead For Second Chance In Contract Fight

A "sundown orchestra broker" was given a second chance yesterday to win his $50,000 suit against the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. for breach of contract.

He is E. Bradley Clay, 43, of 1404 Tuckerman st. nw., a war veteran and State Department employe. During the evenings, he books bands for parties, meetings, and other functions.

He claims that he was damaged when the telephone company in 1947 welched on its promise not to assign one of his two telephone numbers to anyone else when he canceled it, and when they failed to carry out a later promise to refer all his calls to a new number.

The end result of this was, he claimed that his customers no longer sought him out and his business was greatly damaged. However, his case was thrown out in District Court and then taken to the United States Court of Appeals.

The Appeals Court said, in a two-to-one decision, that the trial court erred in throwing out the case. Under the facts presented, according to the reviewing court, the telephone company "contracted to provide reference service . . . and subsequently breached such contract."

In his dissent, Judge E. Barrett Prettyman said that under its regulations, the company was absolved since it could not under the governing regulations, make such a contract.

Bill to Limit Cabs OK'd by House Group

A bill to let the Public Utilities Commission place a ceiling on the number of taxicabs in Washington was approved yesterday by the House District Committee.

The measure, sponsored by Representative J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.), was one of four bills indorsed by the committee and sent to the House.

The other bills would:

1. Authorize the District Commissioners to regulate "the keeping and running-at-large of goats."

2. Provide for barbers' posting prices of all their services in their shops. The Commissioners would regulate the details. The bill also ends a $25 minimum fine and calls for a $200 maximum fine for violations of the Barber Act.

3. Double the fees for automobile dealers' tags.

By the taxi bill, the PUC would be "authorized and empowered" to fix the limit on the number of cabs at a level adequate to serve the public convenience and necessity.

The reduction in the number of cabs would be made by letting lapse the licenses that are voluntarily surrendered. The committee fixed January 1, 1951, as the effective date for the proposed law.

A similar measure has been sidetracked to date by the Senate District Committee.

Hikers to Act In U. S. Film for German Audiences

The Appalachian Trail Club of Washington will provide actors this weekend for a State Department film on outdoor hiking activities prepared for the orientation of Germans.

The Department's Bureau of German Affairs is producing the 10-minute black and white film for showing in German commercial theaters and on non-theatrical circuits. It is intended to encourage German hikers to adopt the informal approach of American groups, rather than a "more authoritarian tendency" of present German outdoor organizations, a State Department spokesman said.

Victor A. Howard, club president and secretary of the District Personnel Board, said the members will assemble Saturday at 7 a. m. for a motor trip to the Shenandoah National Park where the filming will take place.

2 Days Needed To Clear Water In Alexandria

The water in Alexandria probably won't be good for anything but bathing and washing dishes for another two days.

Officials of the Alexandria Water Co. yesterday estimated it would take that long to dissipate completely the obnoxious taste and odor which have permeated the city's water supply.

The taste followed action of Army employes at the Cameron quartermaster depot in unwittingly dumping a large quantity of disinfectant into a storm sewer near one of the water company's "feeder" streams last week.

Howard C. Richards, president of the water company, said elimination of the nuisance was a matter of "dilution" of the present water supply. He said it could not be accomplished too quickly without endangering water pressure in the city's fire hydrant.

According to Richards, water is being drained from the "clear water reservoir" at the company's filter plant and also is being dissipated from fire hydrants at key locations in the water system. However, he said it was a slow process due to the fact that the company wants to keep an ample supply of water on hand in event of a fire emergency.

The lysol-like taste of Alexandria water had diminished considerably yesterday, but still was obvious enough to send hundreds of residents to other locations for "stop-gap" supplies. The Mutual Ice Co., which has an artesian well on its property on N. Henry st., was serving all comers, and in Shirlington, served by the Arlington water system, a number of filling stations and restaurants were offering free, odorless water to residents of the nearby Parkfairfax apartment development.

Richards said he considered disposal of the antiseptic solution so close to the water company's stream an "inexcusable error," but added his company planned no protest to Army authorities, "already embarrassed by the incident."

Selectee Held

Window Glass Smashed in 8 Md. Stores

Thomas C. Nichols, 19, of Wheaton, Md., did not keep his date with the Army medical examiner yesterday. He was under arrest on charges of having broken window and door glasses in eight Wheaton stores.

Nichols is scheduled to face Trial Magistrate William B. Wheeler in Silver Spring Police Court today, but not as a stranger. He is due to be sentenced for having broken the glass on a Silver Spring antique store after his conviction last Tuesday.

The youth also will be arraigned on eight charges of destroying private property as the result of yesterday's early morning smashing of 25 large plate glass windows, a door glass and five window panes, police said. Damage was estimated at $2000.

Nichols, scheduled to report for preinduction physical examination for the draft, was arrested at his home after a store owner identified him as the man he saw break the glass. Nichols denied the charges.

Falls Church Will Retain Harry Wells As Manager

Council Declines To Reappoint Dunn By 5-2 Vote After Lengthy Discussion

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

By a 5-to-2 vote, the Falls Church City Council last night refused to reappoint Roy F. Dunn to the job of city manager and retained former City Clerk Harry Wells in that job.

The action climaxed a two-hour council meeting in which councilmen for and against Dunn—who was ousted as acting city manager last week—swapped verbal punches.

More than 150 Falls Church citizens jammed the tiny council chamber in the City Hall, peered through doorways and windows.

The council, in its negative vote, rejected a recommendation by one of its special committees that Dunn be named to the job in order to save the city's $700,000 school bond issue.

Fear for Bond Issue

The committee said it feared that an injunction suit filed last week to restrain Wells from serving as city manager would jeopardize the execution of the school bonds and leave no city manager to sign them.

But City Attorney LaRue Van Meter told the council: "These bonds are going to be sold," despite the city manager row in Falls Church. He said he had the word of "a leading New York bond authority" for this.

Voting against the return of Dunn to the post he occupied since 1947 as town and city manager were: Councilmen Karl Anderson, J. H. McCarthy, Mrs. Dillon S. Myer, Lee M. Rhoads and Sherman Wells—the latter the father of Harry Wells.

Councilmen James E. Durant and Samuel E. McCrary voted to return Dunn to the job. It was McCrary who last week led the fight against Dunn's ouster.

Earlier last night, the council voted by the identical 5-2 vote to direct City Attorney Van Meter to fight the injunction restraining Wells from acting as city manager.

Councilman McCrary was one of the five Falls Church residents who brought about the injunction, which is valid until an August 15 hearing in Fairfax Circuit Court.

Called "Capricious"

McCrary last night called the council action Wednesday in firing Dunn "arbitrary and capricious" and charged they had "slipped him out and hired a rubber stamp."

Councilman Rhoads then went over a list of what he regarded as Dunn's failures in the job. Generally, he said, he and other councilmen felt Dunn "has not been handling the job in the proper manner."

Mayor Albert M. Orme added that Dunn's work has been "wholly unsatisfactory" to experts who conducted Falls Church's recent unsuccessful annexation suit against Fairfax County.

"Qualified Man" Question

In urging the council not to contest the injunction, McCrary told them there was a "good chance" it will be sustained in court. If Dunn was not appointed, he warned, the council "simply can't get a qualified man" in time to execute the school bonds.

But Councilman Anderson, who last week moved appointment of Harry Wells as city manager, replied: "We already have a qualfied man in the job." He asked McCrary to withdraw the injunction.

At one point in the meeting, McCrary asked Harry Wells point-blank whether he was willing to serve in the post of city manager.

Wells said he had been approached by a special council committee to serve "on a temporary basis," and "I agreed to accept on a temporary basis."

$15,000 Sum Needed; Commission Pledges $5000 Toward Total

Montgomery Blair High School Alumni are campaigning to raise $10,000 needed to provide night lighting for the school stadium.

The Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission has pledged $5000 of $15,000 needed, provided the additional $10,000 is raised by the alumni and the students of the Silver Spring school, according to Paul F. Kreh, president of the Alumni Association.

Letters have been received from the county government; Fred Lee, president of the county council; County Manager Irving G. McNayr, the Civitan Club of Silver Spring and the board of education—all approving the project and expressing desire to cooperate, he said. The school board said it could not provide money because of the pressure for classrooms at present. Letters have been sent to the Silver Spring Board of Trade, the local Lions and Kiwanis Clubs and other groups which have not answered as yet, Kreh said.

The Alumni Association plans to have the stadium lighted for night use as a community meeting place, for community entertainment and sports, and for high-class school sports and entertainment purposes.

Persons interested in aiding the project should get in touch with alumni officials or school officials, Kreh said.

$10,240 Loan For Arlington Study Granted

The Housing and Home Finance Agency approved a $10,240 loan to Arlington County yesterday to finance a study of a proposed community stadium at the site of the present Greenbriar Playground.

Arlington County Manager A. T. Lundberg, who had no official notification of the agency's action, said the loan was requested recently to provide for a study of the proposed stadium cost, preparation of preliminary drawings and also for preparation of a "standard plan" for three swimming pools the county proposes to build.

The swimming pools would be built with proceeds of a $500,000 bond issue approved by county voters in a public referendum held simultaneously with the annual primary elections last week.

Lundberg said the proposed stadium would be used in connection with the county-wide recreation program and is planned tentatively to seat 8000 spectators. However, the capacity and size of the project would be contingent on results of the study, designed to provide "the most adequate stadium for the least expenditure," he said.

It would be built at 27th and Greenbriar sts., in an area now being used as a softball and baseball field under sponsorship of the county recreation department.

District Officials Plan Center for Civilian Defense

District officials are going ahead with plans for conversion of the city-owned Upshur Street Hospital at 14th and Upshur sts. nw., as a civil defense center although Congress has not yet authorized funds.

Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, Engineer Commissioner, indicated yesterday that he will submit the name of a director for the program to his fellow Commissioners shortly and that in the interim he is preparing an outline of the district program for the director and his 16-man staff.

His assistant, Lieut. Col. Thomas J. Hayes, 3d, has been drafting plans for the Upshur renovation and said yesterday that bids for the project will be asked shortly. Consideration is also being given to establishment of a second standby headquarters, Young said.

Electrician Breaks Hip

John A. Noonan, 57, an electrician, of 318 Cedar ave., Takoma Park, Md., fractured his left hip yesterday when he stepped out of a basement door and fell 3 feet on an apartment construction job at 4200 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Davis in GOP Race Until 'Kicked Out'

Parley Opens

Statler Tree Is the Apple Of Their Eye

By Philip J. Austensen
Post Reporter

State Senator Roy Tasco Davis is in the fight for the Republican nomination for Governor of Maryland until he is "kicked out," he told the National Republican School of Politics last night.

The school was held in the Masonic Hall, Silver Spring, Md., under auspices of the National Committee and Montgomery County Republicans.

Senator Davis spoke briefly when he was introduced with other candidates as part of the school program. He had been urged by the Republican Activities Committee to withdraw and leave the field clear for Theodore Roosevelt McKeldin of Baltimore. He did not elaborate upon his statement except to say he wanted to let his friends know he was in the fight to the finish.

Representative J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.), unopposed for the Republican nomination to succeed himself, and John Marshall Butler, Baltimore attorney who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, also were introduced. Then county Republican candidates were presented.

The school was opened by Mrs. Leona Rush, Montgomery County member of the House of Delegates and a candidate for reelection, with the ringing of a large dinner bell, followed singing of "School Days" and a salute to the flag.

Miss Bertha Adkins of Salisbury, Republican committeewoman from Maryland, welcomed the group, and Albert B. Hermann, executive director of the Republican National Committee, said the schools being held in 15 States are of strategic value in promoting Republican morale and aiding party workers. About 200 precinct workers and leaders were present. Hermann said a special appeal would be made to laborers, young people and veterans.

Teachers at the school were F. Trowbridge Vom Baur, Washington lawyer who is team captain; Mrs. Gladys P. Gordon of Cleveland, Ohio, administrative assistant in the Women's Division of the Republican National Committee, and James F. Hogan, Jersey City, N. J., campaign expert who organized workers credited with overthrowing the Hague machine.

Hogan told the gathering that 350,000 persons in Maryland are not registered. It is the job of the Republican precinct workers to find out why and see that they are registered Republicans, he said, estimating that at least 85 percent of the 350,000 sympathize with Republican principles.

It was announced at the meeting that the following Republicans are without opposition in the primaries and are therefore automatically the party candidates in the county:

DeWitt S. Hyde, Bethesda, for State Senator; George F. Nesbitt, Sandy Spring, First District; Lathrop E. Smith, Travilah, Third District; John C. Reid, Bethesda, Fourth District, and Harold F. Hammond, Silver Spring, incumbent, Fifth District, for County Council. Register of Wills Walter C. Clarke of Silver Spring; Judges of the Orphans Court William Tyler Page, jr., and Charles H. Squire, both of Chevy Chase, and Willward C. Taft, Takoma Park, all incumbents; James B. Parkhill, Takoma Park, for clerk of circuit court. Charles S. Lawrenson, Silver Spring, for sheriff, and Thomas B. McNeil, Takoma Park, for county surveyor.

The school will continue tonight in the House of Delegates chamber at the Maryland State House in Annapolis.

In Baltimore Thomas R. B. Mudd urged Davis today to become a former candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, like himself. He was joined in the statement—which came from McKeldin's campaign headquarters here—by Republican State Senators James B. Monrore of Charles County, and Paul J. Bailey of St. Marys.

Hoff to Resign As Md. GOP Chief

Baltimore, Aug. 7 (AP).—State Senator Stanford Hoff, Westminister attorney who is chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, announced today he will not serve again after his two-year term is completed next month.

Hoff, who succeeded Galen L. Tait in 1948, said today his law practice had suffered in the meantime from lack of attention.

The Rev. Whitesell, 82, Dies; Methodist Minister

Stanley, Va., Aug. 7 (Spl.).—The Rev. William James Whitesell, 82, retired Methodist minister who served in the Methodist Conference for 43 years, died today at his home here.

The Rev. Whitesell, a graduate of Randolph Macon College, had preached in Fairfax, Va., Sykesville, Brunswick and Dunkirk, Md., and in West Virginia prior to his retirement 10 years ago.

He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Cora Brubaker, whom he married 54 years ago; two sons, Dr. Willard A. and Dr. J. Edwin Whitesell, both of the University of South Carolina faculty, and a daughter, Mrs. R. B. Clagett, a teacher at the Stanley High School.

Funeral services will be held here Thursday, with interment in the Graves Chapel Cemetery near here.

The 56th annual convention of the International Apple Association opened yesterday with real trees blooming in the Statler lobby and almost 1000 delegates on hand to discuss the five chief industry problems.

The trees were specially treated to bloom at the convention. Authorities said they have never known apple trees to bloom on August 7 before.

Samuel Fraser, Rochester, N. Y., secretary of the association, who grew the trees, said they had been treated with hormones and kept under refrigeration.

"There's no advantage to doing it," he said. "It's just fun."

Fraser said the five problems which would be discussed during the three-day convention are:

1. Scarcity and rising price of lumber for crates.

2. Lack of enough refrigerated freight cars to bring the giant Western apple crop to Eastern consumer centers.

3. Scarcity of labor, which already forces apple growers to import labor from Mexico, the West Indies and Canada, and which will deteriorate further with any mobilization.

4. Threat of anti-trust action by the Government. Anti-trust suits against some Cincinnati distributors have already been filed, Fraser said.

5. Possibility of a Federal freeze on prices.

Aid Too Late

Ill Fireman Pulls Siren, Falls Dead

William M. Mobley, custodian of he Gaithersburg-Washington Grove Volunteer Fire Department, has sounded the siren for the last time.

Trying to get aid after suffering a lung hemorrhage, he touched it off Sunday, then collapsed in front of the fire house door near the siren switch.

He was pronounced dead at the scene of a heart attack a short while later by his physician, Dr. Frank J. Broschart, deputy medical examiner for Montgomery County.

Mr. Mobley, who was 45, had been a member of the Gaithersburg Fire Department since it was organized in 1927. He was well remembered for his heroic role in rescuing an invalid from the second story of a burning house in Cedar Grove.

Illness, however, took him off the trucks and his job then consisted of maintaining equipment and summoning firemen in emergencies. He was a native of Gaithersburg.

A bachelor, Mr. Mobley is survived by his father, Wallace Mobley; a brother, Jacob Mobley, with whom he resided; and three sisters, Mrs. Helen Ricketts of Washington Grove, Mrs. Sadie Ricketts of Rockville and Mrs. Vergie Beavis of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. today at the Gartner funeral home, Gaithersburg. Burial will be in Forest Oak Cemetery there.

C. U. Workshop Students Hear Two Authors

Forty or more apprentice and journeymen writers attended opening sessions of the second annual, non-denominational Workshop on Creative Writing at Catholic University yesterday.

Dr. Leo V. Jacks, of Omaha, Neb., member of the faculty of Creighton University, and author of a biography of Claude DuBois, a bishop of Galveston who died in France in 1896, and other books, addressed the introductory morning session. It is the second writers' conference that Dr. Jacks has conducted this year—in June he directed the Omaha Writers' Conference.

Yesterday afternoon the 40 or more students were led into the practical side of writing with a lecture by Walter S. Campbell (Stanley Vestal) of Norman, Okla., on "structure of the article: methods of marketing."

Vestal, a former Rhodes scholar, is the author of a score of books, some on the technical problems of writing and others on the West, including a biography of Jim Bridger, the Mountain Man and "The Missouri" in the Rivers of America series.

The Rev. James J. Donohue of Dubuque, Iowa, a poet, whose book "Exile in the Stars," was recently published, will give the first of several lectures this week.

Among others scheduled to lecture during the 10-day work shop are Shirley Seifert, author of "The Turquoise Trail," "The Proud Way," and other popular novels; Sheila Cudahy, who with her husband, George Pellegrini, in 1946 started the publishing house of Pellegrini & Cudahy, and George S. Brooks, prominent magazine writer and playwright.

The workshop is open to the public and may be attended either on a full-time or part-time basis. Information on the program and fees may be obtained from the Director of Workshops, Catholic University.

Washington Home At Charles Town To Be Restored

Dr. John Augustine Washington, prominent Washington pediatrician, is going to restore Harewood, one of the colonial homes built in the Charles Town, W. Va., area by members of George Washington's family, the Associated Press reported yesterday.

Dr. Washington is a native of the area and a descendant of the Washington family.

"Harewood," on the Middleway road just west of Charles Town, was built by Col. Samuel Washington, brother of the First President. A mantelpiece is said to have been the gift of Lafayette; James Madison and Dolley Payne Todd were married there before he became President; and Louise Philippe, later King of France, was once a guest.

David Wise, Co-Owner of Store, Buried

Funeral services for David Wise, sr., 56, who died of a heart attack at his home at 3818 Harrison st. nw., Saturday, were held yesterday at Gawler's funeral home, 1756 was in Washington Hebrew Congregation Cemetery.

Mr. Wise was co-owner of Harry Kaufman, Inc., department store, 1316 7th st. nw.

Born in Atlantic City, N. J., he spent most of his boyhood in Philadelphia. He was a resident of Washington for 37 years and he was a 32d degree Mason and a member of the Washington Hebrew Congregation.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Annette Wise; a son, David Wise, jr.; two daughters, Elaine and Audrey Wise; four brothers, and three sisters.

7 New Polio Cases Listed In D. C. Area

Seven new cases of polio were reported yesterday in Greater Washington, raising the total to 103 for the year.

Six of the cases raised the total in the District to 56, as compared with 17 for this date last year. The seventh case was a 37-year-old woman from the 8700 block of Baron rd., Silver Spring, who was admitted to Walter Reed Hospital Saturday. The Montgomery total now is 12, compared with five for this date last year.

Road Surface Contract Let In Arlington

The Arlington County Board last night shelved a proposal to undertake its own street repair work and awarded a $139,200 contract to the Arlington Asphalt Co. for projects in the current fiscal year.

The board voted, 3 to 2, for the award, despite a report by County Manager A. T. Lundberg that the county could do the work at a saving of about $12,000 a year.

Opposing the award to the private firm were Mrs. Florence Cannon and Robert Cox. Both attacked any action which would increase costs to the taxpayers.

Board Chairman Dan Dugan, who made the motion to award the contract, said he doubted the accuracy of Lundberg's figures. He also expressed doubt that inexperienced county employes could provide the quality of work which would be offered by the asphalt concern.

F. Freeland Chew, in explaining his vote for the private award, said he was "fundamentally opposed to the county's entering the field of private enterprise." Board Member Alfred Frisbie voted for the award without comment.

Controversy over the contract award developed last month after the asphalt company submitted a bid about 21 percent higher than one it had offered only 30 days previously. The first bids were thrown out by the board because they had been advertised improperly.

Company officials said the increase in their estimate was due to higher labor and material costs brought about by the Korean crisis. At the time of the second bid, Lundberg expressed belief the county could save money by doing the work with its own crews and equipment.

PHA Holds Up Planned Sale Of Greenbelt

The Federal-owned City of Greenbelt may not be sold after all.

A Public Housing Administration spokesman yesterday disclosed the agency is now reviewing its policy on the disposition of public housing projects because of the current military situation.

Yesterday was the deadline for offers to purchase the nearby Prince Georges County development which was put up for sale June 7 for a price of $8,522,350.

Only one bid was received—from the Greenbelt Veterans Housing Corp.

The PHA's decision to review its disposal policy stemmed directly from the Korean war outbreak, the spokesman stated. It must now take into account probable future housing needs, both military and civilian, he said.

A decision may be forthcoming this week, he added.

The PHA has refused to accept bids for the sale of another housing project in the Pacific northwest, he said. He did not identify the project.

The offer to sell Greenbelt contained a clause reserving the agency's right to withdraw any or all facilities offered for sale, the spokesman pointed out.

TV Test Proves Color Can Travel Long Distances

A test broadcast in color was made in Washington yesterday and picked up on television sets in New Jersey and Connecticut.

Color signals were sent from NBC's television station WNBW in the Wardman Park Hotel on a 15-minute program. They went over the regular TV coaxial cable to NBC's New York station WNBT, then were put on the air.

The program in color was picked up in Princeton, N. J., and Bridgeport, Conn. Radio Corporation of America, which made the broadcast, said it showed color TV can travel long distances over coaxial cables.

Mrs. Pearson Funeral Set Wednesday

Funeral services for Mrs. Luella J. Pearson, 82, who died late Sunday night at Arlington Hospital, will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday in Andrew Chapel Methodist Church, Fairfax County, Va.

Mrs. Pearson had been ill for five months. She lived with a daughter, Mrs. Maude B. Shockey at 1106 N. Kirkwood dr., rd., Arlington.

A native of Lockport, N. Y., Mrs. Pearson moved with her parents to Vienna, Va., at the age of 16, and she had lived in Arlington since 1917.

The former Luella Nettie Hollandbeck, Mrs. Pearson was the widow of Thomas J. Pearson, Arlington realtor who died in 1946.

In addition to Mrs. Shockey, Mrs. Pearson is survived by a sister, Mrs. Fannie S. Duncan, S. Ode st., Arlington, a granddaughter, Mrs. Mildred L. Bennett of Vienna, and four great-grandchildren.

Dr. Gamewell Dies; Boxer Rebellion Hero

Clifton Springs, N. Y., Aug. 7 (AP). The Rev. Frank Dunlap Gamewell, 92, hero of the siege of Peking during the Boxer Rebellion, died today.

The British and American governments cited Dr. Gamewell for his service in 1900 as "chief of staff" of the city's defenders while they were surrounded for 56 days by hostile Chinese troops.

Appointed to the post by the British legation, he had at his command about 500 legation guards and hundreds of Chinese, British and American civilians.

He fortified the Methodist Mission and crowded 3500 persons inside it. The defenders threw back a number of attacks by boxer forces. An allied army from Tientsin lifted the siege as the defenders were nearing exhaustion.

Dr. Gamewell was a missionary in China from 1881 to 1930, when he retired. He was said to be the oldest retired Methodist missionary.

Carpenter Dies First Day on Job In Falls Church

A 67-year-old carpenter collapsed and died while at work on the Madison elementary school in Falls Church yesterday, his first day at work since moving here recently from Spartanburg, S. C.

He was Cliff A. Simpson, of 215 N. Cherry st., (rear), Falls Church, who was found unconscious by Falls Church police Sergt. Lloyd Kelly. Apparently the victim of a heart attack, he was pronounced dead at 5:10 p. m., after Kelly failed to revive him with artificial respiration.

Kelly said Simpson had been dependent because he had had difficulty finding work and was unable to bring his family here. He had started work happily yesterday morning, however, figuring it was the turning point in his bad luck, Kelly said.

You can't be a Glamour Girl and have a Pimply Face

RESINOL OINTMENT AND SOAP

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills, today!

Tricked Peace Lover Flees Left-Wingers

Because Mrs. Theresa Lee Robinson is obliging and doesn't believe in war, she found herself last night in the position of having unwittingly aided the lobbying efforts today of the left-wing American Women for Peace.

The AWP is expected to arrive in town this morning, about 700 strong, to demonstrate and converge on members of Congress and administration leaders following a noon briefing luncheon at Shiloh Baptist Church, 9th and P sts. nw.

Mrs. Robinson, chairman of the Civil Liberties Department, I. B. P. O. Elks of the World, said she had been approached by two women friends who asked her if she were interested in peace.

Met In California

One of the friends was a woman Mrs. Robinson had met in California a year ago. Last night she could not recall her name, but thought maybe she lived now in New York. The other friend was Mrs. Gertrude M. Evans, executive secretary of the Progressive Party of the District and supporter of the Stockholm World Peace Appeal, which Secretary of State Acheson has described as a Soviet "propaganda trick."

When Mrs. Robinson said "sure," she believed in peace, they asked her if she would send out some letters about today's activities, she said. So, Mrs. Robinson, peace and good will in her heart, sent out a score or more letters to people around town telling them about today's activities.

But last night Mrs. Robinson began to do some thinking.

"I wish I had gone into this a little deeper," she said, adding that she was from Boston, was a Republican, and was going to be out of town today.

Just who made the arrangements for the luncheon at Shiloh Church, to be served by the ladies of the church, was something of a mystery last night.

Mrs. Robinson said she knew nothing about them.

The Rev. E. R. Harrison, pastor, is ill and has been away about two weeks.

Dr. Theodore R. George, chairman of the church's board of trustees, angrily told a reporter seeking to learn if AWP was affiliated with several other groups expected here today, "it is none of your business" who made the arrangements.

Mrs. B. J. Murphy, church secretary, and one of those to receive a letter from Mrs. Robinson, said she knew nothing about the arrangements.

Mrs. Evans said she did not arrange for the luncheon.

Started Several Weeks Ago

Mrs. Evans did say that AWP originated several weeks ago when about 300 women seeking an end to the Korean War, attempted to see U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie.

She also said that she did not think the representatives of the Peace Information Center, Emergency Action Conference committee, representing the Fellowship of Reconciliation, War Resisters League, and Peacemakers, were affiliated with the American Women for Peace project here today.

These groups also are scheduled to visit Washington today in connection with "Peace Week." The Peace Information Center was identified last night by a State Department spokesman as the American headquarters for the Stockholm Peace Appeal. A group representing the Peacemakers organization in December 1948 called upon the Government to "stop persecuting" draft delinquents.

Most of the American Women for Peace arriving at Union Station between 8:05 and 11 a. m. this morning will be coming from New York, where a Communist "Peace" rally resulted in a riot at Union Square last Wednesday. No trouble is expected here, Capt. Harry Blackman, head of the Metropolitan Police special investigations squad, said last night.

Accompanying the women will be a special contingent "interested in prices, housing rents, and the effect of war on our living standards," according to the N. Y. Tenant Consumer and Welfare Council," which adds that they will hold demonstrations at the Department of Agriculture and Public Housing Administration.

Pilot Survives Crash of B-29

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

LIEUT. CARTER W. JOHNSON, of Neubert, Tenn., shown in hospital bed yesterday, was at the controls of Superfortress that crashed Saturday night at Fairfield-Suisun Air Base, Calif., killing 17 persons and injuring 60 others. Air Force officials yesterday were seeking the cause of the crash

500 Airline Crewmen Here Vote to Strike

More than 500 ground crew employes of Capital Airlines here have voted to strike unless a wage dispute is settled, union officials said yesterday.

Another 500 crewmen of the airline in other cities are voting on the strike issue this week.

The development follows an announcement that Eastern Airlines maintenance employes, about 60 of whom are working here, are ready to go out August 20 over a 10 per cent wage boost demand.

However, both the union and the airlines have asked the National Mediation Board for help and a mediator is expected to be assigned this week.

The Railway Labor Act, which covers airline employes, requires several steps, taking 30 to 60 days, before the workers may legally strike.

Officials of the Union, International Association of Machinists, said Capital Airlines workers want a retirement plan and a 5 percent wage increase, and assurances that the company will not subcontract maintenance work on its five new Constellations. The company says an overhaul plant for the new aircraft is impractical at this time, and it has not determined its position of the other issues.

Bolling Base Pair Here After Pa. Crash-Landing

Two Bolling Air Force Base men whose plane was crash-landed near the North Philadelphia Airport Sunday night, were back in Washington yesterday, showing no serious injuries.

Pilot of the small transport, enroute from Gernier Field, N. H., to Bolling, was Lieut. Col. Robert C. Brown, 34, Bolling operations officer, who brought his ship down in a field 500 feet short of the airport's landing strip.

Not, however, until he had instructed his passenger, Tech. Sergt. Joseph Reidy, 30, of 2800 31st st. se., to bail out. Reidy landed in a prison farm tomato patch.

The engines on the plane failed when thhe handle of the fuel selector broke as the pilot started to switch the gas supply from an empty to a full tank, Bolling authorities said.

Lanham Gets Threat, Turns It Over to FBI

Representative Lanham (D., Ga.) yesterday reported he had been threatened with physical violence.

Lanham, who last Friday engaged in a bitter exchange with a Negro official of the Civil Rights Congress, showed reporters an unsigned post card from New York, which he late rturned over to the FBI. Dated Saturday, it said:

"You Big Bum: The next time I catch you alone I'll crash your teeth into your throat. I'll be looking for you in Washington next week. You are a disgrace to America."

Tidelands Hearings Set

The Senate Interior Committee yesterday agreed to begin hearings next week on "interim" legislation dealing with the "tidelands" dispute between the Federal Government and the states.

How To Help Your "Scratching" Dog

Does your dog constantly scratch, dig, rub, and bite himself—often until his skin is raw and sore? He may be perfectly clean and flea free, but suffering from an intense itching irritation that has centered in the nerve endings of his skin. He is in torment and can't help scratching—unless you try to help him. Try giving him Rex Hunters Dog Powders, once each week, and note the quick improvement.

One owner writes: "If my dog could talk I know he would say thanks for Rex Hunters Dog Powders. He was raw and sore from scratching and just lay around. Now he plays and is full of pep." Ask for Rex Hunters Dog Powders at any good drug store, pet or sport shop. Only 30c. (Large box only $1.00).

Important. Continued diarrhea—frequent itching. When your dog shows such symptoms, suspect Worms. Rex Hunters Dependable Worm Capsules give immediate results.

Battle Orders Safety Drive In Virginia

Richmond, Va., Aug. 7 (AP).—Governor Battle today directed State police to step up their enforcement efforts to cut the traffic toll which has taken more than 500 lives in Virginia this year.

Alarmed by the highway slaughter which is claiming more than two lives a day in addition to those persons seriously and permanently injured, the Governor said: "The great majority of these so-called traffic accidents are the direct result of violations of our traffic laws."

"These," he said, "are alarming and distressing conditions. They call for an all-out effort to induce compliance with reasonable traffic regulations and thus reduce accidents—and they can be reduced if all of us take the proper steps to that end." Battle added:

"I am therefore directing the Department of State Police to redouble its enforcement efforts and to place renewed emphasis upon the importance of patrolling our highways and enforcing traffic regulatory laws."

Alleged Ohio Red Recants; To Tell All to House Group

By the United Press

David H. Levison, alleged Cincinnati, Ohio, Communist, recanted yesterday and agreed to testify before the House Un-American Activities Committee about Red activities in Ohio.

Representative Francis E. Walter, (D., Pa.) acting chairman of the committee, said Levison purged himself of contempt proceedings recommended after he refused, on July 14, to tell the committee whether he was or ever had been a Communist.

Committee counsel Frank Tavenner said Levison would testify at a public hearing today.

He was one of 59 "reluctant" witnesses against whom the committee had recommended contempt prosecution. The House is scheduled to vote on the other 58 cases on Thursday.

Library of Congress Publishes Health Survey

The Library of Congress yesterday announced publication of a detailed analysis of data and opinion on proposals for national compulsory health insurance titled "National Health Insurance."

The study, by Helen E. Livingston, a staff member, is No. 85 in the library's Public Affairs Bulletin series. It is available from the library's card division at 50 cents a copy.

Silver Spring Club Supports Lane Ticket

The Silver Spring Women's Democratic Club last night voted to support Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., in his reelection campaign.

The group, which praised Governor Lane for "many forward-looking steps" to improve schools, roads, mental institutions and other State facilities, also voted its support to the Victory Committee of Montgomery County.

In special meeting at the Jessup Blair Community House, the club indorsed the Victory Committee's candidates for the September 18 primary election and voted to contribute $100 for campaign expenses. Members pledged their services at the committee' headquarters in Wheaton, Md.

The special meeting was called by Mrs. George Eiker, president.

$25,000 Bond Set For 2 N. Y. Men In Bogus Bill Case

Richmond, Va., Aug. 7 (AP).—A United States Commissioner today fixed bond at a total of $25,000 for two New Yorkers charged with passing counterfeit $10 bills in six Virginia cities.

Bond was set at $15,000 for Joseph Marsala, 20, and at $10,000 for Alan J. Rosen, 25, by Commissioner Melvin Flegenheimer. He returned both to the Richmond City Jail to await trial at the October term of Federal District Court when they were unable to furnish bond.

Marsala and Rosen are charged with passing bills in Norfolk, Suffolk, Petersburg, Portsmouth, Fredericksburg and Richmond.

Norwood G. Greene, special agent in charge of the Richmond office of the Secret Service, said $3160 in bogus $10 bills was found in Fredericksburg Friday in the pair's automobile. Greene said they admitted having "about $4000" in counterfeit bills when they began spending the money.

Jury Indicts D. C. Father in Morals Case

The District Grand Jury returned indictments yesterday accusing a father of attempting to have carnal relations with his 10-year-old daughter, and a husband of forcing his wife to lead a life of prostitution.

Accused of attempting to abuse his daughter sexually was Jesse D. Adams, 31, of 918 H st. nw. He also was accused of taking immoral liberties with the girl. Both offenses, it is charged, occurred on September 15, 1949.

Clyde B. Moon, 24, of the Harris Hotel, is charged in an indictment with using "force, fraud, intimidation and threats" to make his wife, Betty P. Moon, 29, of 215 8th st. nw., a prostitute on April 26.

Eight other men were indicted on morals charges. They are listed as:

Claude Nash, 42, of the Harris Hotel, charged with arranging for a woman to engage in prostitution; Bennie E. McClain, 31, of 1102 9th st. nw., charged with carnal knowledge; James W. Brown, 24, of 5101 F st. se., charged with carnal knowledge; John J. Gleason, 43, no fixed address, charged with assault with intent to commit rape and sodomy; Walter N. Hall, 21, of 2208 6th st. nw., charged with taking indecent liberties with a 5-year-old child;

Government Bans 'Softeners' That Make Bread Seem Fresh

By the United Press

The Food and Drug Administration yesterday tentatively banned the use of chemical products to make bread appear fresher than it is.

An agency spokesman said a "large percentage" of bakers have been using these so-called "softeners" since World War II.

He said the agency decided after lengthy hearings and research that there is a "lack of evidence" that the softeners are safe.

The agency also concluded, he said, that it "might be to the interest of the consumer" to make bread appear to be fresher than it is.

The agency took the action in issuing a proposed order governing the use of softeners and other "optional" ingredients that bakers have started using.

During hearings, proposals were made to require labeling of all bread ingredients. Since the beginning of World War II, there has been no labeling requirement.

The proposed order is subject to further review. Interested parties may file objections within 30 days.

Rep. Hall Blames Democrats for Red Action in Korea

Representative Leonard W. Hall (R., N. Y.), chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, yesterday said the Democrats are to blame for the Communist invasion of South Korea.

Hall sent a letter to Democratic nominees for the House to correct "outright errors" of fact, padded figures, and distortions of the actual record."

Representative Kirwan (D., Ohio), had blamed "isolationists" in Congress and said most of the Republicans belonged in that category. He said they "must shoulder the responsibility for the Communist attack on South Korea."

In support of that claim he cited almost solid opposition in the House to a bill for economic aid in Korea. It was defeated once, but passed later.

Hall said a speech last January 12 by Secretary of State Acheson "was an open invitation for the Chinese Communists to complete the conquest of China by taking Formosa and South Korea." In that speech, he said, Acheson told the world that the United States would not intervene in China, Formasa or Korea.

He accused the Democrats of having figures on the amount or arms purchased by Korea from this country. The actual amount, he said was $253,000, based on official records, but the Democrats represented it as 253 million dollars.

Mary Haworth's Mail

After 23 Years' Marriage, Man No Longer Loves His Wife; Should He Leave Her Now Or Wait Until Daughter Finishes College?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Twenty-three years ago I married Daisy, a country girl from a very poor family. I was then newly graduated from college, and we now have a daughter who is starting college this fall.

I have been fortunate enough to hold a better than average job, traveling as a manufacturer's representative; and we have a lovely home, two substantial bank accounts and stocks and bonds. The problem is that I have lost all the love I ever had for my wife.

All these years I have played second fiddle to Daisy's parents, and they have never done a thing for her. They didn't even give her a good home before she married. Moreover, she is sexually cold and seems to think a peck on the cheek is all I should expect when leaving on a trip or when I return. I don't enjoy being with her at any time and have to get what pleasure I can at lodges and clubs and sports events.

I am afraid my daughter's life might be ruined if I left my wife, and I love my daughter very much. In such circumstances what is a man supposed to do? Should I leave, or should I stay with the marriage until my daughter is through college, and then leave Daisy? There is no other woman in my life, but with conditions as they are, I think I'd be justified in looking for one. What do you think? J. B.

Futile Regret for Lost Years

DEAR J. B.: You are approximately 45 years of age, I infer, inasmuch as you married when just out of college, and have been married 23 years. Thus you have reached the very top of the ascending arc of life, and from here on the arc tends down, to curtains, gently or abruptly, as the case may be.

Your emotions are heavy with awareness that you are now entering the beginning of the end,—even if you haven't consciously thought in those terms. And that is why you have desperate impulses to go off the track, in urgent quest of a second chance to experience the satisfaction-in-love you feel you've missed. What is this experience you are after? It is a sense of complete belonging, of reciprocal surrender and acceptance, never achieved in relation to your wife.

Your life with Daisy is no emptier now than it has been all along. But as fear makes you suddenly more introspective and also more backward looking, you realize how lonely you are, and how lonely you've always been. And for this you blame Daisy, fuming to yourself that she has always been closer to her parents than to you, despite the little they did for her.

Maladjustment Begins in Self

BUT DON'T you know that loneliness and psychological separatism from next-of-kin are basic quirks in most traveling salesmen? That is why they don't mind the road, also why they gravitate to such work—because it suits their "lone ranger" bias, camouflages their relationship handicap, and enables them to get by and earn a living with least exposure to the searching tests of familiar routine intimacy.

My reading indicates that every major study of factors contributing to success or failure in marriage, includes the finding that traveling salesmen are comparatively poor husbands, in the sense that their married life is seldom companionable or satisfactory to either party. And while it is easy to argue that the man's absence from home "in line of duty" accounts for this, I am sure that the flaw, which makes the rift, is in the man's personality, and not in his circumstances.

So my advice is to get yourself in shape for fullness of life, then rebuild with the partner you have. If Daisy acts frigid, better check yourself for damaging mistakes in attitude and expectations, rather than blame her. You may yet succeed where you have failed, if you will learn how to be open-hearted, emotionally wholesome, truly loving and sexually mature. But you need psychiatric help to bring about this satisfying change in yourself. M. H.

Your Baby and Mine

Forcing an Infant to Sit Up Puts a Strain on His Spine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

HERE is the baby at five and six months—and what a bouncing boy he is now!

The baby has enough control of his spine, so there is a tremendous temptation to the parents to prop him up with pillows. Resist it. He needs to learn to sit up by pushing up with his hands or grasping some support. Then if he gets up even with your help, let him sit as long as he is able and fall back when he is so inclined. Forcing a baby to sit up, by propping, is a strain on his spine.

Now he has such good use of his hands that, in addition to grasping and holding, he can squeeze and push with them. He'll do this with his toys, or a piece of paper.

Salivary Glands Function

HIS salivary glands are beginning to function, and saliva may drip from his mouth and saturate his bib. "He's teething," the wise ones say. He's been teething since birth, the buds of teeth being in the gums at birth, but he may not sprout a tooth until the fifth month or even later.

By the sixth month he'll begin to push with his legs when his feet touch a surface, and he'll act as if he wanted to stand on them. He doesn't; he is just practicing. Though babies have stood up and walked at seven months, the average age for this development is still in the future.

He is an expert at grabbing objects and can now toss his toys over the side of the playpen and then crawl over, reach through the bars, and pick them up again. He'll love to pull at shiny objects like eye-glasses or bright beads.

He Learns His Name

HE now knows his own name, has favorite toys, recognizes his relatives and makes joyous sounds at their appearance, but may stare woodenly at a stranger or even break into tears.

He loves his bath and is adept at splashing and spattering the water until his long-suffering mother is drenched.

He has a varied and generous diet now; likes cereals, fruits, vegetables, egg yolk, meat, pudding, toast, crackers and his milk. He may, if well developed and sturdy, be taking whole milk without one drop of dilution or sugar.

If he has grown as expected, he should weigh more than twice what he did at birth, and his mouth will be decorated with two shiny front, lower teeth. He's quite a person, now, with a personality that is definitely his own.

Tobé Says...

Tie-On-Veils Chic for Evening

I have never approved of hatlessness in general because I think that most women miss a very attractive part of their whole costume ensemble when they go without hats all the time.

But there are lots of times when one is more comfortable without a hat. So the little tie-on face veils that have become such a fad this summer are not only a boon for keeping short hair in place but are the prettiest and most becoming gadgets we've had in years.

Some have little bows or butterflies or tiny birds or flowers perched on top. Others have jewels or pearls caught in the meshes. But all are made to fit over the face and hair.

Only one preparation known to science can actually help make a woman look naturally younger. That is a well-formulated hormone cosmetic such as Endocreme Hormone Cream.

Beauty soaps and beauty creams, lotions, rouges, powders. Dozens of cosmetics can make you prettier—on the surface. But when nature slows down and telltale lines trace your skin, then you need the beneath-the-surface action of Endocreme's female hormones to supplement nature's lack and help offset the usual causes of ageing skin.

By all means use your regular cosmetics. But use them for what they are—surface aids to beauty. To actually improve the skin itself, to recapture and keep a more youthful look, make daily use of Endocreme. A month's supply, only $3.50 plus tax.

Departing Peurifoys on the Go

By Marie McNair

BUSY DAYS are ahead for our new Ambassador to Greece, John Peurifoy, and Mrs. Peurifoy, who are to sail September 7 for Italy and thence by plane to the Greek capital.

A round of farewell parties has been set up for the former Deputy Undersecretary of State and his pretty wife, all designed to speed them happily on their way. In addition there are the two young Peurifoys, John and David, a lively handful, who must be readied for the trip.

The Spanish Ambassador-at-Large and Senora de Leguerica will entertain at dinner Wednesday, August 16, in honor of Ambassador and Mrs. Peurifoy, and this Saturday Louis Thompson of the State Department and Mrs. Thompson have invited a group for swimming and a picnic supper at their home at Sandy Spring, Md.

Yesterday, Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Jack McFall gave a cocktail party for the Peurifoys, asking about 100 friends from the State Department plus a few from the Diplomatic Corps.

Other farewell parties have included Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. George McPhee's noon breakfast on Sunday at Farmer's Delight, their country house at Middleburg, Va.; a State Department picnic at Falls Church last Friday, and on Saturday a cocktail party with Deputy Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Charles M. Hulton and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Boykin as hosts.

New Indian Minister Here

NEWEST member of the Indian Embassy staff is Moti Kirpalani, whose rank as Minister brings him next in command to the Ambassador. He succeeds B. R. Sen who left a few months ago to become Indian Ambassador to Italy.

Mr. Kirpalani is in this country for the first time. He formerly served as Deputy High Commissioner of India in Pakistan.

Celebrating his appointment as Minister of the Army of Portugal, Brig. Adolfo Abranches Pinto, retiring Military and Air Attache of the Portuguese Embassy, was feted at dinner last evening on the Shoreham Terrace. Jorge Braga de Oliveira, Second Secretary of the Portuguese Embassy, was host and in the group were Senhora de Abranches Pinto, mother of the guest of honor, and Senhora de Ferreira de Almeida, wife of the Commercial Attache of the Portuguese Embassy, who is on a trip to Chicago.

On Thursday the Portuguese Ambassador, Luis Esteves Fernandez, will give a farewell reception in honor of his compatriot at the embassy.

Surprise Wedding Announced

THE MARRIAGE of Sherman Flint of Washington, and Mrs. C. Worrall Clarke of St. Louis and Palm Beach, on Friday, comes as something of a surprise to his Washington friends. The ceremony took place in St. Adrian's Chapel at South Dartmouth, Mass. where Mr. Flint is spending the summer at his home, Tree Tops.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. M. Beard Worrall of Washington. Mr. Flint's former wife, who was Miss Olivia Slocum, died in Philadelphia in 1946.

Mr. and Mrs. Flint will be at home after November 1, at 2206 Decatur pl.

Diplomacy Definitely Required

DIPLOMATIC immunity doesn't always accompany DPL license tags. Somewhere between here and California one day last month, Pierre Jaspar, Belgian Counselor, was driving along in his Lincoln, well within the law. An officer sped alongside and asked him to pull over.

"Where are your license plates?" asked the Law.

"On my car," said M. Jaspar with reasonable assurance.

"No they're not, these are duplicates," insisted the officer.

After some discussion, the counselor convinced the officer he was a diplomat, not a duplicate, and drove on without further charges.

Mr. and Mrs. Darwin O'Ryan Curtis announce the birth of a son, Randall Kingman Curtis, on Sunday, August 6, at George Washington Hospital, Mrs. Curtis is the daughter of Mrs. John J. Kingman and the late Brigadier General Kingman.

Stuckey

MRS. JOSEPH A. BECKER, the former Miss Anita Jane Keroes, was married August 3 at Beth Sholom Synagogue. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Myer Keroes and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Becker, all of Washington. The newlyweds will live in Washington on return from their Atlantic City, N. J., honeymoon. The bride is a student at Wilson Teachers College and her husband attends George Washington University.

Hessler

MRS. DAVID LESTER MARX was married August 6, and with her husband she is now on a motor trip through New England. On their return, the couple will make their home in Maryland. Mrs. Marx, the former Miss Lois Sternburg, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sternburg, and Mr. Marx is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Marx.

Hessler

MRS. SAMUEL ZELKOVITZ was married August 6 in the Terrace Room of the Shoreham Hotel. She is the former Miss Sarita Hochberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham H. Hochberg of Washington. Mr. Zelkovitz is the son of Edward Zelkovitz and the late Mrs. Zelkovitz. After a wedding trip to Miami Beach, Mr. and Mrs. Zelkovitz will reside in Washington. The bridegroom attended George Washington University, and the bride is attending the University of Maryland.

Golden Brown Pancakes Depend on the Griddle; Needs to Be Broken In

DEAR ANNE:

I have an aluminum griddle which fits over two burners on my stove. Does this griddle need to be seasoned as some frying pans do? If so, how do I go about it. No instructions came with the griddle.

I know if you cook bacon or hamburgers on the griddle, you probably do not need to grease it, but how about when making pancakes? They seem to burn for me unless I grease the griddle. Then when I grease the griddle, they don't turn out a nice even golden brown like the ones you get in restaurants. Please advise me on this. I should also like a good recipe for making pancakes to serve about 3 people.

J. W. H., Washington.

If you're having this trouble with the griddle, I'd certainly season it. Scour it first with fine steel wool or the special pads made for use on aluminum. Rinse and dry thoroughly. Apply a liberal coating of salad oil or unsalted fat to the inside of the utensil. Set over very low heat or place in a warm oven (250 to 300 degrees) for two or three hours. Rub fat around utensil every 20 minutes or so. Wipe grease out at end of time. Wash in hot soapsuds. Rinse and dry thoroughly. For several weeks thereafter, wipe griddle with oiled cloth before each use, because "seasoning" is a cumulative process.

A recipe for griddle cakes follows. This will make about 18 small cakes. Whether your family want that many depends on their appetites! Batter may be kept overnight in the refrigerator and used next day if you have too much.

GRIDDLE CAKES

1½ cups sifted bread flour	2 eggs, well-beaten
1 teaspoon salt	1 tablespoon melted butter
2½ teaspoons baking powder	1¼ cups milk

Sift dry ingredients together. Add milk and butter to beaten eggs. Make a hole in center of dry ingredients. Pour in the liquid ingredients. Stir them with a few swift strokes until they are blended only. Don't worry about a few lumps. They are harmless, and its better not to beat the life out of the mixture. Drop by spoonfuls on hot griddle.

DEAR ANNE:

I have a 9-by-12 Chinese hand-hooked wool rug which is light in color and soils very easily. Having it cleaned commercially is quite an expense. Can you tell me how I can clean it myself.

Mrs. I. Rubin, 2032 Ft. Davis st. se.

Dry cleaning fluids—especially those made for use on rugs—are your best bet in keeping this rug as nice as possible between professional cleanings. It's very hard to do a thorough job yourself with a rug this size, and you should have it done every now and then.

Aside from color-fast considerations, shampoos aren't advisable on a big rug like this because they leave it damp and it is hard to get it dry. Dampness can cause deterioration of the textile. Shampoos can also leave a residue of soil at the bottom of the pile which is difficult for you to rinse out and may give off a rancid odor.

Beside using a dry cleaning fluid to freshen the rug, you can help keep it clean by being sure your vacuum cleaner is spotless before you sweep it. Go over all parts of the vacuum cleaner with a fresh cloth moistened with dry cleaning fluid. And don't ever go from a dark rug to a light one with your cleaner.

DEAR ANNE:

I have some draperies made of terry cloth and am wondering how best to launder them? Would you iron them?

T. W., Washington.

Laundering terry cloth is an easy business and there's no need to iron it. If the draperies are very dirty, soak them 15 to 20 minutes in lukewarm water or run your automatic washer through its soak cycle.

Wash the cloth in water as hot as the hands can stand, using plenty of suds. If you have an automatic washer, put in required amount of soap, set water temperature dial for hot and allow 8 to 12 minutes washing time. Give them a very thorough rinse, adding bluing to last rinse, if the draperies are white. Occasionally, use laundry bleach.

Hang the drapes outdoors to dry or fluff-dry in automatic washer. Hang them half over the line to avoid distorting ends and keep ends even. If colored, dry in shade. Give them a good shaking before hanging to fluff the pile. Shake them again just before they're completely dry. Hang them at the window without ironing.

Hold Onto Your Shoes!

Brazilian Stew Uses Everything

By Carlos Escudero

Rio de Janeiro, Aug. 7 (AP).—The old woman who lived in a shoe isn't in it, but the old shoe could be. It looks like a major disaster, but it's only feijoada, a typical Brazilian dish.

Pronounce it fey-joe-ad-ah. Survive it if you can.

First let's have a pig's ear, his knuckles, and a pound of tripe. Then these jerked meats: beef, pork, beef tongue—about a pound of each. Jerked means sun-cured, till it looks like an old shoe.

Here comes more stuff: Two pounds of back beans, a half-pound each of pork sausage, Spanish-style sausage (chorizo, it is called), bacon and salt pork. The jerked meat and beans are soaked overnight, washed in the morning.

We're not through yet. Assemble one pound of rice, six stalks of green kale, three or four onions, four tomatoes, six garlic cloves, a handful of leeks, a fistful of parsley and four bay leaves. Also needed: some mandioc flour.

Get a big pot. Here we go now. Wash the meat, including the salt pork. Leave the beans soaking. It makes them less aggressive. First we will take care of the main mess. Put two tablespoonfuls of fat in the pot. Plop in two chopped onions. Mash four garlic cloves and throw them in when the onions turn golden. Then toss in the bay leaves, tomatoes, leeks and parsley. Chop the meat in big chunks and the sausages into little ones. Drain the beans and throw them in when the meat and sausages have cooked half an hour. Stir this around for 15 minutes, on a low flame. Then pour in two quarts of boiling water.

Now, let the brew stew for two or three hours or until it is down to a thick soup. Keep the heat low. If the beans burn, heave everything out and start some other day. Burnt beans ruin it, if anything can.

Meanwhile, go ahead with the rice: Wash it, drain it, bless it with half a tablespoonful of salt. Brown four onion slices in a big saucepan with one tablespoonful of fat. Split two garlic cloves in quarters and brown them too. Now throw away the onions and garlic and drop the rice in the fat. Stir it around to fry without browning.

Add eight cups of boiling water. Let this project boil until no more water shows on top of the rice. In about half an hour you should have gooey rice, a bit hard. If you prefer it soft and dry, lower the fire and take it off when it suits you. But remember to add a wee bit of water if it gets too dry. That keeps it from burning at the bottom.

Chop the kale to a fare-the-well. Drop it in boiling water for five minutes. Turn the fire off and look into the main operation. When the beans are soft, it is done.

To serve, spread a layer of beans and meat, sprinkle well with mandioc and cover with rice. Sprinkle the kale on the top of that.

Only Mildly Amusing

Festival Theater Limps In 'Parisienne' Comedy

By Jack Gaver
United Press Drama Editor

NEW YORK, AUG 7.—The unprecedented summertime repertory venture of the newly formed Festival Theater got off to a rather limping start with its production of "Parisienne," an ancient French triangle comedy that somehow had escaped previous presentation here in English.

The trouble was that this period piece was only mildly amusing at best and that was not often enough to make a rewarding evening. This plan, and the three scheduled to follow, are to run two weeks each at the Fulton Theater.

It is conceivable that the antique—originally written by Henri Becque and presented here in Ashley Dukes' adaption— could be more entertaining than it was at the Fulton if more carefully cast. The Festival Theater handicapped both by time and money—the top price is a Broadway low of $3— couldn't be too choosy.

On the face of it, the players seemed attractive, with Faye Emerson, Francis Lederer, Romney Brent and Helmut Dantine in the four leading roles. But Miss Emerson, pretty though she may be and talented along certain lines, is not for this sort of a polite romp. It requires a know-how that only a few of our actresses have; the British are much more expert at this sort of thing. Since the play depended so much upon the character Miss Emerson portrayed, it had to suffer.

Only Lederer seemed to be in key as the lover who cuckolds a husband and in turn is made a cuckold by his mistress. Brent is suited for this type of play, but he had little to do as the husband. Dantine was playing a small, thankless role and wasn't right for it anyway.

The Festival Theater is headed by Sam Wanamaker, who directed "Parisienne," and Terese Hayden. Harriet Ames was their associate producer in this case.

The plans call for "Parisienne" to be succeeded next Monday by a revival of Ibsen's "Lady from the Sea," starring Luise Rainer. "Borned in Texas" by Lynn Riggs will open August 21 and will be succeeded two weeks later by Strindberg's "Crimes and Crimes."

BARBARA BEL GEDDES has been lured back from the movies to be the leading (and only) lady of John Steinbeck's new play, "In the Forest of the Night." Hammerstein and Rodgers will put it into rehearsal early in September.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug 7 (U.P.)—The sophisticated, sinful stars of Hollywood have a brand new thrill these nights. It's not a knockout brand of liquor or a dizzy parlor game or a system for beating the races.

It's a children's puppet show on television.

"Time for Beany" is the name of the show. It emanates from Hollywood under the guidance of a former Bugs Bunny cartoonist, Bob Clampett. Born only a little more than a year ago, "Beany" now appears on 21 major television stations across the country.

Nowhere is he more popular, Clampett says, than right in his own home town.

Lana Turner, her husband and her daughter spend every evening glued to the television set.

"Dinner and everything else" waits for "Beany," she has said.

Lionel Barrymore has been known to hurry home from the studio in complete makeup so he wouldn't miss his nightly installment. If he's late, someone in the Barrymore household is instructed to make notes on the program so he can keep up with the story.

Ruth Hussey, the essence of sophistication, said she'd "as soon think of missing 'Beany' as I would of turning down tickets to 'South Pacific.'" She and her two sons are regular fans.

Howard Da Silva began seeing it to keep his son company and now watches for himself.

"'Beany' is such a decent, warm and lovable being that he makes you fond of the human race in general after you've finished watching the show," Da Silva said.

"With the way the world and Hollywood are today, that's a great trick."

EVERYBODY who's anybody around Hollywood these days owns an oil well. Marie Windsor has gone them one better. She owns a uranium mine.

Like lots of good fortune, it comes just when she doesn't need it. Miss Windsor could have used a uranium mine when she was struggling along playing the heavy. Now that she's got a starring role with lots of romance, she's also got one third of a flourishing mine that promises to make her a rich girl.

The shapely redhead received her first dividend, a check for $1000, the day she started work in "Double Deal," the first effort of Bel-Air Productions.

"Dad had several gold claims back home in Marysville, Utah," she explained. "Marysville is a town of 500 people, none of whom is the least bit impressed by me.

"Things weren't going too well for the family in the mining game when geologists began prospecting for uranium. A strike was made in our neighborhood and sure enough, they found some on Dad's property.

"I found a man in Hollywood who liked the idea of financing production, and so he gets a third, Dad a third and I a third. They have shipped 150 tons of ore, with a $3000 profit, and there's 400 more tons ready to ship."

Miss Windsor's current heroine role climaxes 10 years of fighting the battle of Hollywood as a heavy.

"It was being a bad girl that did me the most good," she observed.

She also enjoys a reputation of being one of the most cooperative actresses in town.

"It's actually a form of selfishness," she said. "When I go home at night I like to forget the day's work and just relax. If I've hurt someone during the day it bothers me a lot and it takes so much effort to undo the wrong that it just isn't worth while in the first place."

GAMBLING IS THE PROBLEM in "711 Ocean Drive," although you'd never guess it here. Joanne Dru and Edmond O'Brien are the pretty people in an unpretty story about the racketeers behind the bookie racket. The picture opens Thursday at the Warner Theater.

Tryout Is Set At Cross Roads

The Cross Roads Theater at Bailey's Cross Roads, which begins a run tonight of the old thriller, "The Bat," will audition actors Wednesday night for the comedy, "Three Men on a Horse." The John Cecil Holm-George Abbott play aobut a greeting card author with a genius for picking horses, requires 11 good men, and Cross Roads extends the audition invitation to all interested actors. The auditions will begin at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the rehearsal hall next to the barn theater.

Ticket reservations for "The Bat" which runs Tuesday through Saturday evenings this week and next, and for "Three Men on a Horse" which follows the mystery, may be made by calling EX. 5640. For further information about the auditions, call EM. 0095.

Bond Complaint Dismissed by Fairfax Court

Circuit Court Judge Arthur W. Sinclair yesterday sustained a plea to dismiss a complaint challenging the validity of two Fairfax County bond issues.

The complaint, brought by two county residents, asked that the issues of $10,500,000 for school construction and $980,000 for a courthouse addition be declared illegal.

Dismissal of the complaint was asked in a plea-in-abatement filed by the Fairfax County School Board and other county agencies. The plea was upheld.

The complainants then asked permission to amend the original complaint. The court will rule on this request Friday.

Crommelin Sued By Petty Officer In Lease Case

Wetumpka, Ala., Aug. 7 (AP).—Pentagon critic John Crommelin has been sued for $5000 by a retired Navy chief petty officer on breach of contract charges.

The suit was filed by Jewel Reid and is scheduled for trial next month. It alleges that the retired admiral took possession of a recreation resort while it was still under lease to Reid.

Crommelin wasn't available for comment.

Reid's suit charges that Crommelin leased Harrogate Springs to him for one year on January 1, 1950, under an agreement to operate the resort and split the profits with the naval officer.

Old Laundry Bag Found Crammed With 1947 Mail

Great Neck, N. Y., Aug. 7 (AP).—A lot of Great Neck people will be getting Christmas cards this week—1947 vintage.

A 14-year-old boy, Henry Turrill, found an old laundry bag in the back of an abandoned auto body in a vacant lot today and turned it over to police.

The bag contained 1000 pieces of mail, all postmarked late in December, 1947. Most of them, said Postmaster Edward Higgins, looked to him like Christmas cards.

By late afternoon postal inspectors had picked up for questioning a man who worked as a temporary letter carrier in the 1947 Christmas rush.

Auto-Lite Workers Win $100 Pensions

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 7 (AP).—A new working agreement covering 15,000 CIO United Auto Workers in 26 electric Auto-Lite Co. plants was reached here early today by company and union negotiators.

It provides company-paid pensions of $100 monthly after 25 years' service, $125 monthly after 30 years.

Also provided are health and accident insurance, wage adjustments for skilled and hourly rated workers, and a modified union shop, which requires any new employe to join the UAW as a condition of employment.

Holdup Man Routed By Woman With Mop

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 7 (AP).—A middle-aged woman with spunk and a mop put a holdup man to flight here today.

Mrs. Stella McDowell, manager of a dry-cleaning shop, told police a man entered the shop, pulled a gun and said, "This is a holdup."

Mrs. McDowell gave him $5 but balked when he ordered her into a back room. She seized a mop and knocked the gun out of his hand.

The man retrieved the gun, scooped $25 out of a drawer, but fled before a renewed mopping-up action.

Slot Machine Bill Blocked in House

A bill to ban the shipment of slot machines and payoff pinball machines into states where they are illegal was blocked in the House yesterday by the objection of Rep. Walter S. Baring, (D. Nev.) to unanimous consent for a vote.

He did not explain his objection. The bill would not affect Nevada, where slot machines and gambling are legal.

Disaster Relief Bill Is Passed by House

The House passed a bill yesterday to authorize Federal assistance to States and localities hit by major disasters, including possible A-bomb attacks.

The bill sponsored by Rep. Harold C. Hagen (R., Minn.) and the late Rep. William Lemke (R., N. D.), would authorize five million dollars as a starter in Federal aid for floods, earthquakes, droughts, fires and storms.

Bette Davis to Star In Rossellini Film

Rome, Aug. 7 (U.P.)—American screen actress Bette Davis will star in a forthcoming picture directed by Italy's Roberto Rossellini, it was announced today.

The announcement was made by Charles McCauley, American publicist, who signed a contract last week to act as public relations adviser for Rossellini.

James Roosevelt Offers Calif. Evacuation Plan

Sacramento, Calif., Aug. 7 (AP).—James Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for Governor, proposes immediate evacuation of four million or more Californians from key cities in case of attack.

The late President's eldest son addressed the Democratic State Convention yesterday. He would build evacuation areas on some of the 23 million acres of Federal and State land in California.

WHO'S WHO

When they display their manners fine,
You speak of our offspring as thine;
But when uncouth and out of line,
I quickly find that they are mine.

How to Get a Husband

Promiscuity Is Taboo

By Cora Carlyle

ONCE upon a time there was a little girl named Susie who played in the sand with her pail and shovel like thousands of other little girls. At the water's edge, she played house making elaborate pies—strawberry, apple and lemon chiffon. It was amusing for awhile but soon she became adventurous and began to dig her way through the sand to China. All little children believe if they dig deeply enough the way to another continent can be reached.

Her occupation with the digging was disturbed by the incoming tide. She soon became fascinated watching it lick at the rim of her excavation and gradually the tide moistened the outer edge and she wondered how far it would go. The gathering force of the rising tide partially filled the tunnel. Then, eventually and inevitably the slow but sure advance of the water rushed in and completely inundated the hole which Susie had dug. There was no stopping that mighty body of water.

Susie is now a grown up girl and has in her a power that can be likened to a rising tide. That power is the attraction every woman has for a man. It is exactly like the slow rise of the tide that excites with its inevitability and promises with its fulfillment. The first shy kiss can be likened to the first wave scarcely touching the edge of the shore. The first hesitating exploration of each other's bodies is like the gathering forces with mounting violence.

True sexual influence has the majesty of the ocean. This power is woman's most potent ally in her quest for a husband. The use of that power should always be subject to the customs of society. Society's dictates must influence the gratification of the sexual appetite despite any natural instinct to satisfy it. You may think it silly to observe the conventions. Since none of us live in a social vacuum we can't escape from public opinion and its pointing finger.

Your social milieu is a small, closely knit group and its appraisal of you is important. This is true in our present day society which has sloughed off many of the rigidities of the Victorian era. Every community, even the most primitive sets down what is allowable and what is not allowable. Customs do change and sometimes very rapidly.

Surely it is within the span of your memory when "no good girl" painted her face or stayed out later than midnight. Today make-up, smoking publicly are socially acceptable and not even Mrs. Grundy raises an eyebrow at a young girl returning home in the wee hours of the morning. Such manifestations as these are no longer indices that the conventions are being flouted.

Caution must be exercised not to give in to false notions of freedom that are contrary to the natural currents of love. Men and women have always had to build sex up into the emotion of love and this need to transcend momentary fulfillment of desire is one of the oldest and most persistent of human feelings.

Your attitude towards sex and your decision as to what degree you should permit intimacies with the man you are in love with must necessarily rest on your own shoulders.

Shorter than 30 years ago, before the emancipation of women, a girl's virtue was taken for granted. Today, men are slowly accepting the new concept that virtue is a matter of discretion and choice. Promiscuity and flagrant indiscretions are and will always be frowned upon. Such actions go against the grain of good taste. The girl who is casual in her love affairs experiences its deteriorating effects on her feelings and character. While it isn't physical or obvious to the world, the corrosive effect is devastating inside of her.

Boredom and indifference to Mr. Right are one of the prices she pays. No one can be consistently satisfied by sex alone. Remember you are not a sea-urchin whose sex act is a reflex action; nature has endowed you with the right to an emotional experience.

Emotional Security

MARRIAGE gives a girl the emotional security as a starting point for the fullest and freest sexual expression. The adjustments necessary between her and her husband are few compared to the emotional orientation needed in an affair.

In an affair, the problem of where to go, the emotional shock of an immediate separation after such intimacy, the anxiety of possible consequence wear and tear a girl's nervous system down. And oftimes, resentment of the act and the man set in. These factors are beyond the control of either party but this fact does not prevent them for causing the break of the relationship. In marriage, the set-up is conducive to love and the responsibilities are well understood.

The essence of what has been said boils down to very simple truths—; the most important of them being that the force of the attraction of a maid for a man is what the world goes round;—when you get down to brass tacks it's not the brains or the body but that intangible something that hits a man and promises a total blackout that only one woman in the world can produce.

That while modern society has departed somewhat from the old-fashioned idea that sexual freedom is a sin, the morals of a community determine its individual code of discretion.

That your inner feelings, the expressive and repressive ones are the best guides to your course of action.

That anywhere or any place, promiscuity is an ugly flower to wear and becoming only to the guttersnipe.

That sex is most exhilarating in the comfort of the nuptial bed.

(The End.)

Farm Wife Awaits Visit of Virgin Mary

Necedah, Wis., Aug. 7 (U.P.)—This small town made preparations today to receive a flood of pilgrims, including the crippled and ill, next week when a 41-year-old farm wife says she will see the Virgin Mary for the seventh time.

It was at the site of a makeshift shrine that Mrs. Van Hoof, slender, worn mother of seven children, says the Virgin first appeared to her. She said the Blessed Mother will manifest herself again next Tuesday when the Roman Catholic Church celebrates the Feast of the Assumption of the Virgin.

Hawaii Longshoremen Walk Off Sugar Jobs

Honolulu, Aug. 7 (AP).—Members of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (CIO) walked off nearly all sugar plantations on Hawaii Island today.

Some union men described the walkout as a rank-and-file protest against the jailing of their union leader, Harry Bridges, convicted of perjury for his denial that he was a Communist.

Why Do You Submit To These Indignities?

By John Crosby

Edwards

FOR THE LAST 10 years, Ralph Edwards, the emcee of "Truth Or Consequences," has been getting people to drive golf balls across the country or get in bed with a seal at the corner of Hollywood and Vine or to get dunked in a tank of water. Why do people submit voluntarily to those indignities? This question has baffled a lot of people, including this one, and the other day, when Mr. Edwards blew into town, he was asked to explain it in his own way.

"Our show has a keen insight into the taste of America," explained Mr. E., who at 33 is one of the youngest toupee wearers on the air. "It's the kind of show that could easily go off key. To use a four-bit word, it could have its empathy destroyed, if we didn't know exactly how far you can go. We have a perfect feeling between the artists—you should excuse the expression—and the audience.

"We have a husband and wife in the act, say. One pushes a pie in the other's face. But the important thing is that it all works out well in the end. The audience has to feel that the husband and wife got together again before it's over. It can't just be one of them pulling a gag on the other."

Had Him Groveling

AS FOR THE man in the bed with a seal at Hollywood and Vine, Edwards telephoned his preacher, his boss, and his wife and dispatched them to that celebrated corner. In turn, they walked by, stared and asked, in effect: "What on earth are you doing here?" He couldn't explain without forfeiting his money.

"We had him groveling," Edwards admitted, "but it was all right with the audience because they knew it had been explained to the preacher and the boss that it was all a gag. People worry about gags involving anyone's boss. They wouldn't like it a bit if the boss wasn't in on it.

"The contestant was ready to kill us. But afterward we reveal all. In the handling of any contestant you get the man to a point where he can be made a fool of—but you keep on top of it by your attitude. The kidding department, for instance. We keep saying 'Aren't we devils?' or 'Aren't we angels?'

HOW, Edwards was asked, do you find people have time to hit a golf ball across the country? Well, in that case, they sent tickets to golf clubs to be sure they'd get a golfer. When the audience is assembled, Edwards asks, "Who's free for a week?" If it's a strenuous assignment—such as that golfing chore—he asks: Where's a big, rugged guy who's free for a week?"

When a likely prospect is flushed from the audience, he is interviewed and watched like a hawk in an effort to determine whether he is capable of handling the stunt, whether he will do it to the bitter end, whether he'll be a good sport about it. "You have to be a public relations man, a personnel man, and a psychology major which I'm not. Even then, don't let anyone tell you you can pick a good contestant every time."

None Killed Yet

EDWARDS hasn't killed any contestants yet and he doesn't want to. One man had to race an airplane 20 miles, from the Los Angeles airport to City Hall on a pogo stick. First, Edwards had the man's heart checked to be sure he was up to it.

"He got to be so good on that pogo stick," said Edwards, "he could have gone on to New York. He did the last mile without ever getting off the thing. He'd stop at red lights and bounce up and down. He beat the airplane (which took a circuitous route) by a day and a half."

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Pop Reveals the Secret Of His Success

He who has but little time
Has no business writing rhyme.
Pop Grey.

KID STUFF

J. Warner Mills 3d of 1606 Abingdon dr., Alexandria, Va., assures me that I'm not the only one who gets sandbagged by corny humor from the small fry.

He recently bit on this one: Junior asks "Do you know the difference between an elephant and an eggplant?" After some deliberation, Pop gives up and says no, he doesn't know the difference between an elephant and an eggplant.

"Gee," muses the half-pint gagster, "I'd sure hate to send you to the store for an eggplant."

CLUB NEWS

Next meeting of the District Line Club will be Thursday at 8 p. m., Petworth Library, Georgia ave. and Upshur st. nw. Speaker will be Bill Devine of 234 F st. nw., who says he'll talk about his trip "to Hell and back." (He's just returned from Hell, Norway.)

Incidentally, club officials cull the names in this space carefully, and after a contributor has had two items printed they send him an invitation to become an active member.

The other day they got a complaint from a woman who said three of her items had been published, yet she'd never received an invitation to join.

For a few moments there was great consternation at the possibility that club records were inaccurate. But they got everything straightened out in short order.

It turned out that the woman whose three items had been printed had given away three litters of kittens in the Give-Aways.

THE CHAMP

Jim Harte (Poet Jay Aitch) is currently writing a magazine piece about our prize-winning cartoonist, Herblock.

Herb reciprocates by passing along the story of how Harte once floored the heavyweight champion of the world, Jim Braddock.

It happened while Harte was gathering material for his book about Braddock, published in 1938. To get background he made the rounds with the champ one night and, to his sorrow, soaked up too much "hospitality" en route.

By the time they got to the North Bergen Social and Athletic Club, Harte quietly passed out. When he woke up the next morning he found that Braddock had carried him to a cot in a small spare room, and had insisted on staying the night himself, to make sure that Harte would be all right.

Inasmuch as there was only one cot in the room, Braddock had slept on the floor. "And that," points out Herblock "is how Jim Harte floored the heavyweight champion of the world."

Yep. And Mrs. Harte probably hit the ceiling.

ADD DEFINITIONS

Mrs. Max D. Bovey of 320 S. Tennessee ave., Martinsburg, W. Va., tells me that her 3-year-old daughter will undoubtedly grow up to be a reader of this column—she's that corny. Her definition of Scotch Tape is: "Elastic glass."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Two gentle, housebroken 6-week-old kittens; will deliver." (Sligo 4207.)

"Affectionate, housebroken kitten." (Temple 2238.)

REMINDER

I'm leaving town soon, and unless your Give - Away item reaches me by August 10 it won't appear in print until some time in September.

Dear Al:

On the radio, I try to say nyoospaper and double-breasted syoot and such. But, believe me, my heart isn't in it.

I wasn't raised with that extra y sound before the long u in Zinzinnati's Over-the-Rhine schools, and it's a little late in life for me to be affecting such fancy pants talk.

I think Mr. Webster will bear you out on most of those long u words, but you'll seldom hear them pronounced that way in everyday conversation. Bill

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — By George Wunder

YOU MENTIONED SOMETHING ABOUT THUMPING ME, MISTER. SHALL WE DEBATE THE POINT?
'TWILL BE A PLEASURE, Y' SCOUNDREL.
STOP PAWING THE DIRT, YOU HOMBRES!

STEVE ROPER — By Saunders and Woggon

SORRY, MR. BACARDI!-- QUITTING TIME!-- BUT I'LL DO YOUR WINDOWS FIRST THING IN THE MORNING!
OKAY!-ONLY DON'T COME THROUGH THIS OFFICE!--SEE?
KLEEN PANE WINDOW WASHING CO.
BACK AGAIN, CHUM! HOPE YOU'VE NOT BEEN BORED!
MAKIN' 50 BUCKS BY SITTIN' AROUND IN MY UNMENTIONABLES IS NO BORE, MISTER!
GOOD! THAT 5-X NOTE HAS A TWIN!-- AND IT'S YOURS IF YOU RENT ME YOUR OUTFIT TOMORROW - AND TEACH ME HOW TO USE THIS BELT!

Atom Targets Readied—If Needed

By Drew Pearson

There's been no change in the President's ban against A-bombing in the Korean war, but in order not to get caught unprepared, Air Force chiefs are working out all details for future use — just in case. They want to be able to retaliate 24 hours after Moscow makes the first aggressive move. This means that lists of main bombing targets and atomic bases for launching B-36's must be all set . . . Chief reason for the Navy's quiet current efficiency is the teamwork of Admiral Forrest Sherman and homespun Secretary Matthews. Matthews picked Sherman as the livest admiral in the Navy by reading the Army-Navy unification hearings. His judgment has been fully justified . . . They pull together perfectly . . . Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine bowed out of the Senate wire-tapping probe because she would have to sit in judgment on her fellow Senator from Maine, Owen Brewster. Since Brewster has been making noises about defeating her, Mrs. Smith decided she would be a prejudiced judge and excused herself.

Pearson

It was significant that when Congresswoman Helen Gahagan Douglas of California proposed an amendment reinstating rent controls in cities where rents increased drastically, not one Republican voted for it. Her amendment was defeated. (Looks like the real estate lobby is still strong.) . . . Credit Florida's Dwight Rogers with the crackdown amendment on hoarders which would send them to jail. The vote on this crossed party lines.

A New Maverick

Young Maury Maverick (his father was the able Congressman from Texas and former Mayor of San Antonio) is now running for the Texas Legislature in a race which sets a record for gall. Maverick, jr., is opposed by Frates S. Seeligson, aged 24, scion of one of the wealthiest oil families in Texas. The other day, Seeligson, sr., came to Maverick, sr., and urged that young Maverick withdraw from the race. "My boy is wealthy and therefore will be an honest legislator," said the elder Seeligson. "Furthermore, your boy will be drafted, and my boy won't." . . . Young Maverick refused to budge. He has already served four years in the Marines in the south Pacific and will serve again if needed . . . Meanwhile the Seeligson family is spending an estimated $25,000 to elect its scion, though a lot of veterans are chipping in voluntarily to help young Maverick.

General MacArthur has sent Philippine Gen. Carlos Romulo, now president of the United Nations Assembly, a cable addressed "Dear Carlos" which states:

"We all watched with so much pride and enthusiasm your great efforts of the past two years in the fields of diplomacy and statesmanship. But now the guns have begun to speak. While I know it cannot be, I would feel a sense of comfort to have you at my right hand again." . . . This should further clinch the idea of having General Romulo go to Korea as part of the U. N. command in order to make Asiatics realize ours is not a white man's imperialistic invasion. Unfortunately this Moscow line is believed in much of the Orient.

Rep. Celler Pressured

Who put the pressure on Congressman Celler of New York to induce him to call off his long-proposed investigation of Pan American World Airways? . . . Out in Illinois, so many Republicans are fed up with the Chicago Tribune's harpooning of the war effort that they are forming Republican clubs to reelect Senator Scott Lucas, Democrat . . . If Washington really wanted to show an all-out war effort it would curtail the fancy plush planes reserved for Cabinet officers, the top brass and other Vips. Most people have forgotten that in World War II, Harry Hopkins, Averell Harriman and other dignitaries hopped the Atlantic in bucket seats or in the bomb bays of bombers. FDR himself had no special plane until near the war's end . . . Now not only does Truman have a plane sitting idle, with crew doing nothing, but Secretary Johnson has first lien on the swank Dew Drop, made for "President" Dewey. There are also 10 plush planes on hand to carry bigwigs around the globe. Their joint carrying capacity could rush a thousand badly needed troops across the Pacific instead of having the taxpayers hire special commercial planes—as at present.

While penny-pinching Senators slash the State Department's propaganda budget, many patriotic Americans organized as the "Common Council for American Unity" are doing a bang-up job of telling Europe the truth about the U. S. A.

Good old Joe Martin, the former Speaker, apparently doesn't believe in the Republican platform. When the Young Republicans of the District of Columbia put the bite on Joe to help out home rule for Washington, D. C., he refused to sign the discharge petition—despite the fact that home rule is in the G.O.P. platform. Furthermore the D. C. home rule bill now before Congress is exactly the same bill which the Republicans backed in the Eighteenth Congress when Joe was Speaker. . . . Prima Donna Senator Guy Gillette, who now opposes Carroll Switzer for a Federal judgeship, once backed Switzer for what he called an "assistant judgeship." (Actually there is no such position.) . . . No prima donna, Senator Matt Neeley of West Virginia is doing a conscientious job in the wire-tap probe. He hung back at first for the understandable reason that he didn't want to go off half-cocked on a Joe McCarthy witch hunt.
